WILSON CONTINUES WATCHFUL WAITING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—President Wilson made it clear to Senator Stone, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, today that the demand for immediate action in Mexico, made in the senate yesterday, cannot be complied with. Senator Stone was closeted with the president for about half an hour, during which the Mexican situation and the administration's attitude were carefully gone over.

Senator Stone indicated when he emerged from the conference that there has been no change in the waiting attitude of the administration.

"Carranza cannot be expected to do anything in a day," he declared.

It is understood that the president pointed out to Senator Stone the inadvisability of inflamed utterances on the floor of the senate. Such incendiary speeches, it was pointed out, are being taken advantage of by enemies of the Carranza government and are embarrassing to the administration at this critical time.

HOLMES MAY LEAVE MANSION HOUSE

Gordon A. Holmes, who has been proprietor of the Mansion House on lower Broadway for some time past, it is understood is thinking of giving up the lease of the hotel and it is said that he has notified Mrs. Irving Von Beck, the owner of the hotel, to that effect. Mrs. Von Beck is expected in Kingston some time today, and just what arrangements will be made toward continuing the hotel business is not known at the present time.

Mr. Holmes when seen today said that it was not definitely settled as yet as to whether he would surrender the lease and he would not know until after he had held a consultation with Mrs. Von Beck. However, the hotel would not close its doors this evening, he said.

Mrs. Arthur Shuffle, who is Mr. Holmes's mother-in-law, and who has resided at the hotel since he has had charge, had her furniture removed today and conveyed to Rhinecliff, where she formerly resided.

The Mansion House is one of the most historic hotels along the Hudson river, and was built many years ago when the present Strand and Ferry streets were under water. At that time the hotel was located near the banks of the Rondout creek, but as time passed the ground was filed in and Ferry street was laid out.

Mr. Waters Pays $3 Fine.

Francis J. Waters, Jr., pleaded guilty before Recorder Lang on Thursday evening to violation of the traffic ordinance in driving his automobile on the wrong side of the road and paid a fine of $3 imposed. Mr. Waters explained to the recorder that he regretted that he had put the court to any inconvenience, but it had not been done intentionally, as Thursday he was busy with a large gang of men at work on his ice pond and 9 o'clock rolled around before he realized it was so late, which was the reason why he had not appeared at that time to answer to the complaint laid against him when arrested by Policeman Kuehn.

Christian Endeavor Sleighride.

A sleigh load to the Grange Hall at Lake Katrine will be given this evening by the senior members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Reformed Church. The members will be entertained by the C. E. Society of Lake Katrine. The sleigh will leave the First Reformed Church shortly after 7 o'clock and as the weather indications point to a clear evening, it is anticipated that a large number of the Endeavorers will take advantage of this opportunity and go on the load. Refreshments will be served at the hall and an evening of fun and enjoyment is assured all who go.

Hiltebrant Co. Election.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the C. Hiltebrant Dry Dock Company held recently the following directors were elected: William Hiltebrant, John Hiltebrant, O. R. Hiltebrant, S. D. Hiltebrant, Clarence Hiltebrant and Fred J. Walter. The directors elected the following officers: President and manager, John H. Hiltebrant; vice president, O. R. Hiltebrant, secretary, Fred J. Walter; and treasurer, S. R Hiltebrant.

Hymon Rosenberg Incorporated.

A certificate of Hymon Rosenberg, Inc., of Ellenville has been filed with the secretary of state at Albany and in the Ulster county clerk's office. The corporation is organized to deal in candies, notions, stationery, woodenware, etc., and has a capital of $10,000, consisting of 100 shares of the par value of $100 each. The directors are Hymon Rosenberg and Bessie Rosenberg, both of Ellenville, and Harry Rosenberg of Brooklyn.

Smothered to Death.

The four months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Brandow, Greene street, Catskill was found by Mrs. Brandow at a little after eight o'clock Thursday morning, smothered to death in the clothes of the bed in which she was lying. Dr. Goodrich was called and pronounced death caused by asphyxiation.

CARPENTER HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Joseph Southard of No. 73 Franklin street is confined to his home from injuries received on Thursday afternoon while at work on a house on Manor Place. Mr. Southard is a carpenter employed by Frank Elmendorf, the contractor. At the time he was busy placing a siding on a dormer window and was standing on the gutter of the house, which was ten inches wide. In some manner while leaning over at work sawing a board the nerve in the spinal column became pinched, causing paralysis from the waist down. Mr. Southard dropped the saw with which he was working to the ground below, but fortunately he fell on the roof. Mr. Elmendorf, who saw his plight rushed to his assistance and held him until others came and aided in getting him safely to the ground. Mr. Southard was conveyed to his home and Dr. Frank Johnston summoned. This morning Mr. Southard's condition had so far improved that he was able to use his lower limbs and while still weak it is expected that he will shortly be able to resume his duties. Mr. Southard is the genial and capable president of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America and has a host of friends who hope for his speedy recovery.

EFFICIENT HEALTH WORK IN SCHOOLS

In reply to a letter from Commissioner Finley urging efficient health work in the public schools, Superintendent Michael has written as follows:

Kingston, January 13, 1916.

Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education, Albany, N. Y.

Dear Dr. Finley:

I have your letter of January 12th calling our attention to the prevalence of grip. In reply thereto, I beg to say that Kingston is exceptionally fortunate in its school physician and nurse. Dr. Mary Gage Day has always co-operated with the state medical authorities and is still doing so. She is in this work for the board of education largely because of her love of children and her desire to render social service. She is in some one of our schools daily. Our nurse in her line is in every respect Dr. Day's equal.

We are watching this matter of grip carefully and are promptly excluding from school for observation all children with sore throats or any other suspicious ailment. Our nurse follows up these cases in the homes and the excluded children are restored to school as soon as it is deemed safe to do so. From the beginning our principals and teachers have been instructed to watch out carefully for suspicious cases and exclude them until the proper medical authorities can pass judgment upon them. Within less than twelve hours after a contagious disease develops in any school, the building is thoroughly fumigated with formaldehyde gas.

I have always taken the position that if medical inspection is to be effective, it must be thorough. Our public is co-operating handsomely with us in this matter.

Thanking you for the helpful suggestions you have given us from time to time, I am, sincerely yours,

MYRON J. MICHAEL.

Mr. Brinnier's Vacation Trip.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. William D. Brinnier have left town for the Isle of Pines, West Indies, where they will spend their usual winter vacation. Mr. Brinnier owns a large plantation on the Isle of Pines, on which he raises tropical fruits, principally grape fruit and pineapples. He has developed his plantation into one of the most productive on the entire island, and he has entertained William Jennings Bryan there. Parker Brinnier will probably go to the Isle of Pines during the latter part of January and remain with his parents until their return home

Trinity Concert This Evening.

A concert will be given at Trinity M. E. Church this evening by the members of the choir. The concert will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and will be given in the auditorium of the church, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. After the concert a reception and Victrola concert will be given and all members of the church and their friends are invited to be in attendance.

Victim a Middletown Girl.

The Middletown manslaughter case was adjourned Thursday until next Monday afternoon following arraignment of the accused, Mrs. Eliza Hovencamp, who pleaded not guilty. The body of the girl who died after an attempted criminal operation has been identified as that of Miss Emma Ivory, formerly of Bloomingburgh, for six years a factory worker in Middletown. She was 21 years old.

No Americans Killed at Madera.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The state department received official advices from El Paso, Texas, today that the report that ten Americans had been killed at Madera, Mexico, was false. The El Paso advices stated that late telegrams from Madera said that all Americans there are safe.

UNION MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Between six hundred and seven hundred people attended the union prayer meeting of the five uptown Protestant churches held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Thursday evening and the meeting was a most helpful one. The Rev. George Cranston presided and the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath, the Rev. A. S. Cole, the Rev. F. B. Seeley and the Rev. J. L. Leeper took part in the services.

One of the features of the meeting was the fine music rendered by the large chorus in charge of Emil Kuehn. A very able and aggressive address was delivered by the Rev. J. L. Leeper taking his text from the Book of Nehemiah, the fourth chapter, "So built he the wall, for the people have a mind to work." Dr. Leeper said that nothing was accomplished without work and gave many illustrations. While Kingston is not the most wicked place in the world yet it has its share of evil, immorality and drunkenness and he urged the people to be Nehemiahs for God. It was unity of purpose that was to accomplish much. Criticism, envy, hate and malice must be laid aside and love of God and desire to accomplish much was the purpose of the evangelical meetings.

Next Thursday evening the union service will be held in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church when the Rev. F. B. Seeley will deliver the address.

January 23 will be set aside as "Go to Church Sunday."

ATWOOD.

Atwood, Jan. 13.—The Willing Workers will meet with Mrs. George Wood Wednesday afternoon, January 19.

Mrs. John Van Demark is visiting relatives in Kingston.

Harry Krom is visiting in Nazareth, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Krom spent Tuesday at the home of Isaac Prindle of Stone Ridge.

A number are suffering with the grip in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hasbrouck have returned home, after spending a week in New York.

Mrs. Anna Oakley, Mrs. E. Quick and Mrs. B. Winchell spent Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William Winchell.

Clarence Van Demark is spending some time in Walden.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference will be held in the church Friday afternoon, January 21.

Mrs. C. Sickler and son spent Tuesday at the home of Charles Smith.

Friends have received work of the death of Mrs. Marshall Wood, who died at her home after a short illness of bronchitis. She leaves her husband and children, mother, Mrs. J. Chester Freer of Stone Ridge and two brothers, Jason and Alvin Wood to mourn her loss.

Charles Winchell is seriously ill at this writing.

Mrs. A. Winchell and son spent a few days with relatives at The Vly the past week.

Ticefeldt in Jail.

Clayton Ticefeldt, 18 years old, was committed to jail on Thursday by Justice of the Peace Thdofore Voss of Phoenicia, to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of assault in the second degree. The alleged assault occurred on January 7, and the complaint on which Ticefeldt was arrested was made by Mrs. Shultis, the mother of seven year old Evelyn Shultis, on whom the assault was alleged to have been committed. John W. Eckert and LeRoy Lounsbery appeared for the complaint and Chris J. Flanagan of Brinnier & Canfield's office appeared for Ticefeldt.

Poughkeepsie Strike Settled.

Girl strikers returned to work yesterday at the Samuel I. Davis cigar factory in Poughkeepsie and the week's strike is over. In all 150 girl cigar rollers were out. An increase of wages is granted but both sides claim a victory.

Pleasant Valley More So.

Pleasant Valley is now lighted by electricity. The novel effect of the fifty arc lights misled the poultry population and the egg supply in down town henneries was doubled amid much crowing of roosters who took the illumination for daylight.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

This evening at 8 o'clock there will be a dance held in the high school gymnasium. It will be given by the Webster-Hayne Debating Club and as Miller's orchestra will furnish the music the dance will no doubt be a success. Because of the increase of pieces in the orchestra the usual admission of 15 cents has been raised to 25 cents.

Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, sharp, the varsity basketball team meets the Rhinebeck team in the high school gymnasium, and later in the evening the high school second team will battle with the "Student B" team of the Y. M. C. A. Judging from the fine game Kingston played with Saugerties last Friday, the one game alone will be more than worth the admission to be charged to see both games. Up to the present time no one could ask for greater athletic prowess in the high school than has been displayed, and it is up to the student body to see that their teams are backed up, and by giving them the support they deserve, they will insure a continuance of the good work.

Thursday evening, January 20, there will be a sleigh load to the Stone Ridge Casino, given by several of the high school upper classmen, and chaperoned by two high school teachers, Mrs. Witter and Miss Hull. Already a great many have bought tickets and the affair will undoubtedly be a success.

WILLOW.

Willow, Jan. 13.—Elmer Wilbur is hauling ice for DeVall and Kilsey, who have the contract to fill the Ideal Park ice house.

Daniel M. Hasbrouck and the Rev. Mr. Mine, pastor of the W. M. E. Church of this village, have been scliciting aid for Grover Lane, who has been sick for the last two years. They succeeded in raising $33, which will be a great help to Mr. Lane and his family this winter.

Fred Keller and Postmaster Berry are hauling fire wood from Mr. Keller's wood lot in Silver Hollow.

Mrs. D. M. Hasbrouck visited Mrs. Lottie Quick on Thursday last.

Herbert Lane, who has been sick for the past couple of weeks, is much better, so he is able to be out and around again.

A very fine red fox walked through Main street of this village last Wednesday, looking for some one to shoot him, so Lewis Lane borrowed Postmaster Berry's gun, and stepped out and accommodated him.

William Clearwater of High Falls was in this village on business on Thursday, and spent the night with John Humphrey, and returned to High Falls on Friday morning.

One of Will Gaul's hired men had the misfortune to cut off his toe, while working in the woods, cutting logs. Dr. Hoyt of Mt. Tremper was called and dressed the wound.

Movie Monopoly in Hudson Valley.

A million dollar corporation, to be known as the George Cohen Enterprises, expects to file papers soon with the secretary of state at Albany. The concern will have its main offices in Poughkeepsie and will seek to control a chain of moving picture houses in various cities of the Hudson valley.

Medical Societies to Merge.

Action taken by the Dutchess County Medical Society Wednesday in Poughkeepsie will result in the merging of that organization with the Putnam County Association under the name of the Dutchess-Putnam Medical Society. The scope of the societies will be enlarged in the subsequent incorporation.

Enforce Quarantine on Home.

Address By Dr. Dodds.

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Dodds of the First Presbyterian Church will deliver the address at the meeting for men on Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. at 3:30 o'clock. There will be special music and all men are invited to attend.

FULL FORCE WORKING ON BOAT YARDS

Something unusual for this time of the year is the fact that all of the boat yards along the Rondout creek are working full time with full gangs of men, and a man identified with one of the yards said this morning that there was fully 500 men employed at the various yards along the creek. The expert men are receiving on an average of $2.50 a day while the unskilled men are being paid on an average of $1.75 a day.

Owing to the fct that the river is closed to navigation the boatyards have been compelled to secure the supply of lumber by rail and large shipments are being received from Georgia and Florida. Within the past three months lumber has jumped in price from $10 to $15 a 1,000 feet, and even at that price it is a difficult matter to get enough timber needed. All of the yards are building deck scows and barges. The fact that all the yards are busy is due to the number of unexpected orders received for boats. The European war is the real cause for the boatyards in this section being kept busy. All scows and barges that can be secured are being engaged by the railroads to use for storage purposes and are being loaded with freight which is held until ships can be secured to carry the freight to Europe. At the present time every available boat along the river is being used in New York harbor for storage purposes.

AN APPRECIATIVE FARMER.

Mr. Crowell of Wallkill Writes About Farm Bureau Work.

The following letter from a well known and successful farmer in the town of Shawangunk has been received by The Freeman:

D. G. Crowell,
Fancy Fruits, Potatoes and
Farm Machinery.
Wallkill, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1916.

Editor, The Freeman,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—

It gives me pleasure to express my appreciation of the work accomplished and the service rendered through our farm bureau for the following reasons:

First—We feel that we have a manager who has our work at heart and whose duty is to keep us from costly experiences and unnecessary work.

Second—We are enabled through our Farm Bureau to keep in touch with the latest and most improved methods of agricultural practice; also with our experiment station.

Third—It is necessary that we have a medium through which to convey our troubles to the proper authorities, that we have somebody to represent us at our schools, at our fairs, at all agricultural organizations and to bring before the people at large the standing of Ulster county. This we feel has been done tactfully by our present manager.

Personally I feel I have profited in many ways. I have visited all the demonstration trains. I have attended all local meetings and demonstrations in my vicinity and have conducted experiments in alfalfa; also have been in the dairy testing association the past year. It is a stimulus to any man to be connected with such an organization.

Very truly yours,

D. G. CROWELL.

LONGYEAR PAROLED.

He Must Report Once Each Week to Herbert Carl.

Judge Jenkins has paroled Albert Longyear, formerly of Woodstock, in the custody of Herbert Carl as parole officer, and has directed that Longyear shall report to Mr. Carl weekly until the March term of county court.

Longyear was arrested last summer in Chicago, where he had fled after stealing money from one of his neighbors. He was indicted for grand larceny, but Judge Jenkins suspended sentence on Longyear's promise to make restitution. He has paid back part of the money, but his failure to continue payments led to the case being called to Judge Jenkins's attention in county court Monday, when Longyear's arrest was directed.

On Longyear's behalf it was urged that he had been out of work and that his wife was ill and he had no money with which to continue the restitution payments.

Judge Jenkins told Longyear he would give him one more chance, and that he must report to Herbert Carl each week regarding the progress he was making. Mr. Carl accepted the responsibility of acting as parole officer.

The Spring Primaries.

Members of the county committees of the various political parties will be elected next spring when the primaries are held to choose delegates and alternates to the national party conventions. This announcement has been made by the commissioners of elections. Each presidential year the election of the county committeemen is shifted to the spring primaries instead of held over until the fall primaries. In the three intervening years the county committeemen are elected in the fall primaries.

To Welcome State Lumbermen.

Poughkeepsie plans to welcome 600 lumbermen at the convention of retail lumber dealers of the state set for January 26, 27 and 28. Moving pictures of western lumbering operations and a telephone talk across the continent will feature the opening night's banquet.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Washington—President Wilson informed Senator Stone that senate's demand for immediate action in Mexico cannot be complied with. Administration will maintain "watchful waiting" tactics. Resolution by Senator Works directing president to intervene renewed battle in senate.

El Paso—State martial law exists here. Soldiers patrolling streets to prevent anti-Mexican riots. Americans living on border declare they will take affairs into their own hands. Petition for volunteers being circulated.

Vienna—Cettinje, Montenegrin capital, captured by Austro-Hungarians.

London—Dispatch from Rome says that Austria and not Montenegro proposed armistice. Believed Montenegro and Austria conclude separate peace. Austrians occupied Kuk.

Berlin—Weather conditions hampering military operations on Franco-German front. Nothing new on other fronts.

TURKS MURDER 1,500 ARMENIANS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 14.—The massacre of 1,500 more Armenians in December was reported in a telegram received today by Viscount Bryce from Erzeroum.

The telegram stated that the 1,500 Armenian men, women and children, forced by famine and cold to surrender, gave themselves up to the Turkish governor of Mush. The men were executed and the women and children drowned in the Euphrates.

AUTO VALET FINDS FATHER AND COIN

The return of Charles Wyckoff to Union Hill, N. J., after an absence of 21 years during which time he has made his pile in Nevada copper mines, has been featured in newspaper stories recently. Wyckoff came back to search for his two children whom he left as infants when he started west on the death of his wife more than a score of years ago. His daughter he found as Mrs. Carl E. Guenther, of Union Hill, while his son, Russell Wyckoff, was employed by George Goudy as a washer at the latter's garage in Highland, this county.

The elder Wyckoff says he has money enough for all and will take his children west with him. Russell needed no self-starting device to get a train for New York Tuesday when he left to join his father who, a week ago, he never knew existed.

STATE CONVENTION FEBRUARY 15

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 14.—The Republican state committee in its meeting here today decided to hold the state convention on February 15 in Carnegie Hall, this city. At this convention a new party platform will be constructed which will be based on the keynote of Republican status in national affairs. The state platform, therefore, undoubtedly will play a big part in the drafting of the new platform of the Republican party.

The convention on February 15 will not, it is said, go into discussion or speculation as to any possible candidate for the presidency. The date was agreed upon as the most convenient time for the attendance of United States Senator J. W. Wadsworth.

Hearing Before Sheriff's Jury.

A hearing was had Thursday before a sheriff's jury in county court inthe matter of the application of Charles Buley for the appointment of a committee for the person and estate of Alice Cudney, an alleged incompetent person, who is in the Middletown State Hospital. The property consists of $900, money in bank and personal property. Application will be made for his appointment as committee. He was represented by Newton Fessenden. Dr. Maurice W. Ashley testified as to the condition of the sick person.

Lake Switzerland Ice Harvest.

A large surface of the ice on Lake Switzerland has been ploughed and dozens of teams have been engaged in drawing it to the various ice houses in this village. The ice is about 15 inches thick. Mr. Reynolds is to be congratulated upon securing this lake, as the ice is of a finer quality than any other along the Ulster and Delaware.—Fleischmann Herald.

Carranza Promises Justice.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, head of the de facto government of Mexico, today pledged that the murderers of the seventeen Americans near Chihuahua City, Mexico, will be brought to justice. He wired Eliseo Arredondo his ambassador in Washington, to make this statement to the press.

Mr. Waters Pays $3 Fine.

Francis J. Waters, Jr., pleaded guilty before Recorder Lang on Thursday evening to violation of the traffic ordinance in driving his automobile on the wrong side of the road and paid a fine of $3 imposed. Mr. Waters explained to the recorder that he regretted that he had put the court to any inconvenience, but it had not been done intentionally, as Thursday he was busy with a large gang of men at work on his ice pond and 9 o'clock rolled around before he realized it was so late, which was the reason why he had not appeared at that time to answer to the complaint laid against him when arrested by Policeman Kuehn.

Mr. Elmendorf, who saw his plight rushed to his assistance and held him until others came and aided in getting him safely to the ground. Mr. Southard was conveyed to his home and Dr. Frank Johnston summoned. This morning Mr. Southard's condition had so far improved that he was able to use his lower limbs and while still weak it is expected that he will shortly be able to resume his duties. Mr. Southard is the genial and capable president of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America and has a host of friends who hope for his speedy recovery.

EFFICIENT HEALTH WORK IN SCHOOLS

In reply to a letter from Commissioner Finley urging efficient health work in the public schools, Superintendent Michael has written as follows:

Kingston, January 13, 1916.
Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education, Albany, N. Y.
Dear Dr. Finley:

I have your letter of January 12th calling our attention to the prevalence of grip. In reply thereto, I beg to say that Kingston is exceptionally fortunate in its school physician and nurse. Dr. Mary Gage Day has always co-operated with the state medical authorities and is still doing so. She is in this work for the board of education largely because of her love of children and her desire to render social service. She is in some one of our schools daily. Our nurse in her line is in every respect Dr. Day's equal.

We are watching this matter of grip carefully and are promptly excluding from school for observation all children with sore throats or any other suspicious ailment. Our nurse follows up these cases in the homes and the excluded children are restored to school as soon as it is deemed safe to do so. From the beginning our principals and teachers have been instructed to watch out carefully for suspicious cases and exclude them until the proper medical authorities can pass judgment upon them. Within less than twelve hours after a contagious disease develops in any school, the building is thoroughly fumigated with formaldehyde gas.

I have always taken the position that if medical inspection is to be effective, it must be thorough. Our public is co-operating handsomely with us in this matter.

Thanking you for the helpful suggestions you have given us from time to time, I am, sincerely yours,
MYRON J. MICHAEL.

Mr. Brinnier's Vacation Trip.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. William D. Brinnier have left town for the Isle of Pines, West Indies, where they will spend their usual winter vacation. Mr. Brinnier owns a large plantation on the Isle of Pines, on which he raises tropical fruits, principally grape fruit and pineapples. He has developed his plantation into one of the most productive on the entire island, and he has entertained William Jennings Bryan there. Parker Brinnier will probably go to the Isle of Pines during the latter part of January and remain with his parents until their return home

Trinity Concert This Evening.

A concert will be given at Trinity M. E. Church this evening by the members of the choir. The concert will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and will be given in the auditorium of the church, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. After the concert a reception and Victrola concert will be given and all members of the church and their friends are invited to be in attendance.

Victim a Middletown Girl.

The Middletown manslaughter case was adjourned Thursday until next Monday afternoon following arraignment of the accused, Mrs. Eliza Hovencamp, who pleaded not guilty. The body of the girl who died after an attempted criminal operation has been identified as that of Miss Emma Ivory, formerly of Bloomingburgh, for six years a factory worker in Middletown. She was 21 years old.

No Americans Killed at Madera.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The state department received official advices from El Paso, Texas, today that the report that ten Americans had been killed at Madera, Mexico, was false. The El Paso advices stated that late telegrams from Madera said that all Americans there are safe.

UNION MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Between six hundred and seven hundred people attended the union prayer meeting of the five uptown Protestant churches held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Thursday evening and the meeting was a most helpful one. The Rev. George Cranston presided and the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath, the Rev. A. S. Cole, the Rev. F. B. Seeley and the Rev. J. L. Leeper took part in the services.

One of the features of the meeting was the fine music rendered by the large chorus in charge of Emil Kuehn. A very able and aggressive address was delivered by the Rev. J. L. Leeper taking his text from the Book of Nehemiah, the fourth chapter, "So built he the wall, for the people have a mind to work." Dr. Leeper said that nothing was accomplished without work and gave many illustrations. While Kingston is not the most wicked place in the world yet it has its share of evil, immorality and drunkenness and he urged the people to be Nehemiahs for God. It was unity of purpose that was to accomplish much. Criticism, envy, hate and malice must desire to accomplish much was the purpose of the evangelical meetings.

Next Thursday evening the union service will be held in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church when the Rev. F. B. Seeley will deliver the address.

January 23 will be set aside as "Go to Church Sunday."

ATWOOD.

Atwood, Jan. 13.—The Willing Workers will meet with Mrs. George Wood Wednesday afternoon, January 19.

Mrs. John Van Demark is visiting relatives in Kingston.

Harry Krom is visiting in Nazareth, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Krom spent Tuesday at the home of Isaac Prindle of Stone Ridge.

A number are suffering with the grip in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hasbrouck have returned home, after spending a week in New York.

Mrs. Anna Oakley, Mrs. E. Quick and Mrs. B. Winchell spent Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William Winchell.

Clarence Van Demark is spending some time in Walden.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference will be held in the church Friday afternoon, January 21.

Mrs. C. Sickler and son spent Tuesday at the home of Charles Smith.

Friends have received work of the death of Mrs. Marshall Wood, who died at her home after a short illness of bronchitis. She leaves her husband and children, mother, Mrs. J. Chester Freer of Stone Ridge and two brothers, Jason and Alvin Wood to mourn her loss.

Charles Winchell is seriously ill at this writing.

Mrs. A. Winchell and son spent a few days with relatives at The Vly the past week.

Ticefeldt in Jail.

Clayton Ticefeldt, 18 years old, was committed to jail on Thursday by Justice of the Peace Theodore Voss of Phoenicia, to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of assault in the second degree. The alleged assault occurred on January 7, and the complaint on which Ticefeldt was arrested was made by Mrs. Shultis, the mother of seven year old Evelyn Shultis, on whom the assault was alleged to have been committed. John W. Eckert and LeRoy Lounsbery appeared for the complaint and Chris J. Flanagan of Brinnier & Canfield's office appeared for Ticefeldt.

Poughkeepsie Strike Settled.

Girl strikers returned to work yesterday at the Samuel I. Davis cigar factory in Poughkeepsie and the week's strike is over. In all 150 girl cigar rollers were out. An increase of wages is granted but both sides claim a victory.

Pleasant Valley More So.

Pleasant Valley is now lighted by electricity. The novel effect of the fifty arc lights misled the poultry population and the egg supply in down town henneries was doubled, amid much crowing of roosters who took the illumination for daylight.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

This evening at 8 o'clock there will be a dance held in the high school gymnasium. It will be given by the Webster-Hayne Debating Club and as Miller's orchestra will furnish the music the dance will no doubt be a success. Because of the increase of pieces in the orchestra the usual admission of 15 cents has been raised to 25 cents.

Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, sharp, the varsity basketball team meets the Rhinebeck team in the high school gymnasium, and later in the evening the high school second team will battle with the "Student B" team of the Y. M. C. A. Judging from the fine game Kingston played with Saugerties last Friday, the one game alone will be more than worth the admission to be charged to see both games. Up to the present time no one could ask for greater athletic prowess in the high school than has been displayed, and it is up to the student body to see that their teams are backed up, and by giving them the support they deserve, they will insure a continuance of the good

Thursday evening, January 20, there will be a sleigh load to the Stone Ridge Casino, given by several of the high school upper classmen, and chaperoned by two high school teachers, Mrs. Witter and Miss Hull. Already a great many have bought tickets and the affair will undoubtedly be a success.

WILLOW.

Willow, Jan. 13.—Elmer Wilbur is hauling ice for DeVall and Kilsey, who have the contract to fill the Ideal Park ice house.

Daniel M. Hasbrouck and the Rev. Mr. Mine, pastor of the W. M. E. Church of this village, have been soliciting aid for Grover Lane, who has been sick for the last two years. They succeeded in raising $33, which will be a great help to Mr. Lane and his family this winter.

Fred Keller and Postmaster Berry are hauling fire wood from Mr. Keller's wood lot in Silver Hollow.

Mrs. D. M. Hasbrouck visited Mrs. Lottie Quick on Thursday last.

Herbert Lane, who has been sick for the past couple of weeks, is much better, so he is able to be out and around again.

A very fine red fox walked through Main street of this village last Wednesday, looking for some one to shoot him, so Lewis Lane borrowed Postmaster Berry's gun, and stepped out and accommodated him.

William Clearwater of High Falls was in this village on business on Thursday, and spent the night with John Humphrey, and returned to High Falls on Friday morning.

One of Will Gaul's hired men had the misfortune to cut off his toe, while working in the woods, cutting logs. Dr. Hoyt of Mt. Tremper was called and dressed the wound.

Movie Monopoly in Hudson Valley.

A million dollar corporation, to be known as the George Cohen Enterprises, expects to file papers soon with the secretary of state at Albany. The concern will have its main offices in Poughkeepsie and will seek to control a chain of moving picture houses in various cities of the Hudson valley.

Medical Societies to Merge.

Action taken by the Dutchess County Medical Society Wednesday in Poughkeepsie will result in the merging of that organization with the Putnam County Association under the name of the Dutchess-Putnam Medical Society. The scope of the societies will be enlarged in the subsequent incorporation.

Enforce Quarantine on Home.

Address By Dr. Dodds.

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Dodds of the First Presbyterian Church will deliver the address at the meeting for men on Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. at 3:30 o'clock. There will be special music and all men are invited to attend.

FULL FORCE WORKING ON BOAT YARDS

Something unusual for this time of the year is the fact that all of the boat yards along the Rondout creek are working full time with full gangs of men, and a man identified with one of the yards said this morning that there was fully 500 men employed at the various yards along the creek. The expert men are receiving on an average of $2.50 a day while the unskilled men are being paid on an average of $1.75 a day.

Owing to the fct that the river is closed to navigation the boatyards have been compelled to secure the supply of lumber by rail and large shipments are being received from Georgia and Florida. Within the past three months lumber has jumped in price from $10 to $15 a 1,000 feet, and even at that price it is a difficult matter to get enough timber needed. All of the yards are building deck scows and barges. The fact that all the yards are busy is due to the number of unexpected orders received for boats. The European war is the real cause for the boatyards in this section being kept busy. All scows and barges that can be secured are being engaged by the railroads to use for storage purposes and are being loaded with freight which is held until ships can be secured to carry the freight to Europe. At the present time every available boat along the river is being used in New York harbor for storage purposes.

AN APPRECIATIVE FARMER.

Mr. Crowell of Wallkill Writes About Farm Bureau Work.

The following letter from a well known and successful farmer in the town of Shawangunk has been received by The Freeman:

D. G. Crowell,
Fancy Fruits, Potatoes and
Farm Machinery.
Wallkill, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1916.
Editor, The Freeman,
Kingston, N. Y.
Dear Sir:—

It gives me pleasure to express my appreciation of the work accomplished and the service rendered through our farm bureau for the following reasons:

First—We feel that we have a manager who has our work at heart and whose duty is to keep us from costly experiences and unnecessary work.

Second—We are enabled through our Farm Bureau to keep in touch with the latest and most improved methods of agricultural practice; also with our experiment station.

Third—It is necessary that we have a medium through which to convey our troubles to the proper authorities, that we have somebody to represent us at our schools, at our fairs, at all agricultural organizations and to bring before the people at large the standing of Ulster county. This we feel has been done tactfully by our present manager.

Personally I feel I have profited in many ways. I have visited all the demonstration trains. I have attended all local meetings and demonstrations in my vicinity and have conducted experiments in alfalfa; also have been in the dairy testing association the past year. It is a stimulus to any man to be connected with such an organization.

Very truly yours,
D. G. CROWELL.

LONGYEAR PAROLED.

He Must Report Once Each Week to Herbert Carl.

Judge Jenkins has paroled Albert Longyear, formerly of Woodstock, in the custody of Herbert Carl as parole officer, and has directed that Longyear shall report to Mr. Carl weekly until the March term of county court.

Longyear was arrested last summer in Chicago, where he had fled after stealing money from one of his neighbors. He was indicted for grand larceny, but Judge Jenkins suspended sentence on Longyear's promise to make restitution. He has paid back part of the money, but his failure to continue payments led to the case being called to Judge Jenkins's attention in county court Monday, when Longyear's arrest was directed.

On Longyear's behalf it was urged that he had been out of work and that his wife was ill and he had no money with which to continue the restitution payments.

Judge Jenkins told Longyear he would give him one more chance, and that he must report to Herbert Carl each week regarding the progress he was making. Mr. Carl accepted the responsibility of acting as parole officer.

The Spring Primaries.

Members of the county committees of the various political parties will be elected next spring when the primaries are held to choose delegates and alternates to the national party conventions. This announcement has been made by the commissioners of elections. Each presidential year the election of the county committeemen is shifted to the spring primaries instead of held over until the fall primaries. In the three intervening years the county committeemen are elected in the fall primaries.

To Welcome State Lumbermen.

Poughkeepsie plans to welcome 600 lumbermen at the convention of retail lumber dealers of the state set for January 26, 27 and 28. Moving pictures of western lumbering operations and a telephone talk across the continent will feature the opening night's banquet.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Washington—President Wilson informed Senator Stone that senate's demand for immediate action in Mexico cannot be complied with. Administration will maintain "watchful waiting" tactics. Resolution by Senator Works directing president to intervene renewed battle in senate.

El Paso—State martial law exists here. Soldiers patrolling streets to prevent anti-Mexican riots. Americans living on border declare they will take affairs into their own hands. Petition for volunteers being circulated.

Vienna—Cettinje, Montenegrin capital, captured by Austro-Hungarians.

London—Dispatch from Rome says that Austria and not Montenegro proposed armistice. Believed Montenegro and Austria conclude separate peace. Austrians occupied Kuk.

Berlin—Weather conditions hampering military operations on Franco-German front. Nothing new on other fronts.

TURKS MURDER 1,500 ARMENIANS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 14.—The massacre of 1,500 more Armenians in December was reported in a telegram received today by Viscount Bryce from Erzeroum.

The telegram stated that the 1,500 Armenian men, women and children, forced by famine and cold to surrender, gave themselves up to the Turkish governor of Mush. The men were executed and the women and children drowned in the Euphrates.

AUTO VALET FINDS FATHER AND COIN

The return of Charles Wyckoff to Union Hill, N. J., after an absence of 21 years during which time he has made his pile in Nevada copper mines, has been featured in newspaper stories recently. Wyckoff came back to search for his two children whom he left as infants when he started west on the death of his wife more than a score of years ago. His daughter he found as Mrs. Carl E. Guenther, of Union Hill, while his son, Russell Wyckoff, was employed by George Goudy as a washer at the latter's garage in Highland, this county.

The elder Wyckoff says he has money enough for all and will take his children west with him. Russell needed no self-starting device to get a train for New York Tuesday when he left to join his father who, a week ago, he never knew existed.

STATE CONVENTION FEBRUARY 15

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 14.—The Republican state committee in its meeting here today decided to hold the state convention on February 15 in Carnegie Hall, this city. At this convention a new party platform will be constructed which will be based on the keynote of Republican status in national affairs. The state platform, therefore, undoubtedly will play a big part in the drafting of the new platform of the Republican party.

The convention on February 15 will not, it is said, go into discussion or speculation as to any possible candidate for the presidency. The date was agreed upon as the most convenient time for the attendance of United States Senator J. W. Wadsworth

Hearing Before Sheriff's Jury.

A hearing was had Thursday before a sheriff's jury in county court in the matter of the application of Charles Buley for the appointment of a committee for the person and estate of Alice Cudney, an alleged incompetent person, who is in the Middletown State Hospital. The property consists of $900, money in bank and personal property. Application will be made for his appointment as committee. He was represented by Newton Fessenden. Dr. Maurice W. Ashley testified as to the condition of the sick person.

Lake Switzerland Ice Harvest.

A large surface of the ice on Lake Switzerland has been ploughed and dozens of teams have been engaged in drawing it to the various ice houses in this village. The ice is about 15 inches thick. Mr. Reynolds is to be congratulated upon securing this lake, as the ice is of a finer quality than any other along the Ulster and Delaware.—Fleischmann Herald.

Carranza Promises Justice.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, head of the de facto government of Mexico, today pledged that the murderers of the seventeen Americans near Chihuahua City, Mexico, will be brought to justice. He wired Eliseo Arredondo, his ambassador in Washington, to make this statement to the press.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Jan. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wright Lent had as their guest recently Miss Brewster of Wappingers Falls at their home on Milton avenue.

Lorin Schantz is now thinking about getting those cool blocks of ice for the people to refresh themselves with next summer. If this weather continues he will have no trouble to get a good supply for daily use for we certainly are having one of the cold winters some of the older people are telling us of, and still many of us feel that those who went to Florida were fortunate for they are free from using the snow shovel, and perhaps escape colds, which are so prevalent here.

Alfred Palmer was in New York a few days recently and attended the automobile show and was very much interested in the fine display.

Dr. G. S. LaMoree, Mrs. G. H. Brown, Mrs. Charles Carpenter, Miss Julia Ferris and Mrs. R. H. Decker were among the people we saw in Poughkeepsie last Thursday.

The Raymond Riordon school has re-opened and the work will go on as usual. There are several new students and we hear they are going to rebuild. This was a popular place and a good school.

Clarence Smedes is now employed at West Park. We wish him success.

Several of the people from this place are now planning to go south for a few weeks.

Stockholders of the Highland Bank held a meeting Tuesday afternoon when the directors were elected and in the evening officers were elected to preside for the present year: President, G. W. Pratt; vice president, A. D. Lent; secretary and cashier, Charles L. DuBois.

Mrs. George Pratt has as her guest her mother, Mrs. Deyo, of New Paltz.

J. Redding was in this place Tuesday afternoon. He resides at Milton.

David Merritt was in Albany on business Wednesday.

Katherine Schantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, is ill at her home on Vineyard avenue with a severe cold.

Harcourt J. Pratt has been in New York a few days this week.

Miss Martha O'Dyer and two brothers from New York have arrived to attend school at Raymond Riordon. They are relatives of Mrs. Maud Adams, it is said. Mrs. Adams is still in California, where she has been sojourning for a few weeks.

Next Monday evening the O. E. S. will hold their regular meeting. They have not as yet installed all of their officers. The new matron wishes to meet all of the members at that time, so just be on hand and take up work and also help out by your presence, for that would be appreciated by all officers.

John C. Feeter has been in Albany a few days.

D. of A. will hold their regular meeting on next Wednesday evening, January 19. The councilor urges all officers to fill their respective chairs and all members are most cordially requested to be present as there is quite some business to come up before the house. They have a good attendance at their meetings and a great deal of interest is manifested.

The band have rehearsals every Wednesday evening. Look for some good music later on.

Dr. Carpenter of Poughkeepsie was a guest last Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter, of this place.

Several from this place attended the opera house this week for a good vaudeville. It is a fine electro-scenic production, "Visions in Fairyland." A two and a half hour entertainment and every one is just delighted with the production.

The auto show to be held in Poughkeepsie February 2, will be a great attraction and many are going from here, for it is near by, and so people from Ulster county will greatly enjoy it.

LEIBHARDT.

Leibhardt, Jan. 13.—Preaching services will be held in the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Heroy.

Word has been received at this place of the death of Mrs. Maria M. Wood at the home of her daughter at Mettacahonts.

Miss Nellie Wells of Krumville spent Sunday with Mrs. Warren Miller.

Mrs. Katherine Quick, an aged lady, died at her home Monday of pneumonia, being ill only two days. Mrs. Quick was in her 87th year and has lived nearly all her life in this place, and always was a kind mother and a good neighbor. Mrs. Quick is survived by three sons and one daughter, Uriah, Barry and Eugene, and Mrs. Minnie Barley, all of this place.

KYSERIKE.

On account of the illness of Miss Enkler, the teacher, there was no school at Kripplebush last week.

Miss Viola M. Davis spent Wednesday with Mrs. Peter L. Davis and Mrs. Ray Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Lockwood visited Whitfield on Tuesday.

Elmer H. Pratt and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pratt, Jr., and daughter, Vivian, visited Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Steen on Tuesday at High Falls.

George LeFever is packing apples for Charles Hardenbergh at Stone Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Steen visited Cottekill on Wednesday.

Elmer H. Pratt and Emmett Van Demark visited High Falls on Tuesday evening.

Cyrus Depuy has been ill with the grip the past week.

A number from this place attended the dance at John Van Wagenen's at Lomontville Wednesday evening, returning home in the wee small hours of the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Lockwood called on Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pratt, Jr., Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Charles Davis and son have been ill with grip the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Van Demark of Kyserike gave a surprise party in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen, on Saturday evening, January 8. Various games were indulged in throughout the evening. Several piano selections were rendered by Miss Helen Van Demark. At a late hour refreshments were served, consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cake and ice cream. Games were again indulged in until the midnight hour, when the guests departed for their homes, assuring Miss Van Demark that she was a royal entertainer. Guests were present from The Vly, Olive Bridge, Lyonsville, Kripplebush and Whitfield.

The Foresters are planning a dance to be given the 18th of this month.

BREAD GOODNESS

To be indifferent to the quality of the food you require is to let go your hold on personal pride, to ignore the values of hygienic law and deny yourself peace of mind. Is such deprivation sensible when there is no need of it?

Teichler's Steamed Bread

supplies the proof. Made in Kingston's Most Sanitary Bakery, of the choicest materials that money can buy, there is no reason why it should not be a very delightful, appetizingly-flavored, nourishing food—"the staff of life" in its truest sense.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Genio Goetchius of Livingston street has returned from an extended visit with her daughter at Union Hill, N. J.

Henry Cordes, deputy past master, is confined to his home on Ulster avenue with illness.

Proprietor Kless of the Crystal Lake House on the South Side has the hotel prettily decorated on the outside with different colored incandescent electric lights.

Saugerties schools will reopen Monday, the epidemic of contagious diseases, principally measles, having been checked.

Mrs. A. A. Katt of Ulster avenue is one of the many grip sufferers.

William Mullen of West Bridge street, while hunting near Mount Marion, shot a jack rabbitt, weighing 16 pounds.

Mrs. Sam Goldberg and son of Livingston street have returned from a visit in Connecticut.

It is a matter of general comment the slackness and neglect to spread the heaps of snow that have laid on Main and Partition streets since the heavy snow storm. Upsets and runaways are not infrequent occurrences.

Bishop Oldham to Lecture.

Next Monday evening the first of the series of increasingly popular Post Jubilee Lectures will be given at the Fair Street Reformed Church by Bishop W. F. Oldham. All who heard Bishop Oldham last year were quite insistent that he should, if possible, be secured as one of the speakers again this year. Having spent the greater part of his life in lands across the water and having been privileged to know much of the inner spirit of these countries, it was by Bishop Oldham's own request that he chose as his subject, "America and the World Situation." All persons who have not yet secured their course tickets from Miss Harriet Case or the representative in their own church, will be able to secure them at this lecture, on Monday evening, which will begin at 8:15.

Not the Same.

On one occasion when "The Mikado" was being rehearsed Gilbert called out from the middle of the stalls, "There is a gentleman in the left group not holding his fan correctly." The stage manager appeared and explained. "There is one gentleman," he said, "who is absent through illness." "Ah," came the reply from the author in grave, matter of fact tones, "that is not the gentleman I am referring to."—Dundee Advertiser.

A False Note.

"I hear you calling me,'" warbled the daughter from the parlor.

"Yes," sang mother from the kitchen. "I want you to come here and help me with the dis-s-shes."

And then a profound silence reigned.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STICKERS

There is one kind of office, store factory or home help that every man and woman employer is always seeking—the kind of help that sticks to the job and makes good and to this kind of help the very best salaries are paid.

Now there is one variety of employe, which, above all others, is noted for being stickers and that variety is the kind secured through the Want Ads.

Give one of this kind of help a trial this January, 1916, and you will never have any other kind of people in your employ.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a meeting of the stockholders of the Kingston Iron and Ore Company, will be held at the office of the company, 280 Wall St., in the city of Kingston, county of Ulster and state of New York, on the 29th day of January, at ten o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing five directors for the ensuing year, and two inspectors of election to serve at the next annual meeting, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated, Kingston, New York, January 8th, 1916.

FRANK B. SEELEY,
Secretary.

An Impossible Ideal?

Perhaps, after all, the real danger is not that women will ever forget the value of the home and their obligation to it, but that men will never entirely learn them.

We are indebted to that gifted and charming essayist, Elizabeth Woodbridge, for the following: "To say that it is woman's task to make the home is to miss its most exquisite meaning. No one of the group can make the home, though any one can mar it. It must be made by all for the uses of all."

Well, if it is one thing for all to use the home, it is another thing for all—and by that we mean every one under the rooftree—to help make the home.

And we will probably never learn the true significance of this difference unless we first distinctly understand that making a home is more, far more, than a matter of cooking food and making beds, of fetching and carrying and running the vacuum cleaner.

There can be no quarrel with that division of labor which makes household tasks very largely a woman's business and breadwinning outside the home a man's business.

But after both men and women have accomplished thus much there still remains the finest part of the task of homemaking.

It lies in heart interest, in love for the home as an institution and in a thorough belief in its sacredness. A woman once said, "I can conceive of such a fine interpretation of the meaning and value of home that in case of difficulty or disagreement between two people the very ideal of the home itself would outweigh the personal element and conserve unity."

The idea that two people might be willing to submerge personal differences to the larger ideal of home itself may be an ambitious conception, but surely not impossible. And in this role of homemaker a man may serve as largely and as truly as a woman.

A NOVEL HAT.

This Chapeau Has All the Winter Hallmarks of Style.

Grimless, tall crowned and of black velvet, this interesting hat answers two other dictates of fashion, in that

JANUARY READINESS.

it features a stickup of glazed leather edged with fur. This kid wing is secured by two black velvet buttons nattily placed.

Chiffon Powder Puff Bags.

It is not a difficult feat to manufacture a wide mouthed bag from pink, blue or lavender chiffon gathered on to a round or oval embroidery ring. Hangers of satin ribbon to match the bag should be fastened across like the handle of a basket and tacked to the ring on either side with rosettes of the ribbon and small chiffon or satin roses. Within the bag put a dozen small puffs made of absorbent cotton, drawn in at one side like a made puff by a string of narrow ribbon. Hung in the guest room or on any dressing table these individual puffs will prove useful where there are visitors, and the puffs can be replaced as those used are thrown away.

Welsh Rabbit.

Cut one or two slices of white bread about a quarter of an inch thick, toast on both sides and butter well. Take half a pound of cheddar cheese, grate it and put it into a small pan with two tablespoonfuls of cream, a teaspoonful of mustard, a dust of pepper, and stir these all together over the fire till the mixture is like cream. Cut the toast into square pieces and place them on a hot dish. Pour the cheese mixture over them and serve at once.

Club Sandwiches.

On a slice of bread put a lettuce leaf, next slices of thin crisp bacon, next slices of chicken and mayonnaise; then cover with a slice of bread and toast lightly on either side.

Cutting.

Sappleigh—Robson is the biggest ass in town, but his wife is the cleverest woman I know—aw—present company excepted, of course.

Miss Keen—Yes, in both cases.—Boston Transcript.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Jan. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wright Lent had as their guest recently Miss Brewster of Wappingers Falls at their home on Milton avenue.

Lorin Schantz is now thinking about getting those cool blocks of ice for the people to refresh themselves with next summer If this weather continues he will have no trouble to get a good supply for daily use for we certainly are having one of the cold winters some of the older people are telling us of, and still many of us feel that those who went to Florida were fortunate for they are free from using the snow shovel, and perhaps escape colds, which are so prevalent here.

Alfred Palmer was in New York a few days recently and attended the automobile show and was very much interested in the fine display.

Dr. G. S. LaMoree, Mrs. G. H. Brown, Mrs Charles Carpenter, Miss Julia Ferris and Mrs. R. H. Decker were among the people we saw in Poughkeepsie last Thursday.

The Raymond Riordon school has re-opened and the work will go on as usual. There are several new students and we hear they are going to rebuild. This was a popular place and a good school.

Clarence Smedes is now employed at West Park. We wish him success.

Several of the people from this place are now planning to go south for a few weeks.

Stockholders of the Highland Bank held a meeting Tuesday afternoon when the directors were elected and in the evening officers were elected to preside for the present year: President, G W. Pratt; vice president, A. D Lent; secretary and cashier, Charles L. DuBois.

Mrs George Pratt has as her guest her mother, Mrs. Deyo, of New Paltz.

J. Redding was in this place Tuesday afternoon He resides at Milton.

David Merritt was in Albany on business Wednesday.

Katherine Schantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, is ill at her home on Vineyard avenue with a severe cold.

Harcourt J. Pratt has been in New York a few days this week.

Miss Martha O'Dyer and two brothers from New York have arrived to attend school at Raymond Riordon. They are relatives of Mrs. Maud Adams, it is said. Mrs. Adams is still in California, where she has been sojourning for a few weeks.

Next Monday evening the O. E. S. will hold their regular meeting. They have not as yet installed all of their officers The new matron wishes to meet all of the members at that time, so just be on hand and take up work and also help out by your presence, for that would be appreciated by all officers.

John C. Feeter has been in Albany a few days.

D. of A. will hold their regular meeting on next Wednesday evening, January 19. The councilor urges all officers to fill their respective chairs and all members are most cordially requested to be present as there is quite some business to come up before the house. They have a good attendance at their meetings and a great deal of interest is manifested.

The band have rehearsals every Wednesday evening. Look for some good music later on.

Dr. Carpenter of Poughkeepsie was a guest last Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter, of this place.

Several from this place attended the opera house this week for a good vaudeville. It is a fine electro-scenic production, "Visions in Fairyland." A two and a half hour entertainment and every one is just delighted with the production.

The auto show to be held in Poughkeepsie February 2, will be a great attraction and many are going from here, for it is near by, and so people from Ulster county will greatly enjoy it.

LEIBHARDT.

Leibhardt, Jan. 13.—Preaching services will be held in the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Heroy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Weaser of Ulster Heights were guests at the home of Msr. Agnes Brown on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. C. Snyder was a week end guest of Ellenville friends.

Miss Georgia Hornbeck was a pleasant caller at the homes of Mrs. Alexander Brown and Mrs. L. E. Lawrence. We were pleased to see Miss Georgia out again after a bad attack of grip and cold.

Arthur Quick has returned home from Bridgeport.

Edward DeWitt and Floyd Brown were out enjoying the nice sleighing Sunday.

Peter Barnhardt and William Markle are grip patients.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Quick of Tongore spent Sunday with Mrs. Juda Quick.

Mrs. Chancelor Quick is spending some time with her daughter and family, Mr and Mrs. William Hornbeck, at Whitfield.

Peter Lattermer was taken to the truant school at White Plains by Officer Addis on Tuesday.

Mrs. L. E. Lawrence was pleasantly entertained at the home of Miss Hilda Hornbeck on Sunday.

The young people enjoyed fine skating on Brown's pond on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Markle were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Romain Brown on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lounsbery of Mombaccus were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lounsbery Sunday.

Mrs. Perna Hornbeck and daughters, Annie and Mildred, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. DeWitt Sunday afternoon.

Henry Hummel wears a broad smile over the arrival of a young son. Born January 12. Both mother and child are doing fine.

Word has been received at this place of the death of Mrs. Maria M. Wood at the home of her daughter at Mettacahonts.

Miss Nellie Wells of Krumville spent Sunday with Mrs. Warren Miller.

Mrs Katherine Quick, an aged lady, died at her home Monday of pneumonia, being ill only two days. Mrs. Quick was in her 87th year and has lived nearly all her life in this place, and always was a kind mother and a good neighbor. Mrs. Quick is survived by three sons and one daughter, Uriah, Barry and Eugene, and Mrs. Minnie Barley, all of this place.

BREAD GOODNESS

To be indifferent to the quality of the food you require is to let go your hold on personal pride, to ignore the values of hygienic law and deny yourself peace of mind. Is such deprivation sensible when there is no need of it?

Teichler's Steamed Bread

supplies the proof. Made in Kingston's Most Sanitary Bakery, of the choicest materials that money can buy, there is no reason why it should not be a very delightful, appetizingly-flavored, nourishing food—"the staff of life" in its truest sense.

Telephone Calls:
New York Telephone—Main Office, Downtown, 1875. Uptown Office, 832.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 14, 1916.

Unterrified and as yet uninvestigated, the Public Service Commission of the Second district has presented a highly interesting report to the Legislature. The so-called jitney law and telephone regulation have added materially to the duties of the upstate body, nevertheless, the Commission handled a lot of increased business at a lessened expense. One surprising item is the fact that of $100,000 available for investigation of the New York city telephone situation, a remainder of $56,500 was actually turned back into the State treasury. Elimination of Yonkers grade crossings left a dispute with the New York Central railroad over the State's share of the cost which was settled satisfactorily for the State, which paid $138,000 instead of the $488,000 sought by the railway company. All in all, the ninth year of the Commission sums up as most efficient—from the Commission's standpoint.

Grade crossing elimination is a subject of deep interest to Kingston at this time in view of legislation proposed at Albany for a $25,000,000 bond issue for further elimination work of this character. This measure is backed by a powerful automobile lobby and calls for application of the "Safety First" principle on a scale of expenditure never before attempted. Of the danger of grade crossings and the usefulness of their being done away with, there can be no reasonable doubt. It is merely a question of money. If the State is to be pledged to the ambitious policy advanced at Albany, due provision should be made for grade crossing elimination in cities where the safety of thousands of foot passengers is imperilled daily. In rural sections where the need is chiefly in behalf of motor vehicles, these projects could well afford to wait until more pressing demands in the cities were given the attention they so well deserve at the hands of the State.

Oftentimes the ways of reform institutions pass all human understanding. Authorities of the Bedford Home for Women furnish an instance of this in their arrest of a young married woman in Poughkeepsie, who had broken her parole from the Home and quit a farm in Westchester county with a few articles of wearing apparel. Coming to Poughkeepsie, she prospered and obtained work and in due time a steady young husband who owned his own home. Here was reform working itself out in happy fashion. But at this stage enters Fate with her hands filled with red tape knotted with the girl's past life. A Home attendant took that girl from the home she had been able to make and from the husband who was willing to provide for her and stand sponsor for the parole. On the face of this story, it is time a Commission of Inquiry devoted some time to the mental processes which dictate the breaking up of homes in this fashion. Seldom have we read of a more serious attack upon ordinary rights usually ascribed to a man's home.

Albany newspapers find pleasure in comparing that city's 7.7 per cent increase in population since 1910 with that of other cities, notably Buffalo, which scored 7.3 per cent. Maybe, the press of the Capital City fails to take into consideration the fact that after 1910 the economy and retrenchment reign of Governor John A. Dix was begun, entailing the creation of so many new jobs in the State service at Albany as to cause a tremendous realty boom such as the city had not experienced in years. Credit to whom credit is due. Albany should not be misled by any false notions of industrial expansion being responsible for her boom. It is likely due to the prodigality of Governor Dix and his policy of thoughtfully providing for the army of unemployed within his own party.

A timely contribution to the literature of defense programs is offered by a Missouri correspondent who seeks legislation to encourage the wearing of whiskers, a fashion which, in the belief of this authority, would restore the race to former standards of virility and inspire martial spirit in the nation. While fanciful, the advice has the merit of being unusual. Indeed, it smacks seriously of the flavor of a presidential boom for some person or other, the initial effort being to create a popular impression that wearers of hairy facial appendages are naturally fitted to adorn high places and are, when all is said and done, the true prophets of a people. Yet we do not look with confidence to any general revival in the growing of whiskers. Safety razor advertising and the influence of the barber shops are factors too potent in our present civilization to permit any extensive response to the voice crying in the wilderness of unbarbered sections of the Middle West. Besides, sanitary standards are higher and, whether milksops or mollycoddles, it is extremely unlikely that American men will again affect whiskers, no matter what beneficial effect may be ascribed to such hirsute adornment, should the time ever come for the bullets of an invading foe to whistle through them.

WEST PARK

West Park, Jan. 13.—This scattered hamlet along the Hudson, and climbing the West Hill on the further slopes of which lie the famed Slab Sides, as well as the bungalows of the Booth Brothers of Poughkeepsie, will soon see the last of the summer residents. Many slow their good taste by remaining until the late fall, or even until the early winter, whilst enjoying their country homes. Mrs. J. J. Smith and family expect to leave for New York this week. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Walker, Miss Madge and Miss Katherin C. Walker, leave for California also this week. And Mr. and Mrs. William Van Benschoten left for Washington not very long ago.

With good sleighing, skiing, skating and coasting everyone who likes winter sports is satisfied.

Mrs. Harry Wallhead of Poughkeepsie gave a very interesting lecture at the school houseon Wednesday night on "England," with many photographs thrown upon the screen by a stereopticon. The members of the West Park Neighborhood Association are much indebted to Mrs. Wallhead, Mrs. J. J. Smith and others for many pleasant and instructive entertainments in the school house.

Some rather venturous persons were skating on the river Sunday afternoon, which to old blood seemed foolhardy.

William Schickle and daughter, Gretchen, called on friends on Sunday, and reports Miss Dorothy Schickle's health as improved. Miss Schickle is staying at Evergreen Lodge, Saranac Lake, in the Adirondacks.

Roscoe Terwilliger has been spending part of the holidays in Kingston.

Mrs. H. Hudson Covert will entertain a few friends at cards on Monday evening.

Mrs. Campion, who went to New York for a pleasure trip, was taken ill with the grip, and was prevented returning with her companion, Miss Hanna Akerlind.

Miss Nellie O'Brien and sister from Canada are in New York, intending among other pleasures, to hear grand opera.

The winter meeting of the Northern Conference of the Archdeaconry of Orange, is expected to be held at Ascension rectory on Friday, January 28.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, Jan. 13.—The tax ccllector will be at the post office on Tuesday, January 25, to receive taxes.

Miss Grace Ennist has gone to Poughkeepsie to spend some time.

Mrs. Mary Smith, who has been ill for some time, and who is under the care of Dr. W. E. E. Little, is not improving very rapidly at this writing.

Mrs. William Relyea entertained at her home on Wednesday, beside her parents, Mrs. John Gue of Creek Locks, Mrs. Ernest Wirth of Whiteport, Mrs. Willis DuBois and little son, Elwood, and Mrs. John Castor and little daughter, Genevieve and father.

Quilting is the order of the day around here among the ladies.

Andrew Castor filled his ice house on Tuesday of this week from the Whiteport pond.

Frank Van De Mark and Lewis Terhune paid a visit to Stone Ride on Tuesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., came on Tuesday to visit the Misses Douglass for a couple of days.

Mrs. Sarah Livingston, who has been sick with the grip for some time, is improving slowly, under the care of Dr. L. G. Rymph.

Miss Louise Virret visited Kingston on Wednesday.

The leader of the Christian Endeavor for Sunday evening was our pastor and for Sunday evening will be Mrs. Charles Rickard. Topic, "How to Work With Others." Ir. 14:1-7.

Mrs. Catherine Niebergall went on Wednesday of this week to spend a few days with relatives in Kingston.

Miss Florence Relyea went on Monday of this week to visit her sister, Mrs. Walter Connor, of Binnewater for a week.

BEARSVILLE.

Bearsville, Jan. 13.—Revival meetings are being held in the Wittenberg M. E. Church by Rev. G. O. Wilsey and Rev. Mr. Thompson.

Floyd Elwyn of Norwich, N. Y., who has been visiting his brothers, Leslie and Clyde Elwyn, at Mead's Mountain House, has returned home.

Mrs. G. Yerry called on Mr. and Mrs. William R. Shultis on Friday last.

Mrs. Francis Gridley of Sank Hollow visited Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Shultis a few days last week.

A. Rose and son, Ishmael, who have been visiting friends out of town, have returned home.

Shaffer Vredenburg made a business trip to Kingston on Monday.

Miss Myra Lasher is spending a few days in Kingston.

Miss Edna Shultis is visiting friends and relatives in New York.

Several from this place attended the farmers' institute in Firemen's Hall Thursday last.

"De only time you's justified in bein' a kicker," said Uncle Eben, "is when you's in swimmin'."—Washington Star.

"My dear, I thought every breath would be my last." "And, of course, it wasn't; how disappointing."—Buffalo Express.

"I wish I knew a way to get rid of the servant girl problem." "There is." "What is it?" "Do the work yourself."—Detroit Free Press.

"My face is my fortune," said the conscious beauty. "Well, it isn't necessary for you to be constantly flashing your roll," remarked the male cynic.—Judge.

Bix—"Scientists claim now that vegetables have feelings, emotions." Dix—"That's right. We frequently see cabbages with swelled heads."—Boston Transcript.

"I suppose it is hardly necessary for me to tell you, sir, that I am in love with your daughter," said the trembling suitor. "Not at all, young man," replied her father. "And, furthermore, I've seen enough idiotic symptoms in the past month to convince me that your passion is reciprocated." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Compulsory.

A certain amateur aviator talked recently about a flying trip witn a professional, when he fell 1,200 feet into the water without knowing it.

"I wasn't frightened," he said with a smile. "I thought that our swift descent was a piece of fancy flying. I am, in fact, as ignorant of aviation as the little boy was ignorant of history.

"'Describe the Order of the Bath,' his teacher asked this little boy.

"'It's very ancient,' he answered. 'It goes back to the time when they didn't take no baths except by order.'"—New York Press.

Bragging.

Two close neighbors were in conversation.

"Well!" said the one, "you haven't any call to be proud; my father's taller than your."

"Bet you a shilling he ain't!" was the retort.

"Bet you he is!' said the first youngster. "My father can see over the wall at the end of the garden. Your can't."

"Yes, he can," responded the other, "with his hat on."—London Opinion.

When John D., Jr., Was a Boy.

"It's no wonder young John D., Jr., made a hit out there in Colorado in a very nest of enemies. Young John D. was always a resourceful chap."

The speaker was a Baptist deacon of Cleveland. He went on:

"Once, when he was a little boy, John D., Jr., said to his father:

"'Father, George Smith is going to have a birthday party, and I've got to give him a present.'

"But John D., Sr., had been attending a congressional anti-trust investigation that day, and his cross-examination had ruffled up his temper, so he snarled:

"'Oh, it's a present here and a present there all the time. I'm just about sick of it.'

"John D., Jr.'s face fell, but he said nothing. He just turned and walked out of the room.

"Well, the next day things were better at the investigation, and John D., Sr., regretted his harshness toward his little son. He came home that evening and said genially:

"'Go look in my overcoat pocket, laddie. You'll find a nice present there for your friend Smith's birthday party.'

"But John D., Jr., shook his head.

"'It's too late now, father,' he said. 'I licked him today so's he wouldn't invite me.'"—New York World.

Deliver Us!

George W. Perkins, in a Y. M. C. A. address on temperance in Chicago, began:

"A corking time is a good time for any young man, but may heaven deliver us all from the kind of corking time that means an uncorking one."—Choicago Record Herald.

No Actor.

When James A. Garfield was president of Oberlin College a man brought for entrance as a student his son, for whom he wished a shorter course than the regular one.

"The boy can never take all that in," said the father. "He wants to get through quicker. Can you arrange it for him."

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Garfield. "He can take a short course; it all depends on what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak He takes a hundred years, but He takes only two months to make a squash."—Christian Register.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Jan. 13.—There will be an oyster supper at the M. E. parsonage Wednesday evening, January 19.

The annual installation of officers of Rondout Valley Lodge, K. of P., No. 393 was held at their rooms Tuesday evening, Jan. 11. District Deputy Grand Chancellor, William C. Ohley; grand master of arms, Mr. Milles, and grand prelate, John Perks of Saugerties were present and installed the following officers: Grand Councillor, Eli Evans; vice grand councillor, S. A. Cross; prelate, Joseph Evans; master of work, C. Christian; keeper of records and seal, Bertram Evans; master finance, J. H. Smith; master exchequer, N. V. Smith, Lemuel Atkins; inner guard, R. W. Van Wagonen; outer guard, J. H. Chase. An oyster supper was served and several members addressed the people. Visiting members were Frank Stephens of Middletown and Clayton Christian of Springtown. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Terwilliger, Eugene Weaver and Simon Prindle of Mohonk Lake.

Owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Garrison and several of the scholars there was no school in this place this week.

When returning from the installation on Tuesday evening the sleigh containing the Mohonk members was overturned at the ice turn at the end of the church lane, the horses running away, one of them being hurt quite badly. Eugene Weaver was bruised and the other occupants shaken up.

Miss Elizabeth Lounsbery was a guest of Mrs. Mary K. Cross on Wednesday afternoon.

H. B. DeWitt drove to Kingston on Tuesday.

Mrs. Jennie Van Wagonen has gone to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Baldwin, at East Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Benson Elmendorf of High Falls attended the installation service on Tuesday evening.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1494—A Jaunty Suit Style.

This attractive combination is splendid for shepherd check, mixed suitings, serge, cheviot and broadcloth, and also nice for silk, velvet and corduroy. The coat could be finished with or without the strapped plaits and yoke facings. The skirt is a very pleasing model. It has six gores, with the fulness disposed of in deep plaits. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 6 yards of 36 inch material for a 16 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1915-16 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

BATTERED BENNETT GETS NO DAMAGES

After being out only fifteen minutes, a verdict of no cause of action was rendered at 5 o'clock Thursday evening by the jury in the case of John Bennett against Elmer and Alonzo Lockwood to recover $1,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been incurred in a fight in the Libertyville Hotel on the evening of August 14, 1915. The cause of the trouble was an alienation suit brought by Bennett in December against Alonzo Lockwood but which never reached the courts. Although Alonzo declared himself innocent of the charges he offered to settle the matter by paying Bennett the sum of $1,250 rather than have his wife and family submitted to the publicity which is attached to a trial that the fracas was caused by the testimony of witnesses proved that Bennett invoked the fight with the hope of getting more money from the unlucky Lockwood brothers. Plaintiff's attorney failed to prove that the fracas was caused by the sting of the former trouble between the two parties. Several issues in the trial, which lasted all day, made a very interesting session.

Bennett, who is a boatman, has not lived with his wife for a year, and on August 14 was on his way to visit his daughter at Alsen. He stopped at Feinberg's hotel at New Paltz in the afternoon and according to the witness, William Van Leuven, threatened at that time to "get" Lockwood. Bennett urged Van Leuven to accompany him to Libertyville but the witness refused to go.. The plaintiff had been drinking quite freely at New Paltz, being in a good financial condition on account of his income from boating.

The two Lockwood brothers were already at the Libertyville hotel when Bennett arrived. According to Alonzo's testimony, he went out on the porch as Bennett entered because he did not want to have any trouble with the man who had formerly made him pay the $1,250. Elmer, however, remained in the bar-room with Bennett. Alonzo went through the hall to a room across the hall from the place where Elmer and Bennett were and sat there drinking with several others. Later in the night Bennett, calling Elmer vile names and wielding a beer bottle over his head, threatened to let it fall on Elmer, who in self defense, struck Bennett, knocking him to the ground. At this point Alonzo came on the scene and told his brother to let the injured man alone. According to the stories of most of the witnesses the injured man went outside, harnessed his horse and drove away. It seems that Bennett had been drinking heavily and treating all the hangers-on in the bar-room. Not being able to "pick a scrap" with the man he was after, Alonzo, Bennett was tantalizing Elmer all the night about his brother's former actions with his wife, and although Elmer tried to refrain from any trouble, there were several arguments during the evening.

While Bennett was on the witness stand he gave just the opposite story to that told by the Lockwoods. He said that the brothers were "after" him all the night and when he left the hotel to drive to his daughter's home at Alsen they attacked him and cut open his lip, polished his eyes, swelled his jaw, and generally disabled him physically and mentally, being knocked senseless. He made no mention of the beer bottle which figured so largely in the testimony of the defense's witnesses.

Max Cohen, proprietor of the Libertyville hotel, in his testimony, said that on the Sunday after the smashup, Bennett was already preparing for his battle in the courts. He stopped at the hotel and exhibited the bundle containing the bloody shirt that was offered as evidence by the plaintiff in court yesterday. None of the witnesses examined had noticed a prevalence of blood on the night of the fight, but Bennett said that he was going to Kingston to see what he could get in the courts for the damage done to him. He come on to this city and had his photograph taken at Pennington's to show in court the amount of damages incurred in the fight. Louis Merrilat, the photographer, testified in court that the picture was taken on Sunday, the fifteenth, and was a reproduction of the face that sat before his kodac on that day.

Albert Cross, an elderly man who lives at New Paltz, testified that Alonzo started the trouble by talking about Bennett's wife. Matters were becoming interesting when Lawyer Merritt squeezed a few words from the witness concerning the receipt of money for giving false testimony in the case, but it turned out that the witness was deaf and misunderstood the questions put to him. The fact that Cross is a crony of the plaintiff and has been for forty years gave food to defense's attorney's imagination in regard to the alleged bribery.

Body Identified.

The body of the young man killed by the West Shore train near Catskill has been positively identified. Thursday Mrs. Edmund Post, of the Saugerties Road, had examined the clothing of the young man and had declared it to be that worn by her son. Dr. Augustus C. Post. Dr. Post, his mother said, had returned Christmas Day from the west, and had not left the place since the day before Wednesday, when he went away. A little later Henry Van Orden positively indentified the body as that of Dr. Post. Mrs. Van Orden said Post had worked for him on and off, and that he knew him perfectly. The body was also indentified by a number of other men. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at three o'clock at the Kortz undertaking rooms at Catskill. Interment in the Catskill cemetery.

How Soldiers Keep Strong

Preparedness against sickness is the big, important thing to fighting soldiers. A sick soldier cannot work with vigor any more than you can work with energy when you are weak, tired, almost sick.

One efficient warring government is giving each soldier a vial of cod liver oil every day because far-reaching experiments show how wonderfully it increases the calories of human energy and gives them strength to prevent winter sickness. Is this not convincing proof that you need it at this season to enliven your blood to prevent sickness?

Cod liver oil is scarce and high-priced this season and many inferior grades may be offered. But remember that which guarantees pure cod liver oil—free from alcohol and drugs.

If you are subject to colds, throat or lung troubles; if you are easily tired, run-down or have thin blood, you should take Scott's Emulsion at once. If your children are backward in growth, frail or anæmic, nothing will do them so much good as Scott's Emulsion, and for girls and women in home or business it is nature's great strength-builder.

Scott's is not a "secret" medicine. It is a rich blood-food and a pure tonic; it contains nothing harmful and is pleasant to take. It is prescribed by physicians and liberally used in hospitals and private schools.

One bottle may prevent a sickness.
At any drug store—Start it to-day.

ALWAYS INSIST ON SCOTT'S.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In the surrogate's court, the will of Henry Foeller of the town of Wawarsing has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill. The testator gives his estate to his wife, J. C. S. Dorothea Foeller, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed August 21, 1886, and witnessed by John G. Gray and T. H. Gray of Ellenville. The value of the real estate is $100 and the personal property amounts to $50. H. Westlake Coons appeared for the executrix.

Letters of administration on the estate of Harold M. Linson of this city were issued to his brother, John J. Linson. The value of the estate is $1,000 personal property. Roger H. Loughran appeared for the administrator.

Letters of administration with the will annexed on the estate of Jacob G. Keator of this city were issued to his daughter, Deborah S. Rhinehart of Binnewater. Virgil B. Van Wagonen appeared for the administratrix.

In the estate of Samuel B. Miller of the town of Lloyd, a petition for a judicial settlement was filed by George S. LaMoree, the administrator, and a citation was issued returnable January 24. Solomon G. Carpenter appeared for the petitioner.

They Had to Wait.

They wanted to be married in New Jersey, at least the man did, and he figured that if he left Ulster county with his bride-to-be on a Saturday afternoon they could be married on Sunday morning and return home in time for him to go to work on Monday; but then the best laid plans do not always work out, as the couple from a nearby hamlet soon realized. They had no trouble in leaving the county and getting to New Jersey, but when they attempted to get married they found that the laws of New Jersey required a residence of at least 48 hours and so both the man and the woman were forced to extend their vacation two whole days in order to have the marriage knot tied; but tied it finally was.

PACAMA.

Pacama, Jan. 13.—Mrs. S. L. Jones and family spent Saturday with her mother.

Wants to Keep Skunks.

The first application for the organization of a skunk farm was made to the state conservation commission on Wednesday by Peter Renno of Millbrook, Dutchess county. Some time ago Mr. Renno purchased a farm in the town of Washington, that county, and started a skunk farm and now has a colony of over 200 skunks. He plans to raise at least a thousand a year and the pelts at the present price will return him about $7,000 a year. The law provided that skunks can be raised for fur bearing purposes by application to the state commission for a permit.

Church Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church of Livingston street was held on Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Elder, John Buddenhagen; deacon, Frederick Studt; trustees, Henry Topp, Fred Sahloff of No. 127 Hasbrouck avenue, and Albert Topp. The newly elected officers will be installed on Sunday, January 23.

QUARRYVILLE.

Quarryville, Jan. 13.—The revival services in he M. E. Church are continuing to grow in interest. Sunday afternoon and evening there were about 150 present. Some are starting on the better way and a number are manifesting a desire to do so. Meetings every evening this week except Saturday, at 7:30.

Miss Kathryn Perry had the misfortune to fall one day last week and break her arm. Dr. Gifford set the injured member.

Mrs. Henry Hallenbeck is suffering with the grip.

Mrs. Claude Post has been confined to her home by the grip.

The many friends of Mrs. Anna Daringer were pleased to see her able to be out to preaching sunday afternoon.

Charles D. Snyder is visiting at Charles W. Cooke's.

Herrick Convery is confined to his bed by illness. Dr. Gifford is in attendance.

The velours hat with wool embroidery trimming has proved one of the smartest novelties of the season. In many instances a handy needle woman purchased a becoming felt or velours shape and then worked in a smart wool effect either in a border or some floral design. In either case the result proved very effective. This black velours hat is shown with a half inch binding of wool embroidery in grey, finish to one side in a double loop ornament and brightened with two novel buttons.

The Children's Teeth

are as important to be looked after as are the older people's—perhaps more so. Their teeth may not ache nor be decayed—they should not be allowed to get so. A tooth in time, as well as a stich in time, saves nine. Bring the little folks into our office, and their teeth will be carefully looked after. First-class work at moderate prices.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Genio Goetchius of Livingston street has returned from an extended visit with her daughter at Union Hill, N. J.

Henry Cordes, deputy past master, is confined to his home on Ulster avenue with illness.

Proprietor Kless of the Crystal Lake House on the South Side has the hotel prettily decorated on the outside with different colored incandescent electric lights.

Saugerties schools will reopen Monday, the epidemic of contagious diseases, principally measles, having been checked.

Mrs. A. A. Katt of Ulster avenue is one of the many grip sufferers.

William Mullen of West Bridge street, while hunting near Mount Marion, shot a jack rabbitt, weighing 16 pounds.

Mrs. Sam Goldberg and son of Livingston street have returned from a visit in Connecticut.

It is a matter of general comment the slackness and neglect to spread the heaps of snow that have laid on Main and Partition streets since the heavy snow storm. Upsets and runaways are not infrequent occurrences.

Bishop Oldham to Lecture.

Next Monday evening the first of the series of increasingly popular Post Jubilee Lectures will be given at the Fair Street Reformed Church by Bishop W. F. Oldham. All who heard Bishop Oldham last year were quite insistent that he should, if possible, be secured as one of the speakers again this year. Having spent the greater part of his life in lands across the water and having been privileged to know much of the inner spirit of these countries, it was by Bishop Oldham's own request that he chose as his subject, "America and the World Situation." All persons who have not yet secured their course tickets from Miss Harriet Case or the representative in their own church, will be able to secure them at this lecture, on Monday evening, which will begin at 8.15.

Not the Same.

On one occasion when "The Mikado" was being rehearsed Gilbert called out from the middle of the stalls, "There is a gentleman in the left group not holding his fan correctly." The stage manager appeared and explained. "There is one gentleman," he said, "who is absent through illness." "Ah," came the reply from the author in grave, matter of fact tones, "that is not the gentleman I am referring to."—Dundee Advertiser.

A False Note.

"I hear you calling me," warbled the daughter from the parlor.

"Yes," sang mother from the kitchen. "I want you to come here and help me with the dis-s-shes."

And then a profound silence reigned.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STICKERS

There is one kind of office, store factory or home help that every man and woman employer is always seeking—the kind of help that sticks to the job and makes good and to this kind of help the very best salaries are paid.

Now there is one variety of employe, which, above all others, is noted for being stickers and that variety is the kind secured through the Want Ads.

Give one of this kind of help a trial this January, 1916, and you will never have any other kind of people in your employ.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a meeting of the stockholders of the Kingston Iron and Ore Company, will be held at the office of the company, 289 Wall St., in the city of Kingston, county of Ulster and state of New York, on the 29th day of January, at ten o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing five directors for the ensuing year, and two inspectors of election to serve at the next annual meeting, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

An Impossible Ideal?

Perhaps, after all, the real danger is not that women will ever forget the value of the home and their obligation to it, but that men will never entirely learn them.

We are indebted to that gifted and charming essayist, Elizabeth Woodbridge, for the following. "To say that it is woman's task to make the home is to miss its most exquisite meaning. No one of the group can make the home, though any one can mar it. It must be made by all for the uses of all."

Well, if it is one thing for all to use the home, it is another thing for all—and by that we mean every one under the rooftree—to help make the home.

And we will probably never learn the true significance of this difference unless we first distinctly understand that making a home is more, far more, than a matter of cooking food and making beds, of fetching and carrying and running the vacuum cleaner.

There can be no quarrel with that division of labor which makes household tasks very largely a woman's business and breadwinning outside the home a man's business.

But after both men and women have accomplished thus much there still remains the finest part of the task of homemaking.

It lies in heart interest in love for the home as an institution and in a thorough belief in its sacredness. A woman once said, "I can conceive of such a fine interpretation of the meaning and value of home that in case of difficulty or disagreement between two people the very ideal of the home itself would outweigh the personal element and conserve unity."

The idea that two people might be willing to submerge personal differences to the larger ideal of home itself may be an ambitious conception, but surely not impossible. And in this role of homemaker a man may serve as largely and as truly as a woman.

A NOVEL HAT.

This Chapeau Has All the Winter Hallmarks of Style.

Grimless, tall crowned and of black velvet, this interesting hat answers two other dictates of fashion, in that

JANUARY READINESS.

Chiffon Powder Puff Bags.

It is not a difficult feat to manufacture a wide monthed bag from pink, blue or lavender chiffon gathered on to a round or oval embroidery ring. Hangers of satin ribbon to match the bag should be fastened across like the handle of a basket and tacked to the ring on either side with rosettes of the ribbon and small chiffon or satin roses. Within the bag put a dozen small puffs made of absorbent cotton, drawn in at one side like a made puff by a string of narrow ribbon. Hung in the guest room or on any dressing table these individual puffs will prove useful where there are visitors, and the puffs can be replaced as those used are thrown away.

Welsh Rabbit.

Cut one or two slices of white bread about a quarter of an inch thick, toast on both sides and butter well. Take half a pound of cheddar cheese, grate it and put it into a small pan with two tablespoonfuls of cream, a teaspoonful of mustard, a dust of pepper, and stir these all together over the fire till the mixture is like cream. Cut the toast into square pieces and place them on a hot dish. Pour the cheese mixture over them and serve at once.

Club Sandwiches.

On a slice of bread put a lettuce leaf, next slices of thin crisp bacon, next slices of chicken and mayonnaise; then cover with a slice of bread and toast lightly on either side.

Cutting.

Will Soon Melt Away Under The Burning Sun of Low January Sale Prices

Certain it is, too, that the values were never bigger--- the garments never prettier or more dainty. Which leads to this word of advice: We cannot urge too strongly the wisdom of early selection, for, owing to the scarcity of made-up garments, we cannot positively promise to duplicate these values when our present supply is exhausted. We will if we can; but we cannot promise.

MRS. LAFRENTZ

29 WALL ST. KINGSTON

VETERAN BASEBALL UMPIRE GIVEN PLACE

Hank O'Day, Who Returns to National League Staff.

Hank O'Day was not resting on his oars while peace was being discussed in Cincinnati. He read between the lines that the league would get together and lost no time in deciding that he desired to be with the big show next season. Of course, the National league has been his first love in baseball, and it is in that organization that he has applied for his position on the staff of arbiters.

"Don't forget that I want to be on your staff next season."

This was the substance of a telegram President John Tener received from O'Day. The former was pleased that the veteran and one of the best umpires in the game asked to come back. Tener declared he was glad to get O'Day's message and lost no time in wiring to Secretary John Heydler of the National league to send Hank a contract.

Tener hesitated last season before he signed O'Day, but he did this because his list was complete and he did not deem it justice to dispose of a man who was delivering satisfactorily. The chance came when Quigley was sick. Bill Hart retired and then O'Day was put back on the staff.

Ball players in the National league say that O'Day was the cleverest umpire in the league, not because of his ability to call balls and strikes, but because he knew how to handle the men. He has had less trouble than any official of the National league and it is due to the fact that he knows how to quell the sudden outbursts of wrath that come through close decisions.

NEW COLLEGE GAME

A new game, which is a combination of football and basketball, is being tried out at Cornell. "Gridiron" is the name of the new sport, which has been invented by Prof. C. V. Young. It is played with a Rugby football on the regular gridiron, by teams of eleven men, but has some likeness to basketball. Running with the ball for more than five yards is illegal, tackling below the waist is forbidden and frequent passing of the ball is encouraged. The game may be developed to take the place of soccer in college sport at Cornell.

"POP'S" CIGARS WIN RACES

Grand Old Man of Harness Racing Never Seen Without Strong Havana Ornamenting Face.

Of course everybody knows that "Barney" Oldfield never drives his speed car without a strong Havana cigar ornamenting his frontal piece. And nobody ever saw a picture of old "Pop" Geers without his eternal cigar. Oldfield asserts the weed steadies his nerves. Geers says it helps to concentrate his mind.

It's a fact that the "grand old man" of the harness world is just about as careful in the selection of his cigars as in naming his futurity and stake candidates. They are made of Cuban tobacco and wholesale at six cents apiece. So it will be seen that "Pop's" cigar bill is no small item. That "Pop" smokes to good advantage is evidenced by the money he has won in 25 seasons, which is said to total something over one million good dollars.

Gordon Meeking to Turn Pro.

Gordon Meeking, the blond giant, who played forward positions on the Victoria hockey team of Toronto a few years ago, is contemplating turning professional. 25% OFF WINTER CLEARING SALE

Last Year, at this time, we thought we had reached the pinnacle of success in this semi-annual event---But that was a hugely mistaken idea---Because this season's selling has so far outdone last year's that a comparison is surprising.

Season after season the patronage of this sale grows larger and still larger. The mere announcement that the sale is on, is sufficient to bring the people to this store from a hundred miles around---Regardless of weather conditions they come, and keep a-coming, with the following 25 per cent off line-up in mind.

TOD SLOAN.

FORMER KING OF TURF TO TAKE UP STAGE WORK TO RECOUP DEPLETED FORTUNE.

(Tod Sloan, As He Looks Today.)

New York, Jan. 14.—Tod Sloan, probably the most famous American jockey who ever straddled a race horse, is going on the stage to bolster up his fortune which has dwindled away in the last few years. He will appear as a jockey in a play founded on a racing story.

Sloan recently returned to American after being deported from England, where he has made his home for several years, as an undesirable citizen. It was alleged Sloan had been running a gambling house in London, where several British officers lost large sums.

Too Well Cleaned.

Papa—I cannot conceive what is the matter with my watch. I think it must want cleaning. Pet Child—Oh, no, papa, dear! I don't think it needs cleaning, because baby and I had it washing in the basin for ever so long this morning."—London Tit-Bits.

He Couldn't Dodge.

He—As it is to be a secret engagement, dearest, it would not be wise for me to give you a ring at present. She—Oh, but I could wear it on the wrong hand, you know!—Exchange.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Jan. 16.—The following from this place attended the public installation ceremonies of Sheridan Council, O. U. A. M., in Ulster Park Tuesday evening: Henry E. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Carey C. Secor, Mrs. Elliot Hotaling, John Cure and Emma Cure. They reported a delightful time and did not return home until the wee small hours of morning.

The prayer service to be held in the Reformed Church this evening will be in charge of Andrew M. Taylor.

Mrs. Kate M. Ronk is ill at her home on Broadway.

Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias will meet this evening in their Castle Hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Elmer Hutchings of Broadway, who has been ill of grip is better and able to be out again.

The "Goo Goo" Club is very anxious to make this, their third dance, a banner one and they depend on your hospitality. You lovers of the light fantastic, are you with them Monday evening, Jan. 17, at Pythian Hall? Keep the date in mind.

Services will be held in the Reformed and Methodist Churches this evening. Rev. V. D. Mattice of Kingston will be in charge of the meeting in the Methodist Church. Rev. Mr. Mattice has many friends in this village, who will be pleased to hear him again. Professor Phillips of Kingston will be present and sing and a sleigh load of people from Esopus are expected to attend the meeting. As this is the closing meeting for this week, let those who have been regular attendants at the services and others be present and receive a blessing of helpfulness.

Trojans Lose at East Kingston.

In one of the fastest and cleanest games of the season played at the East Kingston Hall on Thursday evening the Trojans were defeated by the fast East Kingston five. The Trojans missed many baskets. They couldn't locate the basket in the first session but came back strong in the second period. Dick Henebery, the big center of the East Kingston five, played in league style, doing the best and fastest floor work done in some time, simply losing his own players on the floor and making some sensational shots. Veteran Pete Norton, who was on the coach line for the Trojans, claimed if they followed his orders the score would be worse, so Pete resigfined as coach. Music was furnished by Murray and Joseph of Kingston for dancing. The score:

KERHONKSON.

Kerhonkson, Jan. 14.—The Willing Workrs of the Methodist Church will give a measuring party in the basement of the church Wednesday evening, January 19. Every one is invited to come and bring five cents for each foot they are high and one cent for each inch over the foot. A free entertainment with coffee and sandwiches will be part of the evening's pleasures. Games will be provided for those that enjoy them and a general good time is expected. Ice cream will be on sale.

Mrs. Hiram Wells and daughter are visiting Mrs. Silas Kimbark in Kingston.

Mrs. John Whittaker and Mrs. Rachel Munson will entertain the "Tens" at the home of Mrs. Whittaker on Friday evening of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bilyou have moved in the house with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burger.

Joseph Pettibone is spending a few days in Albany on business.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church had a dime social Friday night of last week.

Mrs. Rachel Hendrickson entertained the older people at her home Friday evening.

The "Tens" seem to have started up in good shape and these socials are certainly very pleasing diversions at very little cost.

The "Old District School" is a play that will be given by the choir of the Reformed Church the latter part of this month. This is a new version and has never been given in these parts before. Watch out for the date and be sure to come and bring all your friends. They will enjoy a good laugh with you. The musical part of the play is very amusing. You can't help but enjoy Ben Butler and Patience Puddyfoot. Oh, my.

The Sunshine Society of Wawarsing met at the home of Mrs. Jerome Snyder Thursday of last week to elect officers for 1916. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Asa Gray, president; Mrs. Jerome Snyder, vice president; Mrs. Slater, secretary; Mrs. Churchill, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. Kortright, treasurer; Mrs. H. Bevier, assistant treasurer; Mrs. David Weise, organist; entertainment committee, Mrs. D. Wiese, Mrs. G. Churchill, Mrs. J. Snyder. After the business of the day was completed a very pleasing program was enjoyed, which consisted of recitation, Mrs. John Johnson; reading, Mrs. Gordon Churchill; piano solo, Mrs. David Wiese; recitation, Miss Goretta Bevier of Napanoch; reading, Mrs. Arthur Hoornbeek; piano solo, Miss Lita Hanker of Kerhonkson; reading, Miss Lillian Green. After which refreshments were served. Twenty-seven members were present and three visitors. This society is to be congratulated on its method of conducting its meetings and the unity with which all the members work together.

Telephone Calls:
New York Telephone—Main Office, Downtown, 1875. Uptown Office, 832.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 14, 1916.

Unterrified and as yet uninvestigated, the Public Service Commission of the Second district has presented a highly interesting report to the Legislature. The so-called jitney law and telephone regulation have added materially to the duties of the upstate body, nevertheless, the Commission handled a lot of increased business at a lessened expense. One surprising item is the fact that of $100,000 available for investigation of the New York city telephone situation, a remainder of $56,500 was actually turned back into the State treasury. Elimination of Yonkers grade crossings left a dispute with the New York Central railroad over the State's share of the cost which was settled satisfactorily for the State, which paid $138,000 instead of the $488,000 sought by the railway company. All in all, the ninth year of the Commission sums up as most efficient—from the Commission's standpoint.

Grade crossing elimination is a subject of deep interest to Kingston at this time in view of legislation proposed at Albany for a $25,000,000 bond issue for further elimination work of this character. This measure is backed by a powerful automobile lobby and calls for application of the "Safety first" principle on a scale of expenditure never before attempted. Of the danger of grade crossings and the usefulness of their being done away with, there can be no reasonable doubt. It is merely a question of money. If the State is to be pledged to the ambitious policy advanced at Albany, due provision should be made for grade crossing elimination in cities where the safety of thousands of foot passengers is imperilled daily. In rural sections where the need is chiefly in behalf of motor vehicles, these projects could well afford to wait until more pressing demands in the cities were given the attention they so well deserve at the hands of the State.

Oftentimes the ways of reform institutions pass all human understanding. Authorities of the Bedford Home for Women furnish an instance of this in their arrest of a young married woman in Poughkeepsie, who had broken her parole from the Home and quit a farm in Westchester county with a few articles of wearing apparel. Coming to Poughkeepsie, she prospered and obtained work and in due time a steady young husband who owned his own home. Here was reform working itself out in happy fashion. But at this stage enters Fate with her hands filled with red tape knotted with the girl's past life. A Home attendant took that girl from the home she had been able to make and from the husband who was willing to provide for her and stand sponsor for the parole. On the face of this story, it is time a Commission of Inquiry devoted some time to the mental processes which dictate the breaking up of homes in this fashion. Seldom have we read of a more serious attack upon ordinary rights usually ascribed to a man's home.

Albany newspapers find pleasure in comparing that city's 7.7 per cent increase in population since 1910 with that of other cities, notably Buffalo, which scored 7.3 per cent. Maybe the press of the Capital City fails to take into consideration the fact that after 1910 the economy and retrenchment reign of Governor John A. Dix was begun, entailing the creation of so many new jobs in the State service at Albany as to cause a tremendous realty boom such as the city had not experienced in years. Credit to whom credit is due. Albany should not be misled by any false notions of industrial expansion being responsible for her boom. It is likely due to the prodigality of Governor Dix and his policy of thoughtfully providing for the army of unemployed within his own party.

A timely contribution to the literature of defense programs is offered by a Missouri correspondent who seeks legislation to encourage the wearing of whiskers, a fashion which, in the belief of this authority, would restore the race to former standards of virility and inspire martial spirit in the nation. While fanciful, the advice has the merit of being unusual. Indeed, it smacks seriously of the flavor of a presidential boom for some person or other, the initial effort being to create a popular impression that wearers of hairy facial appendages are naturally fitted to adorn high places and are, when all is said and done, the true prophets of a people. Yet we do not look with confidence to any general revival in the growing of whiskers. Safety razor advertising and the influence of the barber shops are factors too potent in our present civilization to permit any extensive response to the voice crying in the wilderness of unbarbered sections of the Middle West. Besides, sanitary standards are higher and, whether milksops or mollycoddles, it is extremely unlikely that American men will again affect whiskers, no matter what beneficial effect may be ascribed to such hirsute adornment, should the time ever come for the bullets of an invading foe to whistle through them.

WEST PARK

West Park, Jan. 13.—This scattered hamlet along the Hudson, and climbing the West Hill on the further slopes of which lie the famed Slab Sides, as well as the bungalows of the Booth Brothers of Poughkeepsie, will soon see the last of the summer residents. Many show their good taste by remaining until the late fall, or even until the early winter, whilst enjoying their country homes. Mrs. J. J. Smith and family expect to leave for New York this week. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Walker, Miss Madge and Miss Katherin C. Walker, leave for California also this week. And Mr. and Mrs. William Van Benschoten left for Washington not very long ago.

With good sleighing, skiing, skating and coasting everyone who likes winter sports is satisfied.

Mrs. Harry Wallhead of Poughkeepsie gave a very interesting lecture at the school houseon Wednesday night on "England," with many photographs thrown upon the screen by a stereopticon. The members of the West Park Neighborhood Association are much indebted to Mrs. Wallhead, Mrs. J. J. Smith and others for many pleasant and instructive entertainments in the school house.

Some rather venturous persons were skating on the river Sunday afternoon, which to old blood seemed foolhardy.

William Schickle and daughter, Gretchen, called on friends on Sunday, and reports Miss Dorothy Schickle's health as improved. Miss Schickle is staying at Evergreen Lodge, Saranac Lake, in the Adirondacks.

Roscoe Terwilliger has been spending part of the holidays in Kingston.

Mrs. H. Hudson Covert will entertain a few friends at cards on Monday evening.

Mrs. Campion, who went to New York for a pleasure trip, was taken ill with the grip, and was prevented returning with her companion, Miss Hanna Akerlind.

Miss Nellie O'Brien and sister from Canada are in New York, intending among other pleasures, to hear grand opera.

The winter meeting of the Northern Conference of the Archdeaconry of Orange, is expected to be held at Ascension rectory on Friday, January 28.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, Jan. 13.—The tax collector will be at the post office on Tuesday, January 25, to receive taxes.

Miss Grace Ennist has gone to Poughkeepsie to spend some time.

Mrs. Mary Smith, who has been ill for some time, and who is under the care of Dr. W. E. E. Little, is not improving very rapidly at this writing.

Mrs. William Relyea entertained at her home on Wednesday, beside her parents, Mrs. John Gue of Creek Locks, Mrs. Ernest Wirth of Whiteport, Mrs. Willis DuBois and little son, Elwood, and Mrs. John Castor and little daughter, Genevieve and father.

Quilting is the order of the day around here among the ladies.

Andrew Castor filled his ice house on Tuesday of this week from the Whiteport pond.

Frank Van De Mark and Lewis Terhune paid a visit to Stone Ride on Tuesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., came on Tuesday to visit the Misses Douglass for a couple of days.

Mrs. Sarah Livingston, who has been sick with the grip for some time, is improving slowly, under the care of Dr L. G. Rymph.

Miss Louise Virret visited Kingston on Wednesday.

The leader of the Christian Endeavor for Sunday evening was our pastor and for Sunday evening will be Mrs. Charles Rickard. Topic, "How to Work With Others." Ir. 14:1-7.

Mrs. Catherine Niebergall went on Wednesday of this week to spend a few days with relatives in Kingston.

Miss Florence Relyea went on Monday of this week to visit her sister, Mrs. Walter Connor, of Binnewater for a week.

BEARSVILLE.

Bearsville, Jan. 13.—Revival meetings are being held in the Wittenberg M. E. Church by Rev. G. O. Wilsey and Rev. Mr. Thompson.

Floyd Elwyn of Norwich, N. Y., who has been visiting his brothers, Leslie and Clyde Elwyn, at Mead's Mountain House, has returned home.

Mrs. G. Yerry called on Mr. and Mrs. William R. Shultis on Friday last.

Mrs. Francis Gridley of Bunk Hollow visited Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Shultis a few days last week.

A. Rose and son, Ishmael, who have been visiting friends out of town, have returned home.

Shaffer Vredenburg made a business trip to Kingston on Monday.

Miss Myra Lasher is spending a few days in Kingston.

Miss Edna Shultis is visiting friends and relatives in New York.

Several from this place attended the farmers' institute in Firemen's Hall Thursday last.

"I wish I knew a way to get rid of the servant girl problem." "There is." "What is it?" "Do the work yourself."—Detroit Free Press.

"My face is my fortune," said the conscious beauty. "Well, it isn't necessary for you to be constantly flashing your roll," remarked the male cynic.—Judge.

Bix—"Scientists claim now that vegetables have feelings, emotions." Dix—"That's right. We frequently see cabbages with swelled heads."—Boston Transcript.

"I suppose it is hardly necessary for me to tell you, sir, that I am in love with your daughter," said the trembling suitor. "Not at all, young man," replied her father. "And, furthermore, I've seen enough idiotic symptoms in the past month to convince me that your passion is reciprocated." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Compulsory.

A certain amateur aviator talked recently about a flying trip with a professional, when he fell 1,200 feet into the water without knowing it.

"I wasn't frightened," he said with a smile. "I thought that our swift descent was a piece of fancy flying. I am, in fact, as ignorant of aviation as the little boy was ignorant of history.

"'Describe the Order of the Bath,' his teacher asked this little boy.

"'It's very ancient,' he answered. 'It goes back to the time when they didn't take no baths except by order.'"—New York Press.

Bragging.

Two close neighbors were in conversation.

"Well!" said the one, "you haven't any call to be proud; my father's taller than your."

"Bet you a shilling he ain't!" was the retort.

"Bet you he is!' said the first youngster. "My father can see over the wall at the end of the garden. Your can't."

"Yes, he can," responded the other, "with his hat on."—London Opinion.

When John D., Jr., Was a Boy.

"It's no wonder young John D., Jr., made a hit out there in Colorado in a very nest of enemies. Young John D. was always a resourceful chap."

The speaker was a Baptist deacon of Cleveland. He went on:

"Once, when he was a little boy, John D., Jr., said to his father:

"'Father, George Smith is going to have a birthday party, and I've got to give him a present.'

"But John D., Sr. had been attending a congressional anti-trust investigation that day, and his cross-examination had ruffled up his temper, so he snarled:

"'Oh, it's a present here and a present there all the time. I'm just about sick of it.'

"John D., Jr.'s face fell, but he said nothing. He just turned and walked out of the room.

"Well, the next day things were better at the investigation, and John D., Sr., regretted his harshness toward his little son. He came home that evening and said genially:

"'Go look in my overcoat pocket, laddie. You'll find a nice present there for your friend Smith's birthday party.'

"But John D., Jr., shook his head.

"'It's too late now, father,' he said. 'I licked him today so's he wouldn't invite me.'"—New York World.

Deliver Us!

George W. Perkins, in a Y. M. C. A. address on temperance in Chicago, began:

"A corking time is a good time for any young man, but may heaven deliver us all from the kind of corking time that means an uncorking one."—Chicago Record Herald.

No Actor.

When James A. Garfield was president of Oberlin College a man brought for entrance as a student his son, for whom he wished a shorter course than the regular one.

"The boy can never take all that in," said the father. "He wants to get through quicker. Can you arrange it for him."

Oh, yes," said Mr. Garfield. "He can take a short course; it all depends on what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak He takes a hundred years, but He takes only two months to make a squash."—Christian Register.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Jan. 13.—There will be an oyster supper at the M. E. parsonage Wednesday evening, January 19.

The annual installation of officers of Rondout Valley Lodge, K. of P., No. 393 was held at their rooms Tuesday evening, Jan. 11. District Deputy Grand Chancellor, William C. Obley; grand master of arms, Mr. Milles, and grand prelate, John Perks of Saugerties were present and installed the following officers: Grand Councillor, Eli Evans; vice grand councillor, S. A. Cross; prelate, Joseph Evans; master of work, C. Christian; keeper of records and seal, Bertram Evans; master finance, J. H. Smith; master exchequer, N. V. Smith, Lemuel Atkins; inner guard, R. W. Van Wagonen; outer guard, J. H. Chase. An oyster supper was served and several members addressed the people. Visiting members were Frank Stephens of Middletown and Clayton Christian of Springtown. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Terwilliger, Eugene Weaver and Simeon Prindle of Mohonk Lake.

Owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Garrison and several of the scholars there was no school in this place this week.

When returning from the installation on Tuesday evening the sleigh containing the Mohonk members was overturned at the ice turn at the end of the church lane, the horses running away, one of them being hurt quite badly. Eugene Weaver was bruised and the other occupants shaken up.

Miss Elizabeth Lounsbery was a guest of Mrs. Mary K. Cross on Wednesday afternoon.

H. B. DeWitt drove to Kingston on Tuesday.

Mrs. Jennie Van Wagonen has gone to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Baldwin, at East Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Benson Elmendorf of High Falls attended the installation service on Tuesday evening.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1494—A Jaunty Suit Style.

This attractive combination is splendid for shepherd check, mixed suitings, serge, cheviot and broadcloth, and also nice for silk, velvet and corduroy. The coat could be finished with or without the strapped plaits and yoke facings. The skirt is a very pleasing model. It has six gores, with the fulness disposed of in deep plaits. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 6 yards of 36 inch material for a 16 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1915-16 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

FROST VALLEY.

Frost Valley, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. James Van returned home on Sunday after making a few days' stay in Shandaken.

Mrs. George Carr is ill at this writing.

Harry Cole made a business trip to Big Indian on Monday after another mason to work on Mr. Foustmann's new stone house.

Miss Avis Van returned home on Tuesday after spending a few days with her friend, Orpha Krum, at Shandaken.

Manley Murray made a business trip to Lackawack Tuesday.

Asa Joslin and William Van Valkenburg are employed at the Biscuit Brook Lodge drawing sand; also George Carr and Frank Barkman.

Clarence Krom returned home on Monday after spending a few days with friends in this place.

THE UNITED STATES CREAM SEPARATOR

is the greatest Separator ever invented to make the dairy more profitable.

It skims the closest.

It is most sanitary because its nickel silver skimming sections will not rust. An easy metal to clean anyway, but remarkably so with our Mechanical Washer.

It has a Removable Sanitary Bowl Chamber Liner. Keeps every drop of milk from touching iron.

It is the ONLY Separator in more than a dozen ways. Call for complete catalog.

CLAIMED THE SHIP

Maro Thought He Was Eligible to Command a Cruiser.

AN OLD TIME NAVAL PRANK.

The Shabby Trick That Was Played Upon a Patriotic Greek Boilermaker by Some of Uncle Sam's Sailors With Whom He Had Shipped.

"A number of years ago the cruiser on which I was serving shipped a boilermaker while we were on the Mediterranean station," said a retired petty officer of the navy. "Our former boilermaker's time expired while we were at Gibraltar, and as he was not in good physical shape he wasn't re-enlisted, but took his discharge and returned to the United States by mail steamer. So the ship was shy a boilermaker, a very important and necessary petty officer down below in the engineer's department, and when the ship pulled into Naples harbor the chief engineer went ashore to see if he couldn't dig up a boilermaker.

"There was a clause in the enlistment regulations permitting commanding officers to ship necessary men on foreign stations in short handed emergencies. The chief engineer brought back to the ship a Greek named Charlie Maro. The man couldn't speak any English to speak of, but he was a good man at the boilermaking business, and he was duly shipped aboard of us for three years. He was a wild, hairy looking lot, Maro was, and he got a good deal of a laugh at the hands of the crew, especially the younger fellows, from the time he first came over the side.

"Maro thought that there wasn't any other country on the map except Greece, and after he got hold of enough English to make himself understood he used to take some of the young apprentice boys up into the eyes of the ship and tell them, with many gesticulations and furious words, of the different kinds of tar Greece could knock out of Turkey.

"The ship was around on the Pacific station when the war broke out between Greece and Turkey. When the news of the outbreak of the war got to Maro, our boilermaker, he nearly had heart disease and a whole lot of other sudden things from pure excitement. He just couldn't hold himself in, he looked so tickled.

"'Da Greek man willa bim, bim, bim, da Taurka man,' was Charlie Maro's way of putting it, and he didn't see that the Turk had a ghost of a show. All hands forward encouraged him in the belief. They all acquiesced in expressing the belief to Maro that Greece would simply eat Turkey up. Then a bo'sun's mate who knew how to crack the most impossible jokes with a face as solemn and wooden as an Indian's took Charlie in hand and told him some things. He told Maro that the United States was so much in sympathy with Greece in the struggle with Turkey that the navy department had decided to turn over all of the ships of the American navy to Greek commanders.

"'Here's a chance for you, Maro,' the bo'sun's mate told Maro. 'You just want to work your edge. Here you are already shipped on this cruiser, and it's dollars to doughnuts that if you ask for the command of this ship in order to take her over to Greece to mix it up with the Turks you'll get it hands down. Better try it on.'

"That idea impressed Maro a heap. He asked the bo'sun's mate whom he'd have to apply to to get command of the cruiser.

"'Why, to the commanding officer, of course,' was the reply.

Maro was tremendously important for a day or so while he let this huge idea grow within him, and he bullied the men detailed to work with him down below in the boiler room a good deal. The bo'sun's mate kept working him up to it, and finally Maro appeared on deck one morning togged out in his very best mustering suit of bluejacket clothes and went up to the officer of the deck and asked permission to see the commanding officer at the mast. The officer of the deck was rather surprised to see the man all done up in his mustering togs when all hands were at work; but, as he is obliged to do when an enlisted man requests permission to see the commanding officer, he sent word to the skipper, who soon emerged from his cabin and appeared at 'the stick.'

"'Well, my man?' said the skipper to Maro, who stood bolt upright and saluted with a flourish.

"'Sare,' said Maro to the skipper, 'I hav-a da honor to her-a-by taka da command of-a da ship.'

"'Hey?' said the commanding officer, putting his hand to his ear and looking as if he hadn't heard aright.

"'Da ship,' repeated Maro. 'For-a da navee of-a Hellas—de Greeka navee—I hava da honor to taka da command.'

"All hands among the enlisted men were up on the fo'gallant fo'c'sle taking the thing in, and they broke into a roar that you could have heard five cable lengths' distance. Maro heard it and, suspecting that his confidence had been abused, got red and flabbergasted. He suddenly bolted for the engine room hatch and made his way below, and it took three marines to drag him aft to the sick bay, where the surgeon, at the skipper's command, gave Maro a half hour's examination as to his sanity. Maro was game enough to decline to give the name of the enlisted man who had told him he was eligible for the command of the ship upon its being 'turned into the navy of Greece,' but the thrashing he gave that bo'sun's mate when he got him 'on the beach' was certainly savage."

Too Many Have That Idea.

"Knowledge is power," remarked the party of the first part. "Maybe so," responded the party of the second part, "but you want to get rid of the idea that when you switch off for the night the trolley cars have to stop running."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE GREAT STOCK UNLOADING SALE!

AT THE J. DAVIS MANUFACTURING CO.'S

To End With an Astounding Carnival of Bargains Saturday

ALL VALUE-GIVING EVENTS SURPASSED! COME!

It would be a difficult matter for any one---for any writer---no matter how skilled that writer may be---to do justice in cold type to the sensational economy advantages which this drastic Stock Unloading Sale presents. Since the beginning of the event last Saturday, our main floor has been a veritable beehive of buying activity, and for this most generous response we are grateful to all our old as well as new friends.

We wish to impress every woman in Kingston with the importance of being here Saturday, for our end-of-sale offerings will overtop any seen in Kingston for many a year. Remember, please, that we manufacture the Women's Coats, Suits, etc., that are sold here, and everything "cheap" or "loud" is carefully avoided. The garments involved in this movement are sample lots of this season's aristocratic fashions---some are advance Spring 1916 styles.

BATTERED BENNETT GETS NO DAMAGES

After being out only fifteen minutes, a verdict of no cause of action was rendered at 5 o'clock Thursday evening by the jury in the case of John Bennett against Elmer and Alonzo Lockwood to recover $1,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been incurred in a fight in the Libertyville Hotel on the evening of August 14, 1915. The cause of the trouble was an alienation suit brought by Bennett in December against Alonzo Lockwood but which never reached the courts. Although Alonzo declared himself innocent of the charges he offered to settle the matter by paying Bennett the sum of $1,250 rather than have his wife and family submitted to the publicity which is attached to a trial that the fracas was caused by the testimony of witnesses proved that Bennett invoked the fight with the hope of getting more money from the unlucky Lockwood brothers. Plaintiff's attorney failed to prove that the fracas was caused by the sting of the former trouble between the two parties. Several issues in the trial, which lasted all day, made a very interesting session.

Bennett, who is a boatman, has not lived with his wife for a year, and on August 14 was on his way to visit his daughter at Alsen. He stopped at Feinberg's hotel at New Paltz in the afternoon and according to the witness, William Van Leuven, threatened at that time to "get" Lockwood. Bennett urged Van Leuven to accompany him to Libertyville but the witness refused to go. The plaintiff had been drinking quite freely at New Paltz, being in a good financial condition on account of his income from boating.

The two Lockwood brothers were already at the Libertyville hotel when Bennett arrived. According to Alonzo's testimony, he went out on the porch as Bennett entered because he did not want to have any trouble with the man who had formerly made him pay the $1,250. Elmer, however, remained in the bar-room with Bennett. Alonzo went through the hall to a room across the hall from the place where Elmer and Bennett were and sat there drinking with several others. Later in the night Bennett, calling Elmer vile names and wielding a beer bottle over his head, threatened to let it fall on Elmer, who in self defense, struck Bennett, knocking him to the ground. At this point Alonzo came on the scene and told his brother to let the injured man alone. According to the stories of most of the witnesses the injured man went outside, harnessed his horse and drove away. It seems that Bennett had been drinking heavily and treating all the hangers-on in the bar-room. Not being able to "pick a scrap" with the man he was after, Alonzo, Bennett was tantalizing Elmer all the night about his brother's former actions with his wife, and although Elmer tried to refrain from any trouble, there were several arguments during the evening.

While Bennett was on the witness stand he gave just the opposite story to that told by the Lockwoods. He said that the brothers were "after" him all the night and when he left the hotel to drive to his daughter's home at Alsen they attacked him and cut open his lip, polished his eyes, swelled his jaw, and generally disabled him physically and mentally, being knocked senseless. He made no mention of the beer bottle which figured so largely in the testimony of the defense's witnesses.

Max Cohen, proprietor of the Libertyville hotel, in his testimony, said that on the Sunday after the smashup, Bennett was already preparing for his battle in the courts. He stopped at the hotel and exhibited the bundle containing the bloody shirt that was offered as evidence by the plaintiff in court yesterday. None of the witnesses examined had noticed a prevalence of blood on the night of the fight, but Bennett said that he was going to Kingston to see what he could get in the courts for the damage done to him. He come on to this city and had his photograph taken at Pennington's to show in court the amount of damages incurred in the fight. Louis Merrilat, the photographer, testified in court that the picture was taken on Sunday, the fifteenth, and was a reproduction of the face that sat before his kodac on that day.

Albert Cross, an elderly man who lives at New Paltz, testified that Alonzo started the trouble by talking about Bennett's wife. Matters were becoming interesting when Lawyer Merritt squeezed a few words from the witness concerning the receipt of money for giving false testimony in the case, but it turned out that the witness was deaf and misunderstood the questions put to him. The fact that Cross is a crony of the plaintiff and has been for forty years gave food to defense's attorney's imagination in regard to the alleged bribery.

Body Identified.

The body of the young man killed by the West Shore train near Catskill has been positively identified. Thursday Mrs. Edmund Post, of the Saugerties Road, had examined the clothing of the young man and had declared it to be that worn by her son. Dr. Augustus C. Post. Dr. Post, his mother said, had returned Christmas Day from the west, and had not left the place since the day before Wednesday, when he went away. A little later Henry Van Orden positively indentified the body as that of Dr. Post. Mrs. Van Orden said Post had worked for him on and off, and that he knew him perfectly. The body was also indentified by a number of other men. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at three o'clock at the Kortz undertaking rooms at Catskill. Interment in the Catskill cemetery.

How Soldiers Keep Strong

Preparedness against sickness is the big, important thing to fighting soldiers. A sick soldier cannot work with vigor any more than you can work with energy when you are weak, tired, almost sick.

One efficient warring government is giving each soldier a vial of cod liver oil every day because far-reaching experiments show how wonderfully it increases the calories of human energy and gives them strength to prevent winter sickness. Is this not convincing proof that you need it at this season to enliven your blood to prevent sickness?

Cod liver oil is scarce and high-priced this season and many inferior grades may be offered. But remember that which guarantees pure cod liver oil—free from alcohol and drugs.

If you are subject to colds, throat or lung troubles; if you are easily tired, run-down or have thin blood, you should take Scott's Emulsion at once. If your children are backward in growth, frail or anæmic, nothing will do them so much good as Scott's Emulsion, and for girls and women in home or business it is nature's great strength-builder.

Scott's is not a "secret" medicine. It is a rich blood-food and a pure tonic; it contains nothing harmful and is pleasant to take. It is prescribed by physicians and liberally used in hospitals and private schools.

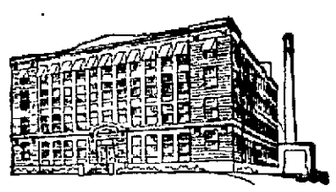

One bottle may prevent a sickness.
At any drug store—Start it to-day.

ALWAYS INSIST ON SCOTT'S.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In the surrogate's court, the will of Henry Foeller of the town of Warsaring has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill. The testator gives his estate to his wife, J. C. S. Dorothea Foeller, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed August 21, 1886, and witnessed by John G. Gray and T. H. Gray of Ellenville. The value of the real estate is $100 and the personal property amounts to $50. H. Westlake Coons appeared for the executrix.

Letters of administration on the estate of Harold M. Linson of this city were issued to his brother, John J. Linson. The value of the estate is $1,000 personal property. Roger H. Loughran appeared for the administrator.

Letters of administration with the will annexed on the estate of Jacob G. Keator of this city were issued to his daughter, Deborah S. Rhinehart of Binnewater. Virgil B. Van Wagonen appeared for the administratrix.

In the estate of Samuel B. Miller of the town of Lloyd, a petition for a judicial settlement was filed by George S. LaMoree, the administrator, and a citation was issued returnable January 24. Solomon G. Carpenter appeared for the petitioner.

They Had to Wait.

They wanted to be married in New Jersey, at least the man did, and he figured that if he left Ulster county with his bride-to-be on a Saturday afternoon they could be married on Sunday morning and return home in time for him to go to work on Monday; but then the best laid plans do not always work out, as the couple from a nearby hamlet soon realized. They had no trouble in leaving the county and getting to New Jersey, but when they attempted to get married they found that the laws of New Jersey required a residence of at least 48 hours and so both the man and the woman were forced to extend their vacation two whole days in order to have the marriage knot tied; but tied it finally was.

Wants to Keep Skunks.

The first application for the organization of a skunk farm was made to the state conservation commission on Wednesday by Peter Renno of Millbrook, Dutchess county. Some time ago Mr. Renno purchased a farm in the town of Washington, that county, and started a skunk farm and now has a colony of over 200 skunks. He plans to raise at least a thousand a year and the pelts at the present price will return him about $7,000 a year. The law provided that skunks can be raised for fur bearing purposes by application to the state commission for a permit.

Church Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church of Livingston street was held on Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Elder, John Buddenhagen; deacon, Frederick Studt; trustees, Henry Topp, Fred Sahloff of No. 127 Hasbrouck avenue, and Albert Topp. The newly elected officers will be installed on Sunday, January 23.

QUARRYVILLE.

Quarryville, Jan. 13.—The revival services in the M. E. Church are continuing to grow in interest. Sunday afternoon and evening there were about 150 present. Some are starting on the better way and a number are manifesting a desire to do so. Meetings every evening this week except Saturday, at 7:30.

Miss Kathryn Perry had the misfortune to fall one day last week and break her arm. Dr. Gifford set the injured member.

Mrs. Henry Hallenbeck is suffering with the grip.

Mrs. Claude Post has been confined to her home by the grip.

The many friends of Mrs. Anna Daringer were pleased to see her able to be out to preaching sunday afternoon.

Charles D. Snyder is visiting at Charles W. Cooke's.

Herrick Convery is confined to his bed by illness. Dr. Gifford is in attendance.

The velours hat with wool embroidery trimming has proved one of the smartest novelties of the season. In many instances a handy needle woman purchased a becoming felt or velours shape and then worked in a smart wool effect either in a border or some floral design. In either case the result proved very effective. This black velours hat is shown with a half inch binding of wool embroidery in grey, finish to one side in a double loop ornament and brightened with two novel buttons.

PainlessExtractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anaesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous-oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

HEPWORTH TAKES MORE APPLE PRIZES

J. A. Hepworth & Son of Milton are still at it, grabbing off first prizes for apples shown in competition with the best that other sections of the country can furnish. After polishing off competition at the state fair and the Poughkeepsie exhibition, they took a long jump to San Francisco, in the state where deluded easterners believe the finest fruit is grown, and came away with a collection of gold and silver medals. Now they have been exhibiting in Rochester, N. Y., and the result is given in the following letter from Mr. Hepworth, Sr., who may be a trifle old but is still very much in the ring when it comes to putting Ulster county and its products on the map:

Milton, N. Y., Jan. 14th, 1916.
Kingston Freeman.—

You are doing a great work for the Farm Bureau of Ulster county and if that does not wake up the farmers of Ulster county to the advantages to be derived from the Farm Bureau work they must indeed be dead ones.

Ulster county has the goods, of all kinds, only it must let it be known. We had an exhibit of apples at the New York State Fruit Growers Association at Rochester, N. Y., January 11th to 14th. Received first prize on best Box Baldwins; first prize on best Box Greenings; first prize on best Plate Newtown Pippins, and several second prizes. Ulster still keeps it place on the map.

DRY CLEANING AT HOME.

A Mixture That Is Said to Do the Work Easily and Harmlessly.

Make a stock solution of eight ounces strong ammonia, half an ounce of chloroform and half an ounce of ether. Cork tightly and keep away from the face, says the Scientific American. Dissolve a bar of naphtha soap in three gallons of hot water, add half a teaspoonful each of baking soda, salt and alum and three tablespoonfuls of the ammonia-chloroform-ether mixture.

To clean oriental or other rugs to their original brightness make a lather and dip a scrub brush in it, shaking out superfluous water. Go over the rug with this brush, and the lather dries out almost immediately. No harm whatever is done to the best oriental rug.

To sponge spots from clothing, even delicate silk and upholstery, dip a soft sponge in the lather, wring as dry as possible and sponge off the spot.

To wash sweaters, blankets or other flannels let the mixture become nearly cold, soak the garments in it half an hour or less, squeeze dry, rinse in clear water, squeeze dry again and hang up.

The various ingredients used not only remove grease and dirt, but set and brighten colors.

No Eye For Color.

Apropos of the amusing comments on academic costume that so often reveal popular ignorance of the symbolism of hoods and gowns is the following story, told by a contributor to the Liverpool Post:

A friend of mine, says he, is a curate in a local suburban parish. Some little time back he went up to Oxford to take his master of arts degree and the following Sunday appeared in the pulpit resplendent in his new master of arts hood. A few nights later he was dining in the house of a prominent parishioner and was amazed to hear his hostess pleasantly remark:

"Mr. X., that new hood of yours doesn't suit you at all. I can't imagine why you, with your complexion, chose red of all colors in the world. A myrtle green or an old gold would have suited you much better and would have been far more effective. You men never know how to dress yourselves!"

When the Plague Raged.

Sir Walter Besant in one of his books says of the author of "Robinson Crusoe" and "Journal of the Plague:" "De Foe was born in the year 1661. His father lived in Cripplegate, where, as we know, he had a shop. The child, therefore, was four years of age in the plague year. A child of four observes a great deal and may remember a great deal. De Foe says: 'When any one bought a joint of meat he would not take it out of the butcher's hand, but took it off the hooks himself. On the other hand, the butcher would not touch the money, but put it into a pot full of vinegar which he kept for the purpose.' This must surely have been seen by the child and remembered. It happened in his father's shop before his eyes."

Henry VIII. and Puddings.

Bluff King Hal, otherwise Henry VIII. of England, was exceedingly fond of puddings. At one time he gave a certain Mrs. Cornwallis a house in Aldgate for herself and her heirs forever "in reward of fine puddings." In King Henry VIII.'s private accounts occur again and again entries of his rewards to different housewives for bringing him puddings. A typical instance runs thus: "Item. The same day paid to the wife that made the king podings at Hampton corte, vis. viijd." This would be about $1.75, but its value was much greater when the entry was made.

A Thornless Rose.

The followers of Zoroaster have a theory that prior to the existence of sin in the world the rose was a thornless flower. In the east it is a tradition to this day that the burning bush in which the angel of the Lord appeared to Moses was a rosebush.

Living In Luxury.

KING NICHOLAS.

WILL SOON BE KING WITHOUT A COUNTRY.

King Peter of Serbia, a monarch without a country, and King Albert of Belgium, will soon have a companion in King Nicholas of Montenegro. The Austrians are closing in on Cetinge, the capital of Montenegro, and unless a miracle takes place, will soon be in as complete possession of the little country as they are in Serbia.

Napkins.

Napkins became popular in France sooner than in England. At one time it was customary at great French dinners to change the napkins at every course, to perfume them with rosewater and to have them folded a different way for each guest.

Halcyon Days.

A halcyon is a kingfisher, and "halcyon days" are so called because it was supposed that the weather was always peaceful when the kingfisher was breeding.

Hardly.

REDUCED MEAT PRICES AT
Lay's Saturday Sale

The inexperienced cannot appreciate the thrill in the tramp of many feet at a Sale like our Saturday events. There's a tense interest on the part of shoppers. Last week's sale surpassed even our most enthusiastic expectations. Many of our patrons have concluded that there is no comparison with our underpricing and sterling qualities. Our prices have always been low, and when we say "reduced" prices we mean prices that are already famously moderate. Our confidence in the invincibility of our sales very naturally carries conviction to the customer, and the result is an extremely heavy volume of business every Saturday.

The Inside of the Hotel

Is the part that counts with the guest. The architect doesn't make a hotel, he only designs it. The builder doesn't make a hotel, he only builds it.

Don't select your stopping place from the outside. Look behind the front wall and see what is back of it.

The success of the Hotel Martinique is the personality back of it, which shows in the lobby, at the desk, in the restaurants and in the rooms.

The telephone attendants, the mail clerks, the room maids, even the bellboys reflect the personality back of the "House of Taylor." We don't preach prices only. We have pleasant, homelike rooms from $1.50 up.

In one and all you will find reflected the careful and insistent idea of guest-service that dominates every moment of your stay.

Located in the Heart of Things, only a golf stroke from the Pennsylvania Depot. On Broadway's throbbing centre. The Martinique is the logical New York home for those on business or pleasure bent.

A Story of Revolution In Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

The republic of Mexico had been tranquil under the presidency of Ippolito Quintares, and it was supposed by that people of many governments that they would be permitted to continue at peace and to recover from the effects of anarchy.

But no one can tell what is about to happen in Mexico. In that country a revolution is liable at any time to flash like lightning from a clear sky.

One afternoon Manuel Coral, a nephew and the secretary of the president, rode into the country a distance of a dozen miles to the residence of General Munez, whose title had come from his once having commanded a band of revolutionists. But Coral was not going to see the general. Inez Garcia, the daughter of a former president of Mexico who had been deposed and garroted, being without means of support had been taken into the Munez family and made governess to the general's children. Manuel Coral had met her and fallen in love with her.

The young man reached the Munez hacienda as the sun was setting and rode up between an avenue of trees to the house. The general was sitting on his veranda. Coral threw himself from his horse, turned the beast over to a dusky stableman and advanced to meet the general. To his surprise the visitor saw under an assumed cordiality a partially concealed antagonism. The general seemed to be displeased at his coming. His previous visits had been welcomed by the host, and the visitor had every reason to presume that his attentions to Senorita Inez were approved by the general and his family. Their approval was a matter of importance, for the young lady owed them much and was treated more like one of them than a hireling. Manuel's first thought was that for some reason unknown to him they had withdrawn their consent for a match between him and their protegee.

"You will find Inez within," said the general after placing his hand coldly in that of Manuel. "She is arranging flowers for the table. Of course you will sup with us."

Manuel went into the house, meeting Senora Munez in the hall. She started on seeing him and knit her brows; then resuming her usual cordial manner she welcomed him, called Inez from the dining room, and the visitor and the senorita passed into the drawing room.

Inez, if she did not appear discomposed at his coming, seemed troubled.

"Something is wrong, sweetheart," said Manuel. "The general received me with, to say the least, embarrassment. Senora Munez was startled at seeing me, and you do not greet me as usual. Tell me what it all means."

Inez was silent for a moment, then made a reply that Coral knew was a prevarication.

"Don't you think you are exaggerating the want of cordiality of your reception? The general and Senora Munez may have something annoying on their minds that renders the presence of a visitor in the house just at present inconvenient to them."

Manuel studied her face, which was half averted, for a few moments and made up his mind that something was on hand which might be important, something that he should know. He resolved to conceal his suspicion.

"I can very well understand such a situation," he said. "Unlucky the hosts as well as the visitor who comes at an inopportune time. But, now I am here, we must all make the best of it. My ride from the city has given me an appetite, and the general has invited me to supper. If I find later in the evening that my presence is annoying I will go back to the city. It is a two hour ride and there are cutthroats on the way, but I will not force myself upon those who do not wish my company."

At the mention of his riding over a road that was infested by robbers Inez clung to him, appearing much disturbed. But she said nothing, and in another moment supper was announced.

After the meal Coral and his sweetheart were again permitted to occupy the parlor together. Manuel did not refer again to the want of cordiality with which he had been received. At 9 o'clock he arose to go. Inez seemed disturbed, but did not invite him to remain. Passing into the hall, the general came out of a room opposite to meet him.

"You are not going to the city tonight?" said Munez.

"Certainly. Why not?"

"Better remain here. I insist upon it. I should not forgive myself if you should meet with trouble on the way."

"What trouble?"

"Never mind that. We have a room for you, and I shall expect you to occupy it."

This was spoken not in a tone of invitation, but of command. Coral was more surprised than ever. Something was surely in the wind.

"Very well, general. Since you insist upon my remaining I will do so. But the president will be in his office early in the morning. That means that his secretary must be there early also."

"In that case you had better go to bed early. I will show you to your room. If I permit you to rejoin Inez, there is no telling when you will tear yourself away from her."

"May I ask, general, if there is any change in you and Senora Munez as to my union with Inez?"

"There is not."

"Very well. I will retire to my room now."

The general led the way to the second floor, all the rooms of which opened on a court. Throwing open the door to one of these rooms, the general set the candle he held on the bureau and, bidding his guest good night, left him.

Coral was puzzled. The general had assured him that his devotion to Inez had nothing to do with the manner of his reception. What, then, could it mean? He was at a loss to form any theory. He went to bed, but could not sleep for thinking of a solution. He expected to arise at 5 o'clock and ride to the city before 8. At 10 o'clock he heard the sound of a horse's hoofs on the road. They grew more distinct, approaching the house, and stopped before it. Coral heard what sounded like the clank of a saber.

In ten minutes the comer rode away, but within half an hour another horseman came and went as the other had done. Up to midnight five or six persons visited the house. Coral heard them come and go, but nothing more. Something surely was brewing. He began to get sleepy, but preferred not to go to sleep. To prevent his doing so he left his bed and sat by a window. The room was chilly, and he put on some of his clothing.

On a rise in the ground several miles distant he saw a light. It was a bonfire. On another summit was another. He counted five of these fires within view. What did they mean?

A faint light appeared in the east. A few minutes later Coral saw a flash through the keyhole of his door. Going to the door, he opened it just far enough to look out. He saw Inez with a candle in her hand at the foot of a staircase leading up to a square tower built at the corner of the house. He had often been up there and knew that there was a ladder in it giving access to the roof.

Inez ascended the stairs. Coral emerged from his room, ran around the court and followed her, overtaking her in the room that constituted the tower. So stealthily did he move that she did not know of his presence till she stood at the foot of the ladder leading to the roof, when she felt herself clasped by a pair of arms. Turning her head, she saw her lover.

"What are you going to do?" he asked in a whisper.

He partly unloosed her, and her head sank upon his breast.

"How unfortunate!"

"What is unfortunate?"

"Your coming at this time."

"Inez," he said sternly, "something is wrong. You are doing the work of General Munez. Choose now between him and me, once and forever."

"I am obliged to choose you. I cannot do what he requires of me without your permission, and when you know my intention you will prevent me."

Then followed a confession which amazed Coral more than his frigid reception, but explained it. General Munez was at the head of troops who were to begin their march to the capital at dawn to assassinate the president and seize the government. The insurgents were scattered. Each group had kindled a fire as a signal that it was ready and waiting. General Munez had gone to a point of rendezvous to take command. He had exacted a promise from Inez that she would at dawn show a light on the tower of his residence as a signal for the different bodies to converge at the point where they would find him.

Having received the confession, Coral bethought himself what to do.

"Inez," he said presently, "you have kept your word with your benefactor against your lover, so far as you are able. I will not permit you to give the signal. Promise me that you will go to your room and remain there, taking no further part in this matter. I will set out at once for the capital and warn the president. Do as I say, and I promise you that no action shall be taken against General Munez. Without the signal the revolution will collapse. The president will ignore it."

This proposition accorded with Inez's desires. She had been bitterly opposed to a movement which, having been concocted in the house where she lived, she was necessarily cognizant of. If successful it would make a breach between her and her lover; if it failed General Munez would suffer death. She made the promise.

"But you will not get through," she added. "All the roads leading to the capital are picketed, the guards being instructed to pass no one without the countersign."

"What is the countersign?"

She hesitated for a moment, then said, "Since the revolution cannot be carried out perhaps it is better that you should have it." Then she whispered it in his ear.

"Goodby, sweetheart," he said. "You have acted for the best. The attempt would have failed, and General Munez would have suffered death."

Descending to the yard, he went to the stable, saddled his horse and was soon flying over the road to the city. He was often stopped; but, having the countersign, he was not long delayed. He now understood why the general had kept him overnight. He knew that Coral would not get through.

The signal not having been given, the troops dispersed at sunrise and the general returned to his home, wondering why his plan had gone awry, for he trusted Inez implicitly. She told him her story, and he admitted that she had acted for the best.

Instead of being shot as a traitor, General Munez was given a fat office, and he and the president shook hands at the wedding of Manuel Coral and Inez Garcia.

VETERAN BASEBALL UMPIRE GIVEN PLACE

Hank O'Day, Who Returns to National League Staff.

Hank O'Day was not resting on his oars while peace was being discussed in Cincinnati. He read between the lines that the league would get together and lost no time in deciding that he desired to be with the big show next season. Of course, the National league has been his first love in baseball, and it is in that organization that he has applied for his position on the staff of arbiters.

"Don't forget that I want to be on your staff next season."

This was the substance of a telegram President John Tener received from O'Day. The former was pleased that the veteran and one of the best umpires in the game asked to come back. Tener declared he was glad to get O'Day's message and lost no time in wiring to Secretary John Heydler of the National league to send Hank a contract.

Tener hesitated last season before he signed O'Day, but he did this because his list was complete and he did not deem it justice to dispose of a man who was delivering satisfactorily. The chance came when Quigley was sick. Bill Hart retired and then O'Day was put back on the staff.

Ball players in the National league say that O'Day was the cleverest umpire in the league, not because of his ability to call balls and strikes, but because he knew how to handle the men. He has had less trouble than any official of the National league and it is due to the fact that he knows how to quell the sudden outbursts of wrath that come through close decisions.

NEW COLLEGE GAME

A new game, which is a combination of football and basketball, is being tried out at Cornell. "Gridiron" is the name of the new sport, which has been invented by Prof. C. V. Young. It is played with a Rugby football on the regular gridiron, by teams of eleven men, but has some likeness to basketball. Running with the ball for more than five yards is illegal, tackling below the waist is forbidden and frequent passing of the ball is encouraged. The game may be developed to take the place of soccer in college sport at Cornell.

"POP'S" CIGARS WIN RACES

Of course everybody knows that "Barney" Oldfield never drives his speed car without a strong Havana cigar ornamenting his frontal piece. And nobody ever saw a picture of old "Pop" Geers without his eternal cigar. Oldfield asserts the weed steadies his nerves. Geers says it helps to concentrate his mind.

It's a fact that the "grand old man" of the harness world is just about as careful in the selection of his cigars as in naming his futurity and stake

"Pop" Geers.

candidates. They are made of Cuban tobacco and wholesale at six cents apiece. So it will be seen that "Pop's" cigar bill is no small item. That "Pop" smokes to good advantage is evidenced by the money he has won in 25 seasons, which is said to total something over one million good dollars.

Gordon Meeking to Turn Pro.

Gordon Meeking, the blond giant, who played forward positions on the Victoria hockey team of Toronto a few years ago, is contemplating turning professional. MARBLESTONE'S

25% OFF WINTER CLEARING SALE

Last Year, at this time, we thought we had reached the pinnacle of success in this semi-annual event--But that was a hugely mistaken idea--Because this season's selling has so far outdone last year's that a comparison is surprising.

Season after season the patronage of this sale grows larger and still larger. The mere announcement that the sale is on, is sufficient to bring the people to this store from a hundred miles around--Regardless of weather conditions they come, and keep a-coming, with the following 25 per cent off line-up in mind.

TOD SLOAN.

(Tod Sloan, As He Looks Today.)

New York, Jan. 14.—Tod Sloan, probably the most famous American jockey who ever straddled a race horse, is going on the stage to bolster up his fortune which has dwindled away in the last few years. He will appear as a jockey in a play founded on a racing story.

Sloan recently returned to American after being deported from England, where he has made his home for several years, as an undesirable citizen. It was alleged Sloan had been running a gambling house in London, where several British officers lost large sums.

Too Well Cleaned.

Papa—I cannot conceive what is the matter with my watch. I think it must want cleaning. Pet Child—Oh, no, papa, dear! I don't think it needs cleaning, because baby and I had it washing in the basin for ever so long this morning."—London Tit-Bits.

He Couldn't Dodge.

BIG DEMAND FOR MINSTREL TICKETS

The popularity of the Colonial Glee Club Minstrels, which will be given at the Kingston opera house next Monday and Tuesday nights for the benefit of the Elks' Club, was illustrated to good advantage this morning by the size of the crowd which gathered to exchange tickets for seat checks at the opera house box office.

The crowd which had gathered before nine o'clock—the opening hour of the box office—was somewhat larger than in former years, and the line stretched from the box office window nearly to the corner of John street. The early patrons did not attempt a monopoly of seats, however, although a number of those in line exchanged seats for members of their family as well as for themselves, and a number of choice seats for both nights remained on sale after the waiting crowd had been served. Good seats, therefore, may still be obtained, but it is advisable that anyone who has not yet bought tickets should secure seats at once, because the demand for the tickets has been larger than was anticipated.

High School Boys Won.

The High School Juniors showed what secondary school training will do in basketball when they ran away from the No. 7 school five at the high school gym Thursday afternoon, the score being 42 to 23. The one big feature of the game was the remarkable passwork of the high school lads, they simply bewildering the grammar school kids by their clean and swift passes. In the junior team is the embryo of future high school basketball five and pretty good stuff at that. Smith McAndrew and Kirchner were the best shining lights of the high school, while No. 7 pinned all their hopes on Martin and Schoonmaker, who carried most of the brunt of the battle. The score:

Funeral of Gen. Huerta.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 14.—Arrangements for the funeral of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, former Mexican dictator, will be made today. The former provisional president of the southern republic died in his home here of sclerosis of the liver last night. He had been unconscious most of the time for the last three days. He died without knowledge of the latest happenings in war-torn Mexico.

INVESTING MONEY.

Choose Between Speculative Risks and Safe Securities.

A famous capitalist, writing to Ida M. Tarbell in the American Magazine, says:

"There is no man in the world who can honestly say that he can invest money and be certain of permanent large returns. The big dividends come from speculative ventures, and nobody should make them unless he is willing and able to lose all he puts in.

"I had a thousand dollars sent me today from a woman who wants 20 per cent. I cannot place it so that I can be sure she will permanently get 6 per cent. It is all she has in the world. I have no right to lose it, and I shall not do it. I shall return the money. If she could afford to lose it, that would be another thing.

"There is only one safe way for people to invest, and that is to choose sound, conservative bonds or stocks, and that after consultation with trustworthy brokers or bankers. In the long run it will be worth much more to them than the uncertain large dividend, but nobody believes me. They all think that if I would I could make a fortune for them. When I send this thousand dollars back the last thing this woman will do will be to thank me."

Looked That Way.

"I want a man who doesn't smoke or drink."

"What are the wages?"

"Six dollars a week."

"Guess you want a man who doesn't eat, either."—Boston Transcript.

Nailed by the Ears.

During the prosecution of a London east end shopkeeper for adulteration recently the magistrate remarked that in days gone by tradesmen convicted of offenses similar to this were punished by being nailed by the ears to their own doorposts.

KING OF URBAN TREES.

Qualities That Adopt the Elm to Architectural Surroundings.

The elm is essentially a self sufficient tree. It does not thrive in groves. It has a standard type of its own, and it either attains this type or is lost to view. The elm which comes to maturity is usually the one which has lodged in a favored spot where there is no competition, such as a river meadow, where the spring freshets have dropped the seed on fertile soil and the roots can get down to water.

We all know the type, the noble trunk of massive girth tapering very gradually upward to the first spring of branches and then dissolving into those branches as a water jet might dissolve in many upward and out curving streams till the whole is lost in the spray of the foliage. Like many other trees that grow alone, it develops an exquisite symmetry. But with the elm this symmetry is not only one of general contour, but of individual limbs. Not only is the silhouette symmetrical, but the skeleton also, branch balancing branch.

That is what gives it its remarkable fitness to comport with architectural lines, with geometrically designed vistas. It has a formal structure and a consequent dignity which make it the logical shade for a village street, a chapel, a library, the scholarly procession in cap and gown. Add to that dignity its arched and airy lightness and its splendid size and you have the king of urban trees.—Walter Prichard Eaton in Century.

GREEK SCULPTOR CARVES WOODEN WIFE FOR POET FRIEND.

George D. Pappasgeorge, His Bust, George Orphanus, Sculptor, and the "Wooden-Wife" Carved From Maple.

George D. Pappasgeorge a Greek poet who lives with his friend, George Orphanus, a Greek sculptor, in a little hut in the heart of the red-wood country in Marin county, Cal., has a wife who never scolds and who never answers back. She is carved of wood.

Orphanus heard his friend say that all that was needed to make life happy was a wife, so he set about and carved the large figure of a woman from maple-wood. He also carved a bust of Pappasgeorge. There will be a "wooden-wedding" soon.

LURE OF CHECKERS

A Game That Has Been Played For Twenty Centuries.

LONG KNOWN AS "DRAUGHTS."

Plato and Homer Mentioned the Game in Their Writings, and Many Relics of It Have Been Unearthed From the Tombs of Ancient Egypt.

In the messengers' room of a big industrial plant two boys hovered meditatively over a checkerboard of red and black squares and moved their "men" from square to square with much premeditation. An old man chanced that way and, lured by the contest, stopped and looked on. Taking the liberties or the rights that his years warranted, he suggested a move and was soon absorbed in the game. Another man came by and stopped, and soon there was a group around the silent and intent contestants. The lure of checkers was upon them.

This game in slightly modified forms has exercised its fascination upon the human race for centuries that cannot be counted. "Checkers" is a new name for an ancient game. To English speaking people it was long known as "draughts," aad in all the languages of civilized men it has a name. There are variations in the way of playing it, but it is the familiar checkers of our time just the same.

So many things come to light out of the ancient tombs of Egypt that it strikes the modern man as remarkable how many articles they buried with men in those dim, long gone ages, but out of tombs at least twenty centuries old explorers, excavators and tomb breakers have brought forth pieces of checkerboards and the disks which for some reason are called "men." And as such things have been found in tombs that were sealed twenty centuries ago it is possible that some time in very much older tombs explorers may find relics of checkers.

In the British museum one of the exhibits in the Egyptian collection is a board and men of the ancient game which came out of one of those ancient tombs. Some of the oldest of the mural decorations of ancient Egypt depict players engaged at draughts, or whatever the ancient Egyptians may have called the game.

Classic references may be found to draughts. Plato mentioned it and writes that it was the invention of an Egyptian whom he called Hermes Trismegistus, but where and how Plato got the information are not clear. It is very easy to say that such and such a man invented such and such a game, but close investigation usually proves that he hit on some adaptation or variation of a very much older game.

Tracing the genesis of a game of skill or chance usually leads the investigator too far back in the mists of the past to be sure that he has found the correct answer.

This game is also mentioned by Homer, and he records the observation that it was played during the period with which the "Odyssey" deals. There is little doubt that the Greeks played the game and that at a later period the Romans played a variant of it, which they called "latrunculi."

It was early played through northern Europe and was played there at such a remote period that it was said to have been one of the few things which were not introduced in that region by the Romans.

It was one of the most popular games in Europe during the sixteenth century. In the Library of Congress are several old books treating of the game. Samuel Johnson once wrote a preface to a book on the game of draughts which one William Payne had composed at the expense of much time and effort.

Students of checkers and very old players of the game recall the names of Anderson, an Englishman, and Wylie, "the herd laddie," who were famous checker players about half a century ago. Wylie traveled all over the world playing contests with local checker experts and enthusiasts. Martens, an English player, and two Americans, Yates and Barker, succeeded to the fame of Anderson and Wylie.—Washington Star.

Richard Cromwell.

Oliver Cromwell tried to train his son to be a worthy successor as protector, but the attempt was a failure. Richard was easy going and amiable and more addicted to sports than to statecraft. He was the acknowledged lord protector from Sept. 3, 1658, to May 25, 1659 but cut little figure as such. He did not relish official duties and much preferred having a good time. The cavaliers called him "Queen Dick," and others still less respectfully spoke of him as "Tumbledown Dick." He was glad to quit when parliament told him to get out. After his abdication, however, he conducted himself with credit and even with dignity. He lived in quiet retirement for fifty-three years and died July 12, 1712, at the ripe old age of ninety.—Argonaut.

The Shrew.

The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defense, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

Be silent or say something better than silence.—Pythagoras.

POULTRY and EGGS

PROFIT IN DUCK CULTURE.

Quacks Are Easy to Raise and Thrive on Cheapest Feed.

Without doubt the duck is one of the most abused of all the domestic birds, writes a correspondent of the Iowa Homestead. Yet, in spite of its unpopularity among the masses, it may be made the most profitable of all in this country in the hands of one who likes ducks and appreciates their good points.

The duck is pre-eminently a meat bird, although with proper handling the feathers can be made to pay for almost all the ducks eat, which is a very important item in handling any kind of animals or birds.

The Buff Orpington duck is a rather new breed in this country, having been originated in England less than twenty years ago. It has the blood of the Indian Runner, Aylesbury, Rouen and Cayuga in its makeup and is the largest of the prolific egg laying ducks, equaling the Peking in size. This breed is easy to raise, matures quickly and is ready for market at ten weeks of age. The bird pictured is a Buff Orpington drake.

As a rule, it is better not to sell the birds when young, but grow them to maturity and market them in early winter, when prices are always good.

Because of fatal diseases, which are widespread and seem to be under no control, turkeys become scarcer every year, and the goose is not so easily raised, so, without doubt, the duck will in the future be one of the leading table fowls. It is a large bird, and with a good market it has considerable value as a table fowl.

For those engaged in duck culture for profit it will pay to keep only the heavier breeds. There is also a great profit in these when grown and sold for breeding purposes.

Many fail with geese, turkeys and chickens, but almost any one who likes domestic animals and has had some experience with them can succeed with ducks. Duck handling is of the easiest kind, as food, shelter and general care of the birds is very simple. The birds are hardy, free from disease and produce profitably for many years. In a large flock the finding of a dead duck is rare. They can stand much cold and dampness, and a common shed is all the shelter necessary.

A great factor with ducks is that they can be kept on the cheapest kind of food. While pastures are green about all they need is green grass or green forage, bugs, etc. Corn is their main food.

Some do not like ducks around the farm because they claim that they destroy so much. However, this objection may be raised with any class of poultry. If birds of any kind are a bother they should be confined to yards or a range for themselves, and ducks are very easy to confine, as they only need a grassy pasture inclosed with common woven wire. A general hog fence is sufficient to confine them. After corn is two feet high they may be pastured in the cornfield to advantage, as they will eat grass between the rows without disturbing the corn.

As ducks begin to lay early in the spring when the weather is yet cold, it is well to know the nesting places and gather the eggs soon after laid to prevent chilling.

The first eggs of the season should be set under hens, while the duck may be allowed to hatch the later ones. It is always much better to use hens as mothers of the ducklings, as they will care for them much better than the old ducks themselves.

Keep Hens Free From Insects.

To kill off the lice provide a dust bath for the hen, and she generally will keep herself free from lice. If she does not dust her with insect powder. You can buy this at drug stores or you can make it yourself. A very effective and cheap insect powder is made by taking three parts of gasoline and one part strong carbolic acid. Mix these together and add enough plaster of paris to take up all the moisture. This makes a dry, pinkish powder. Dust this on the hen, especially in the feathers under the wings and in the fluff below the vent.

Patch Up the Henhouse.

If a draft is permitted to blow through the openings of the poultry house your birds will probably become sick through having colds. Here is where prevention is better than cure. Shut up the openings so that the drafts will be kept out. A draft is bad in the summer, but when the cold winds commence to blow it is positively dangerous.

The Little Stone Toad

Strange Experience of an American Tea Buyer In China

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Amid the yelling of a Chinese mob outside the gate of the compound Davies calmly packed his valuables into a couple of traveling bags, together with some necessary clothing. Through the open window of the bungalow he could hear the weak voice of Mr. Potter expostulating with the frenzied leaders of the mob.

All at once the yelling died down into shrill murmurs of discontent, and Potter strode across the verandah and into the room where Davies was methodically preparing for flight.

"I'm afraid we can't do anything with them," wheezed Leonard Potter breathlessly.

"Told you so," grunted Bob Davies as he yanked a strap into place. "Better get your stuff ready. They'll be firing the place in a jiffy."

The little man dragged out his own bags and ran frantically to and fro gathering up his belongings.

"Where shall we go?" he asked hopelessly.

"Van Ping will get us out of the neighborhood," returned Bob tersely. He was vexed with the utter want of tact on Potter's part. He had told the little missionary that it was folly to try to argue the inhabitants of Penfoo out of the belief that the great stone toad in the temple garden had anything to do with the weather of central China.

"My dear Davies," Mr. Potter had insisted, "leave them to me. It is my calling, the carrying of truth into the dark places of the earth. I cannot let these poor heathen continue to make offerings to the stone toad. It is my duty to convince them that they are entirely wrong."

Davies, who represented a big tea house in Shanghai, was angry because he was included in the neighboring hostility aroused by Potter's ill judged efforts. This affair would mean the loss of several business deals that he would have had difficulty in handling under the best of circumstances. He was sorry that he had invited Potter to share his quarters during his stay in Penfoo.

"Well, did you convince the heathen that the stone toad was not a weather maker?" He could not resist throwing over his shoulder.

Mr. Potter blinked.

"Not exactly," admitted the missionary. "They are very ignorant and very bigoted."

Bob Davies straightened up.

"Can't say I think that the Chinese belief that a stone toad is responsible for the weather conditions here is an indication of bigotry any more than the American confidence in the reports of the weather bureau."

"Well—well—ah, indeed, I presume not!" gasped Leonard Potter, as he struggled with the straps of his suit case.

"FOREIGN DEVIL," HE WHISPERED, "TAKE THIS IN EXCHANGE FOR MONEY!"

A long wailing yell arose from outside.

"When is Van Ping coming?" chattered Potter. "I didn't tell you that they threatened to boil me in oil."

"That all? What was the final straw, Potter?"

"I merely went to the temple garden and pounded the head of the stone toad with a sledge hammer, just to demonstrate to them that it was stone, an inanimate object that could not possibly have anything to do with the making of conditions."

"It seems to have created a very unpleasant situation for us," retorted Davies disagreeably.

Leonard Potter sighed. He wished that young Mr. Davies was not such a sarcastic individual.

The door opened, and Van Ping, Davies' model Chinese servant, appeared.

"Velly little time; bring fire soon," he said briefly.

"All ready, Van; lead the way. Help Mr. Potter with his bags. I can manage alone."

Without an unnecessary word Van Ping picked up a couple of bags and led the way to the back of the house. Here the kitchen offices extended in a series of small buildings to the rear wall of the compound.

Beyond the wall were the sluggish waters of a creek, and choking the creek for a mile above the river where it emptied was a long straggling line of sampans or house boats, occupied by the poorest class of Chinese. The sampans were connected with the bank on either side by narrow planks that served as gangways, and so closely were the sampans packed that one could travel from one end of the line to the other under the cover of their matted roofs.

Van Ping led the Americans through a narrow gate in the wall and out into the coarse sedge that bordered the creek.

"It is the only way," he remarked after he had explained his plan to Davies.

"And after we reach the river?" asked Davies.

"There are foreign ships of war there, Sabe?"

"Sabe," replied the American.

There would be risk in escaping through the long tunnel of sampans. Some of the boat dwellers might object, although Davies was well supplied with coin to buy their safe passage if necessary.

Leonard Potter, innocent cause of all the trouble, meekly followed after Van Ping, leaving Davies to bring up the rear.

It was an exciting experience. Danger lurked in the hidden gloom of each ill smelling sampan that they entered. Hostility was in their rear. Even Davies' money almost failed to gain their way in some places.

Slant eyed men threatened them from dark corners, angry women shrilled at them, and impudent children spat defiance at the hated foreigners. Many of the men were paid assassins, and Davies was ready at every turn to defend himself.

Once there was a little scuffle when two men darted out with naked knives, but Van Ping's angry voice sent them cowering back into the dim obscurity of their hiding place.

When they had nearly completed the journey through the line of sampans a remarkable incident occurred.

Bob Davies, who was bringing up the rear, felt a touch on his sleeve, and he looked down into the wizened face of an aged Chinaman. The man looked up at him from dimmed eyes.

"Foreign devil," he whispered, "take this in exchange for money. I would throw it into the mud only my wicked daughter-in-law would find it. I shall soon die, and this must not reach her hands."

He pressed a little box into Davies' unwilling palm.

"Money, how much or how little, as you wish," whined the man.

From ahead Van Ping was calling impatiently. Davies looked down into the age smitten face, and, pulling out a handful of money, he poured it into the trembling palms of the old man.

Stuffing the unopened box into his pocket, Davies ran at top speed through the noisome deck houses until he reached his companions. From that moment he forgot all about the mysterious little box.

He felt the fresher air of the river blowing in his face, and he was relieved when at last they emerged upon the bow of the last sampan, whose prow projected into the mouth of the creek.

Here a small sampan was in waiting, and Van Ping hustled his passengers into the craft and took up the pole in his strong arms.

The river stretched a turbulent yellow stream east and west. The town of Penfoo straggles along its northern bank. Twenty miles below Penfoo is a large treaty port, and Davies knew that they would find protection on any one of the foreign warships lying in the roadstead.

Van Ping vigorously poled the sampan down the river, the swift current speeding them on the way to safety.

Two days later the tea merchant and the missionary, whose business in Penfoo had ended so abruptly, were on board a river steamer bound for Shanghai.

Bob Davies sulked alone most of the time, while Leonard Potter associated with the native crew and made two converts among them. Joyfully triumphant, he sought Davies in his retreat.

"I'm sorry I didn't stick to my post in Penfoo," said the missionary regretfully when he had described his recent experiences among the Chinese crew. "I am sure that my persuasions would have touched their simple hearts at last."

"You are 200 miles from Penfoo and a Chinese mob," remarked Bob.

Mr. Potter closed his pale eyes and folded his hands over his black waistcoat. He wished he had not met Davies and offered to share the expenses of his bungalow. The tea merchant appeared offended, as if their flight from Penfoo was to be laid at Potter's door.

"I am sure I didn't invent the stone toad," thought the missionary with some resentment.

Bob Davies was wondering what explanation he would give to his employers. He had already sent in signed contracts for a large quantity of the best Penfoo tea, and he had made payments on each contract, but now who could tell whether anything would come of the contracts?

"Oh, for a ranch in southern California and never another glimpse of China!" he groaned.

"I shall never forget that awful experience—coming through the house-boats," sighed Potter.

Davies started with a sudden recollection. He felt in his pockets for the little box which the ancient Chinaman did not want his wicked daughter-in-law to know about.

It was a small ebony box about two inches square and very heavy. Davies fumbled until he found a small spring in the bottom of the box, which upon pressure caused the cover to fly open.

"Great George, what a find!" Davies laughed aloud at the coincidence.

It was the stone toad in the temple garden that was responsible for their hasty departure from the Chinese town, and upon the stone toad Davies had mentally heaped all sorts of reproach.

Before him in a little paper lined box was a small stone toad. This toad was fashioned from gray-green soapstone, but its marvelous eyes caught and held Davies' fascinated gaze.

Such glorious green, winking, emerald eyes—yes, eyes formed of magnificent emeralds. And he had purchased them from the ancient man for a handful of money, perhaps $5 in all. Five dollars for a fortune!

Leonard Potter was looking over Davies' shoulder.

"Mr. Davies, is it possible that you, too, are a toad worshiper?" he demanded hoarsely.

To his surprise, Davies' answer was a laugh—such a laugh of mingled relief and joy that the little missionary could not understand. He only guessed that the heathenish stone toad had brought happiness to the dejected tea merchant, and he disapproved accordingly.

Davies sought out Van Ping, who was accompanying him to Shanghai, and he told him about the old man and the box he had purchased from him. Van Ping smiled in a knowing manner when Davies had concluded:

"Him San Bong—velly bad man always. Him soon die and no can take all things with him. San Bong sell for velly little. Where got? No can tell—no sabe. Him forgot himself."

Van Ping shook his head when Davies suggested that they return to Penfoo and try to find San Bong, who had undoubtedly unloaded some of his stolen treasures upon Davies.

"You keep—you velly rich—no sell more tea," grinned the faithful Chinaman.

On his arrival in Shanghai Bob Davies consulted his lawyer, and when he had been convinced of the futility of endeavoring to restore the stone toad to San Bong he took the emeralds to a jeweler to have them appraised.

When he discovered that they were worth a modest fortune Davies resigned his position with the tea importers and made preparations to return to America and to realize his rosy dream of a ranch in southern California. Van Ping was to accompany him.

"Now, I must do something for little Potter," thought Davies. "If it hadn't been for Potter and the big stone toad I would never have been chased out of Penfoo, and consequently I would never have gone through the creek sampans and would never have met up with that fairy godfather, San Bong, and the little stone toad. That being the case, Potter is responsible for my good fortunes, so I will send him a substantial check to help his good work along."

And the grateful letter he received from Leonard Potter ended thus:

"You will be interested to learn, dear Mr. Davies, that I am using this money to return to Penfoo, so that I may convince those benighted people that the stone toad in the temple garden has nothing whatever to do with the weather."

So Leonard Potter was swung once more into the circle of destiny that landed him in Penfoo, but what happened to him there history does not relate.

A Lame Excuse.

"I'll never trade with that druggist again," snapped Mrs. Twobble.

"How now, my dear?" said Mrs. Gadders.

"After I bought a stamp from him I asked him if he wouldn't lick it for me, and he said I would have to excuse him, as he had a pimple on his tongue."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A WORD ABOUT ENSILAGE.

All kinds of ensilage will be utilized in feeding operations this year. There will be thousands of cases where corn was put in the silo before the grain had reached the milk stage and some instances even where the crop was put in before it had eared. Some disappointment will be experienced unless considerable dry feed in the form of fodder or hay is used in conjunction with this succulent ensilage. Under no circumstances should young cattle or even fattening cattle be fed this green, washy ensilage alone. Then there are those who have put corn in the silo anywhere from a week to two weeks after it was frosted. Unless abundance of water was used at the time of filling a supply of moldy ensilage will be available. This is a matter that must be watched most carefully, because mold is dangerous and not infrequently animals are poisoned as the result of eating it. If our experiment stations could compile a bulletin next spring giving the results of feeding the various kinds of ensilage that will be used this winter it would make exceedingly interesting reading.—Iowa Homestead.

STORING SWEET POTATOES.

Cold Weather Is Hard In Its Effects on These Tubers.

[Prepared by Kansas station.]

Cold weather is hard on the sweet potatoes, says Professor D. E. Lewis of the Kansas State Agricultural college, and they should not be left in the ground much after the first frost. If the vines were cut before the frost, however, many of the underground roots may yet be saved. They should immediately be dug and placed in some kind of suitable storage unless intended for direct consumption. Two things must be kept in mind—a temperature of about 85 degrees and ample ventilation are necessary.

During this time the potato is sweating. Unless the superfluous moisture is carried off, the potato will not keep. A high temperature carries it through its sweating process more quickly than a low one. The sweet potatoes are placed either in bins or in crates. The latter method demands more room than the former, but is more satisfactory because of its superior ventilation.

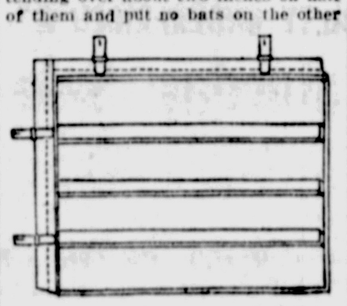

A sweet potato bin should be raised six or eight inches from the ground. The bottom, and often the sides, should be of slats. Some growers prefer solid sides, claiming they produce a better draft. Potatoes never should be piled high in a bin because of danger of bruising the lower roots with the excessive weight.

After the sweating period has passed, the temperature should be allowed to drop to 60 degrees—never below 55 degrees. Hold it there throughout the winter by means of fires. A lower temperature brings about rotting and a higher one starts growth.

Care should be taken to select only sound potatoes for storage, and from the time that they are put in until they are taken out they should not be handled, especially during the sweat.

A Durable Stack Cover.

A very durable stack cover can be made of boards in sections about four feet wide by six feet long. Place four boards one inch by four feet by six inches side by side and fasten together by braces. Paint joints on upper side and paint bats before covering the joints. Do not run bats way to the top, but run one bat along the top, extending over about two inches on half of them and put no bats on the other half, so that the bat will cover them both. Put bats on right side of each section so that it will cover the edge of next section. Place barn hasps on the bats so that they will fit staples on the companion section. Care should be taken to get these hasps and staples rightly located. These covers will be found to be very convenient to use as stack covers, covers for machinery, chick coops, pig shade, cattle shade, etc. Being light and movable, they can be put to a great number of uses and, being rigid, are not easily blown away, nor will they sag.—Farm Progress.

Rutabagas For Garden.

The rutabaga is an excellent winter and spring vegetable for the table as well as a good stock food. It has also been demonstrated that they find a ready sale on the southern markets during the winter and early spring. For rutabagas the soil should be finely prepared and the seed sown in drills about three feet apart. As soon as a stand is secured the plants are thinned to about ten inches in the drill and given light cultivations at frequent intervals until frost comes. This plant will stand any degree of cold that we are likely to have in the extreme south. Well rotted lot manure is the best fertilizer to use, but if it is not available cottonseed meal will answer the purpose.—E. J. Watson, Louisiana Station.

A Member of Fire Engine Company No. 6

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

There was a fire engine house near Mr. Singleton's city residence, and it so happened that the place was an object of curiosity to his little daughter Bess. The moment she heard the sharp ring of the gong announcing a fire she would run to the engine house to see the horses hurried to their places beside the tongue of the machines, prance impatiently till they were hooked, then dash out of the house, followed by the ragtag and bobtail of the town—and Bess.

She was six years old when this admiration for fire apparatus, horses and men first developed itself, and very soon she was noticed by the firemen sitting at the doors of the engine house in armchairs waiting for an alarm. One day one of them offered to show her the premises. She accepted the invitation and inspected everything with eyes as big as saucers. When she departed she was told to make herself at home there.

And she did. She went in and out at her own sweet will, climbed up on the hook and ladder truck, the hose carts and occasionally would ask to be put on the back of one of the horses. One day when she was ten years old a roll of parchment was left at her home on which was written, "This is to certify that Elizabeth Singleton has been duly elected a member of fire engine company No. 6." The words were surrounded by pictures of engines dashing to fires, burning buildings and firemen carrying women and children down ladders from the upper story.

This was the proudest day of Bess' life.

She was on the ladder truck one day when an alarm came. No one noticed her till the men jumped on to the footboard putting on their jackets; then one of them saw her hanging for dear life to the rung of a ladder. It was too late to put her down. At any rate, no one made a move to do so, and she was carried to the fire. There was little to do in quenching the flames, and since the ladders were not needed she was permitted to remain perched high, an object of interest to a gaping crowd. On the return she was put down at her home and lectured by her mother.

But from playing in an engine house she had got a taste for going to a fire, and from that time forward all efforts to keep her away from the former failed. One day when the department paraphernalia was about to respond to an alarm one of the men beside the truck turned and nearly fell over her. She put up her arms, and before he realized what he was doing he had swung her up on to the ladders.

Bess grew up the pet of the fire company and was considered a part of it, a part of which the men were very proud. When she was sixteen all the younger members were in love with her, and the older ones considered her something to adore. They raised a fund among them to procure a marble bust of her that was put up in the engine house.

Mr. and Mrs. Singleton did not quite know what to think of all this—whether to be proud of it or ashamed of it. Bessie's associates envied her, having her bust set up in the engine house and the friendship of the firemen, but they had no desire to cling to the round of a ladder on the way to a fire. However, her parents could not separate her from the fire company and gave up their efforts to do so. But about this time she came of an age to see that going to fires was not becoming to a young woman and of her own accord ceased all visits to the engine house except on state occasions.

When Bess was sixteen her father was elected sheriff of the county. One day a murder was committed that excited the indignation of the populace to such an extent that, assuming a man who had been arrested for the murder was guilty, they proposed to lynch him. Marching to the jail, they demanded the accused. There was no adequate defense, and the sheriff took the man out through a back door into an alley and thence to his own home. Unfortunately the two were seen by one of the mob, and before long they appeared and demanded the prisoner.

When Bess saw the crowd before her father's door and the trouble he was in an idea occurred to her. Slipping away, she ran to the engine house and, with flushed cheeks and out of breath, told the firemen of the situation.

"What can we do, boys?" asked the chief.

"Play on them!" said Bess.

"Good!" cried a dozen voices, and in a jiffy horses were placed before the engine, it was hauled to the sheriff's house, and suddenly the mob, who were howling for the prisoner, found themselves before a stream that knocked them down as fast as it was turned from those who had fallen to those still on their feet. Within five minutes the street was cleared.

The proudest men in the town were the firemen, who had found an opportunity to do a service for their idol. And as for the Singletons, no objection was after that ever raised to her going to fires and climbing the walls of burning buildings if she chose to do so.

When Bess was married a silver tea service was given her by her fellow members of the fire company. They were all invited to the wedding, and when later a little girl was born to the bride she was made a member by inheritance of fire engine company No. 6.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Jan. 16.—The following from this place attended the public installation ceremonies of Sheridan Council, O. U. A. M., in Ulster Park Tuesday evening: Henry E. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Carey C. Secor, Mrs. Elliot Hotaling, John Cure and Emma Cure. They reported a delightful time and did not return home until the wee small hours of morning.

The prayer service to be held in the Reformed Church this evening will be in charge of Andrew M. Taylor.

Mrs. Kate M. Rouk is ill at her home on Broadway.

Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias will meet this evening in their Castle Hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Elmer Hutchings of Broadway who has been ill of grip is better and able to be out again.

The "Goo Goo" Club is very anxious to make this, their third dance, a banner one and they depend on your hospitality. You lovers of the light fantastic, are you with them Monday evening, Jan. 17, at Pythian Hall? Keep the date in mind.

Services will be held in the Reformed and Methodist Churches this evening. Rev. V. D. Mattice of Kingston will be in charge of the meeting in the Methodist Church. Rev. Mr. Mattice has many friends in this village, who will be pleased to hear him again. Professor Phillips of Kingston will be present and sing and a sleigh load of people from Esopus are expected to attend the meeting. As this is the closing meeting for this week, let those who have been regular attendants at the services and others be present and receive a blessing of helpfulness.

Trojans Lose at East Kingston.

In one of the fastest and cleanest games of the season played at the East Kingston Hall on Thursday evening the Trojans were defeated by the fast East Kingston five. The Trojans missed many baskets. They couldn't locate the basket in the first session but came back strong in the second period. Dick Henebery, the big center of the East Kingston five, played in league style, doing the best and fastest floor work done in some time, simply losing his own players on the floor and making some sensational shots. Veteran Pete Norton, who was on the coach line for the Trojans, claimed if they followed his orders the score would be worse, so Pete resigfined as coach. Music was furnished by Murray and Joseph of Kingston for dancing. The score:

KERHONKSON.

Kerhonkson, Jan. 14.—The Willing Workrs of the Methodist Church will give a measuring party in the basement of the church Wednesday evening, January 19. Every one is invited to come and bring five cents for each foot they are high and one cent for each inch over the foot. A free entertainment with coffee and sandwiches will be part of the evening's pleasures. Games will be provided for those that enjoy them and a general good time is expected. Ice cream will be on sale.

Mrs. Hiram Wells and daughter are visiting Mrs. Silas Kimbark in Kingston.

Mrs John Whittaker and Mrs. Rachel Munson will entertain the "Tens" at the home of Mrs. Whittaker on Friday evening of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bilyou have moved in the house with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burger.

Joseph Pettibone is spending a few days in Albany on business.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church had a dime social Friday night of last week.

Mrs. Rachel Hendrickson entertained the older people at her home Friday evening.

The "Tens" seem to have started up in good shape and these socials are certainly very pleasing diversions at very little cost.

The "Old District School" is a play that will be given by the choir of the Reformed Church the latter part of this month. This is a new version and has never been given in these parts before. Watch out for the date and be sure to come and bring all your friends. They will enjoy a good laugh with you. The musical part of the play is very amusing. You can't help but enjoy Ben Butler and Patience Puddyfoot. Oh, my.

The Sunshine Society of Wawarsing met at the home of Mrs. Jerome Snyder Thursday of last week to elect officers for 1916. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Asa Gray, president; Mrs. Jerome Snyder, vice president; Mrs. Slater, secretary; Mrs. Churchill, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. Kortright, treasurer; Mrs. H. Berier, assistant treasurer; Mrs. David Weise, organist; entertainment committee, Mrs. D. Wiese, Mrs. G. Churchill, Mrs. J. Snyder. After the business of the day was completed a very pleasing program was enjoyed, which consisted of recitation, Mrs. John Johnson; reading, Mrs. Gordon Churchill; piano solo, Mrs. David Wiese; recitation, Miss Goretta Berier of Napanoch; reading, Mrs. Arthur Hoornbeek; piano solo, Miss [illegible] Hanker of Kerhonkson; reading, Miss Lillian Green. After which refreshments were served. Twenty-seven members were present and three visitors. This society is to be congratulated on its method of conducting its meetings and the unity with which all the members work together.

STONE PLEADS FOR TIME FOR CARRANZA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—"For God's sake, give Carranza a chance!"

With his voice trembling with emotion, and with pleading gestures, Senator Stone of Missouri this afternoon thus set forth the administration's Mexican policy amid a storm of fierce demands for immediate intervention in the senate. The veteran Democrat leader had returned from a long conference with the president to find a senate in a state of excitement. A resolution authorizing and directing immediate intervention introduced by Senator Works (Cal.) had aroused a storm of debate. The administration was under heavy fire from Republican senators demanding satisfaction for Americans murdered in Mexico. Republican Leader Gallinger demanded in the name of the people of the United States to know what the administration intended to do.

Life and Character Reading

JANUARY 14.

Mars and Saturn are the governing planets for all birthdates from December 21 to January 20.

The sign of Capricorn is also the ruler of these birthdates. Many famous writers, singers and inventors are born under these planets.

The talent of this sign indicates good success in mercantile work. Journeys will be made. Ability to convince by the written word is evident.

At the head of a business there will be a success but the nature is not fitted to serve the dictation of others.

There seems to be extremes of life. While very extravagant, in many ways there is also a tendency to withhold.

Pride, passion and power are strongly developed. The birthstone is a moonstone.

FORD OF HIGHLAND SUED FOUR TIMES

Harold Ford's activity in causing the arrest of four Italians of Highland for the theft of a half ton of grapes from his fruit farm at Highland on October 1, 1914, led to four suits against him by the Italians for false arrest, a test case of which occurred today in county court. Frank Briganti was the plaintiff in today's case and he wants $1,000 for the loss of time and labor incurred in the arrest. Frank W. Brooks appeared for him and A. W. Lent for the defendant.

Mr. Ford noticed the robbery of the grapes from his vines on the morning after it occurred and he saw two tracks leading from the vineyard, one of a man's shoe and the other that of a woman's. He followed them and noticed that they led to the home of Briganti, who, as all the other Italians involved in the cases, was employed by the O'Brien Construction Company in building a track at Highland. Then he notified Justice of the Peace T. Edward DuBois, who upon Ford's request, issued a warrant for the arrest of the four Italians. The evidence which Ford gave in support of his desire for the arrest of the men was the presence of about two hundred pounds of grapes in a shed on Briganti's property. These grapes were of the same kind that had been stolen from the farm, and seemed to be fresh. Briganti stated that they were bought from a nearby farmer named Whittley a few days previous and were to be used in making wine. Briganti was not home at the time when the search was made but the family did not object to Ford's investigating the house and shed.

The case was continued at the afternoon session.

EDDYVILLE.

Eddyville, Jan. 14.—Miss Sadie Sweeney of New York city, who has been visiting her parents at that place, has returned to Eddyville where all of her friends were glad to see her again.

William Snyder of New Salem is spending some time in New York city, where he is to attend the automobile show.

Mrs. Henry Raymer spent Thursday in Kingston.

A party of twenty-five of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church attended a revival meeting in the Port Ewen M. E. Church. The trip to and from, as well as the services, were enjoyed by all and another trip is looked for Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bank are ill with the grip.

Mrs. Richard Mooney gave a party on Tuesday evening to some of the young people in honor of Miss Sadie Sweeney.

Francis McCarthy has moved from the house by the Kennedy store to the house formerly occupied by William O'Reilly.

Our streets are very slippery and walking is hard, as one of our young ladies found on Thursday morning when coming to the post office. But luckily for her, assistance was close at hand.

ACCORD.

Accord, Jan. 14.—A. Cornell and family of Alligerville have moved into E. H. Gordon's house.

Mrs. David Depuy has returned home after spending several days at Cottekill.

It is reported that the creamery at this place will soon be reopened. The ice house will be partially filled with ice that will be shipped in from a lake along the O. & W.

Mrs. Bert Lester is visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Schoonmaker went to Walden Thursday.

Miss Bessie Warhaftig has returned home from her visit to New York city and vicinity.

Filling ice houses is the business of the day.

Brown Auto Supply to Move.

The Brown Auto Supply Company, which has occupied a store in the Stuyvesant Garage, will move to the store formerly occupied by the Clinton Rest and expects to be ready for business in their new quarters on on about January 22. The Browns expect to have one of the best auto supply stores in the Hudson valley when they will have moved to their new store.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Dress Mfg. Co. will be held at the office of the company at No. 36 East Strand on Saturday Jan. 29, 1916 at 2 o'clock for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of any other business that may come before it.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 14.—The tone of the stock market at the opening was strong, stocks being in brisk demand with vigorous advances in many issues during the first fifteen minutes. War order stocks were again prominent, as the result of reports of additional orders and definite statements in regard to current earnings. Crucible Steel continued its upward movement, advancing 3 points to 63. American coal products rose 5½ to 166, Baldwin Locomotive 1⅝ to 108⅜ and New York Air Brake 1½ to 147½. Industrial Alcohol rose 5½ points to a new high record of 138. International Nickel also was established at a new high record, advancing 4½ points to 209. The advances in these issues were supplemented by substantial gain in the standard stocks. United States Steel common rose ⅝ to 85⅞, American Smelting 1⅜ to 105⅝ and Anaconda Copper ⅝ to 109⅛. New York Central was the strongest of the railroad list, moving up ⅝ to 110⅝. Rock Island gained ½ to 19⅛ and Chesapeake & Ohio rose ⅝ to 65⅜. Mexican Petroleum advanced two points to 114.

Trading continued active in the late forenoon with many issues showing pronounced strength. Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel each held steady around their early high levels. Marine preferred made a new high record of 80⅝, a gain of 2¼ points in all. The war order issues were prominent, Bethlehem Steel advancing to 449⅞, a gain in all of 19⅞ points. Crucible Steel continued to advance, selling at 64½, a gain in all of 4½ points. Studebaker rose 2 points to 154 and Tennessee Copper advanced to 59 against 57¾ at the close yesterday. The standard issues were also active and strong. Money loaning at 1¾ per cent.

The war order stocks continued the most prominent during the late afternoon. Baldwin Locomotive sold up to 110 against 106¾ at the close yesterday. General Electric advanced 1¼ to 172, Maxwell Motors 2½ to 68, and Pressed Steel Car 3 points to 61, and Studebaker rose to 156, a gain of four points so far for the day. Corn Products sold at an advance of a point to 21½. Steel common held steady, selling around 85¾. Tennessee Copper advanced ⅛ further to 59⅛.

The stock market closed active and strong. The war order stocks were the features, many of these stocks showing advances of 5 to over 8 points. Bethlehem Steel sold at 455, a jump of 25 points for the day. Crucible Steel crossed 68, a rise of over eight points. Studebaker touched 159, an improvement of seven points. There was a special movement in Corn Products which moved up 2 points to above 23. Steel common sold at 86⅜, a gain of about a point. Many of the minor industrials including Pressed Steel Car, rose 1 to 3 points for the day. Western Union showed pronounced strength. The railroad group was neglected. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds strong.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

R. J. Gardner, a former Middletown liveryman and a native of Sullivan county, is dead in Fort Smith, Ohio. He was 54 years old.

Miss Mary Sinnott died Thursday at her home, East Bridge street, Saugerties, after a long illness, in her 54th year. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

The funeral of Agnes, the six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold, was held this morning at 11 o'clock from the family residence, No. 13 Abeel street, with interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Helen J. Post was held on Thursday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Boyd, No. 195 Ten Broeck avenue. The Rev. George M. Cranston officiated and the interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

William H. Hafer died early this morning at his home, No. 98 Murray street. Besides his parents with whom he lived, he is survived by five brothers, Frederick, Frank, Clarence, Walter and George Hafer, and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Rice and Mrs. Peter Halloran. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence. The Rev. H. E. Snyder of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer officiating. The interment will be in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Bessie Hunt was held Thursday morning from St. Mary's Church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Hickey, who also spoke and paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The large number who viewed the remains gave evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. The bearers were Francis Cashin, Eugene Carey, Edward Perry, Leo Kegler, Arthur Maines and Clarence Colligan. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, where Father Hickey performed the last rites for the dead.

James K. Monigan, a well known Pine Bush merchant, died Saturday morning from pneumonia, contracted after an operation performed in Thrall Hospital in Middletown six weeks ago. He was aged 62 years. Deceased was the senior member of the firm of James K. Monigan & Co., general merchants, and had lived in Sullivan county most of his life. He was the owner of a large farm near Fallsburgh, where he spent much of his time. Mr. Monigan was born in Ellenville, Ulster county, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Monigan, and had been a resident of Pine Bush for about eight months. He was married at Monticello to Mary Beebe, who survives. Also surviving are two children, Frank B. and Violet, and one sister.

THE AMERICAN RAVEN.

Found Now Only In Safe Retreats In the Rocky Mountains.

The raven has gained little in the affections of the people from his kindly act of supplying Elijah, the prophet, with food when hunger pressed him. The raven is thought of as a bird of ill omen wherever his black shadow appears. He is the sinister bird, and he cannot shake from his feathers his evil name, though it be only in part deserved.

How can any one be supposed to cultivate affection for a bird of which a great poet could write lines like these:

The sad presaging raven tolls
The sick man's passport in her hollow beak
And in the shadow of the silent night
Doth shake contagion from her sable wing.

The raven is passing. Already it has almost entirely disappeared from the British islands. Formerly the American raven was fairly common in our middle western country, in New England and in the lower ranges of the Allegheny mountains. Today it is only occasionally to be seen in its ancient haunts.

In the Rocky mountains, however, where men are scarce, the raven is holding its own. It builds its nest on the edge of the ledges of the inaccessible cliffs, and, sighting its foe from afar, it keeps the distance in which lies safety.

The raven is ugly in shape, as it is in voice. Its sole beauty lies in the luster of its feathers when the sun strikes them full and fair. It is a bearded bird, with high shoulders and certain bumps and humps here and there to make its form seem utterly lost to symmetry.

The bird is not altogether bad. It robs the nests of other birds, and it is this trait of character which has lost it caste and life in England. The gamekeeper shoots it on sight, and in recent years, because of the growing scarcity, the museum collectors have been hunting the raven in all places where it is reported to have dared to show its head.

The raven is the bird of books. It has a larger place in literature perhaps than all other birds combined if we except the eagle. Shakespeare mentions it no less than fifty times. Milton did not neglect it, and all the poets—ancient, medieval and modern—have considered the raven.

The American raven probably will be safe in his Rocky mountain haunts for years to come, but he is so far removed from man's habitations that his picturesqueness, his oddities, his gravities and his croakings virtually are lost to the world.—Chicago Post.

Scratch!

Tommy and Freddie were arguing hotly. "I tell you," vociferated Tommy, "he is my pa, he is!"

Freddie laughed scornfully. "He ain't either your paw."

"He is—he is! My ma says he is too."

"And my ma says he's a catspaw!"—Judge.

CLAIMED THE SHIP

Maro Thought He Was Eligible to Command a Cruiser.

AN OLD TIME NAVAL PRANK.

The Shabby Trick That Was Played Upon a Patriotic Greek Boilermaker by Some of Uncle Sam's Sailors With Whom He Had Shipped.

"A number of years ago the cruiser on which I was serving shipped a boilermaker while we were on the Mediterranean station," said a retired petty officer of the navy. "Our former boilermaker's time expired while we were at Gibraltar, and as he was not in good physical shape he wasn't re-enlisted, but took his discharge and returned to the United States by mail steamer. So the ship was shy a boilermaker, a very important and necessary petty officer down below in the engineer's department, and when the ship pulled into Naples harbor the chief engineer went ashore to see if he couldn't dig up a boilermaker.

"There was a clause in the enlistment regulations permitting commanding officers to ship necessary men on foreign stations in short handed emergencies. The chief engineer brought back to the ship a Greek named Charlie Maro. The man couldn't speak any English to speak of, but he was a good man at the boilermaking business, and he was duly shipped aboard of us for three years. He was a wild, hairy looking lot, Maro was, and he got a good deal of a laugh at the hands of the crew, especially the younger fellows, from the time he first came over the side.

"Maro thought that there wasn't any other country on the map except Greece, and after he got hold of enough English to make himself understood he used to take some of the young apprentice boys up into the eyes of the ship and tell them, with many gesticulations and furious words, of the different kinds of tar Greece could knock out of Turkey.

"The ship was around on the Pacific station when the war broke out between Greece and Turkey. When the news of the outbreak of the war got to Maro, our boilermaker, he nearly had heart disease and a whole lot of other sudden things from pure excitement. He just couldn't hold himself in, he looked so thrilled.

"'Da Greek man willa bim, bim, bim, da Tourka man,' was Charlie Maro's way of putting it, and he didn't see that the Turk had a ghost of a show. All hands forward encouraged him in the belief. They all acquiesced in expressing the belief to Maro that Greece would simply eat Turkey up. Then a boatswain's mate who knew how to crack the most impossible jokes with a face as solemn and wooden as an Indian's took Charlie in hand and told him some things. He told Maro that the United States was so much in sympathy with Greece in the struggle with Turkey to turn over all of the ships of the American navy to Greek commanders.

"'Here's a chance for you, Maro,' the boatswain's mate told Maro. 'You just want to work your edge. Here you are already shipped on this cruiser, and it's dollars to doughnuts that if you ask for the command of this ship in order to take her over to Greece to mix it up with the Turks you'll get it hands down. Better try it on.'

"Maro was impressed. Maro a heap. He used the boatswain's mate whom he'd have to apply to to get command of the cruiser.

"'Why, to the commanding officer, of course,' was the reply.

"Maro was tremendously important for a day or so while he let this huge idea grow within him, and he bullied the men detailed to work with him down below in the boiler room a good deal. The boatswain's mate kept working him up to it, and finally Maro appeared on deck one morning togged out in his very best mustering suit of blue jacket clothes and went up to the officer of the deck and asked permission to see the commanding officer at the mast. The officer of the deck was rather surprised to see the man all done up in his mustering togs when all hands were at work, but, as he is obliged to do when an enlisted man requests permission to see the commanding officer, he sent word to the skipper, who soon emerged from his cabin and appeared at 'the stick.'

"'Well, my man?' said the skipper to Maro, who stood bolt upright and saluted with a flourish.

"'Sare,' said Maro to the skipper, 'I hav-a da honor to her-a-by taka da command of-a da ship.'

"'Hey?' said the commanding officer, putting his hand to his ear and looking as if he hadn't heard aright.

"'Da ship,' repeated Maro. 'For-a da navee of-a Hellas—de Greeka navee—I hava da honor to taka da command.'

"All hands among the enlisted men were up on the to'gallant fo'c'sle taking the thing in, and they broke into a roar that you could have heard five cable lengths' distance. Maro heard it and, suspecting that his confidence had been abused, got red and flabbergasted. He suddenly bolted for the engine room hatch and made his way below, and it took three marines to drag him aft to the sick bay, where the surgeon, at the skipper's command, gave Maro a half hour's examination as to his sanity. Maro was game enough to decline to give the name of the enlisted man who had told him he was eligible for the command of the ship upon its being 'turned into the navy of Greece,' but the thrashing he gave that boatswain's mate when he got him 'on the beach' was certainly savage."

Too Many Have That Idea.

"Knowledge is power," remarked the party of the first part. "Maybe so," responded the party of the second part, "but you want to get rid of the idea that when you switch off for the night the trolley cars have to stop running."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

The day is cold, old winter's here,
Oh, see the snowflakes fall.
The diamond's buried neath the ice,
And yet the boys play ball.
They slam 'em out from round the stove,
They grab 'em on a line,
It's the game they play in winter,
As in the summer time.

One of the most recent nominees for the office of "Luckiest Man in Baseball" is "Lefty" Baumgartner, of the Phillies, who worked in 16 games in 1915, failed to win the verdict in any of them, and yet grabbed down a slice of world series as big as that awarded to Grover Alexander.

Those who have seen May Sutton Bundy since her "come-back" in tennis, says that added years and inactivity in the tennis way during the past two or three seasons, have robbed her of nothing but a trifle of the old stroke force.

"Mrs. Bundy" writes an expert, "is the same wonderful court placer as during the hey dey of her career. She covers as much ground and with as much rapidity, but her stroke is not quite as strong. This probably is due to the fact that her muscles have softened through inactivity. Constant playing may restore her powerful driving."

Glen Warner, the coach of the University of Pittsburgh footballers, ranks as one of the greatest strategists in sporting history. Warner has a nimble brain and one that adjusts itself to meet every complex situation.

Some years ago when he was ccaching a Cornell team some of the best men on his team were inclined to loaf. Warner berated them time and again, but the loafing continued. The boys had grown a bit chesty over the fact that one of the Ithaca papers was boosting them day after day. They figured they were stars and they didn't need to work.

Well, all of a sudden, the papers that had been boosting them, began to print articles criticising them. It charged them with loafing—with having "swelled heads." And right away those fellows took a "tumble" to themselves; they began to throw their hearts and souls into the work.

Yes, Oscar, you've guessed it, Warner went to the editor, explained the situation to him, and then got permission to write the articles which "panned" the players.

Charles Murphy's Story.

Charles Waistcoat Murphy, who made a million dollars in baseball through his part ownership of the Chicago Cubs, was "fired" into making a fortune.

"I started life as a drug clerk" said Murphy. "I had hopes of someday becoming owner of a drugstore. That was my life's ambition at that time. I was working for a German druggist at the time one of the opening ball games were staged in Cincinnati. I wanted to see that game, but I knew it wouldn't do any good to ask to get away. My boss thought baseball was foolishness.

"'So I framed up a story. I told him that I was going to one of the Cincinnati suburbs where I hoped to sell a druggist a nice bill of our goods. The German was pleased—and he let me away for the afternoon. I went to the ball game and when I got back to the store in the evening I explained to my boss that I wasn't able to sell the country druggist any goods.

"'Id iss liddle vonder!' sneered my boss. 'Yoost a few minids ago vun of my frients was here. He sait you vas so bisy yelling at der ball game you couldn't half sold anything but peanuts. You iss fired. Ged oudt of my store—ged oudt!'

"I got out. There was nothing else for me to do, but get out. I hunted around for a job, and finally landed with Charles P. Taft's newspaper. While I was working on that sheet a chance came to buy the Cubs. I enlisted the financial aid of Mr. Taft—and we became owner of the club."

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Pal More beat Zulu Kid in eight rounds here last night.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 14.—Frank Gotch and Mrs. Gotch are on their way to California, where the wrestling champion will spend two months getting into better physical condition. Gotch has signed a contract to give physical culture exhibitions and participate in mat bouts before circus crowds next summer. His contract calls for $1,200 a week.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—Alfredo de Oro is in no danger of losing his title as champion three-cushion billiardist. In the second block of his match with Lloyd Jevne the Cuban increased his lead, the score now being 100 to 61. The final block of 50 points will be played tonight.

New York, Jan. 14.—Peter Zalesnow, of Russia, the "Human Spring," is smarting under his first defeat in the international wrestling tournament. Peter was pinned to the mat by the "Masked Marvel" last night after one hour and four minutes of catch-as-catch-can grappling.

New York, Jan. 14.—Jess Willard does not want to box in March. Efforts to get the champion to meet Frank Moran in March probably will come to naught. The champion is willing to box in May. If the match is staged then, it will undoubtedly be held in the open air—probably at Brighton or Ebbetts Field.

PINE GROVE.

Pine Grove, Jan. 13.—Chester Snyder and sister, Miss Julia, are ill with the grip. Dr. Luther Emerick is the attending physician.

Miss Elizabeth Snyder of Catskill spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Snyder.

A party was given by Miss Mabel Myer at her home on Saturday evening. Some of the young people of Pine Grove and Woodstock were present and spent the evening.

Mrs. Fred Chapman of Daisy spent Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward Bishop.

Mrs. W. S. Mygrant, Percy Mygrant and wife, Mrs. Louise Minnerly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, Charles Snyder and wife, Franklyn Snyder and wife and William Snyder, wife and daughter, Grace, were callers at the home of D. Myer Snyder on Sunday.

Harry Mower and wife and the Misses Hazel and Vina Spielman attended the dance at Zeigler's Hall, Quarryville, on Saturday evening. While there they called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Cooke.

Charles Farrell is working for William Spring.

Ethan Yager of West Saugerties called at the home of Charles Bishop on Sunday afternoon.

The statement made in Pine Grove items that the large tree in front of Werner's Hotel was blown down by the heavy wind storm, was a mistake. Some large limbs were blown off but the tree still stands.

Mrs. Henry Swart is ill.

Mrs. Whitehead of Kingston, who was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Swart for a few days, has returned to her home.

The ice house that caved in, under the weight of the snow, a few weeks ago, is being rebuilt.

Chester Swart, who has been visiting friends at Brown's Station, has returned home.

The T. X. T. Club gave a dance at their club house on Thursday night of this week. Their masquerade dance of last week was a success in every way. The costumes were pretty and varied.

Dr. Wyckoff will take his vacation, commencing with Sunday, January 16, until the first of March. There will be preaching services the same as usual. Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Hoag of Saugerties will preach here.

Mrs. Benjamin Osterhoudt has been quite ill this past week.

COMPANY M HAS BASKETBALL TEAM

Kingston fans will have another chance to demonstrate whether they want basketball at the armory. In the face of the league team going to Elizabeth, the local management made up their minds that Company M should be represented by local boys, and basketball be resumed, notwithstanding the many stories that have emanated from other sources that amateur basketball would not interest the fans.

Tonight at the armory the Company M team will have as their opponents a team representing Company E of Catskill. The latter have always had a team of good calibre, and the local guardsmen will have to do some mighty clever playing to come out on the large end of the score. The game will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock, to allow plenty of time for dancing, music to be furnished by Martin.

At the parsonage at Kerhonkson on Wednesday, January 5, Miss Mamie Rose of this place and John Smith of Accord were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Pryne. The bride and groom have a host of friends who wish them success in their newly married life.

Mrs. Sally Walker is ill.

A number of people here have bad colds.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Turner attended the funeral of Richard Yeaple at The Clove chapel on Friday last, Mr. Yeaple being a cousin of Mr. Turner.

Harry Fish is filling his ice house.

Mr. and Mrs. William Addis, Jr., attended the funeral of Mrs. Addis's brother, Dolan Traphagen, at Ellenville, Monday.

Miss Ruby M. Smith, who has been spening the past two weeks with friends in Walden, returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Addis were the guests of John Smith and family at Pataukunk Friday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church held their last monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. George P. Smith, which was a business meeting. The election of officers took place for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Adam Turner; vice president, Mrs. George P. Smith; secretary, Mrs. Eugene Hook; recording secretary, Mrs. Adelbert Sheldon; treasurer, Mrs. Peter Addis.

Mrs. Rosetta Decker, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Etten and Mrs. Adam Turner were the guests of Mrs. Bernard Schoonmaker at Kerhonkson Friday.

Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and daughter, Evelyn, of Kerhonkson, were the guests of her sister, Mrs. Increase Green, Jr. and family on Sunday.

Miss Marie Markle spent Saturday with Miss Hazel Turner.

A number of men of this place are engaged gathering ice at Minnewaska.

MOMBACCUS HEIGHTS.

Mombaccus Heights, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McNair of Accord visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Green on Sunday.

Miss Edna McDonald, who has been at Kingston for some time, taking medical treatment, returned home Saturday, much benefited.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Van Etten and daughter, Anna, spent Sunday with the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. A. Quick.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse McDonald and daughter, Edna, were out for a sleigh ride Sunday and called on J. Lennon and family.

Frank Green has purchased a new sleigh from S. Roosa of Alligerville.

The Rev. A. Quick's horse that has been ailing for some time, is much improved, also the horse of George Halwick's that has been so lame for several weeks, and practically unfit for work or driving.

Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter, have been ill with the grip.

Mrs. Harry Smith and litle daughter and Mr. and Mrs. A. McDonald spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green and family.

Two Sentiments.

A young lady one day requested Moltke and Bismarck to write a few lines in her album. The marshal took up the pen first and wrote: "Falsehood passes away; truth remains.—Von Moltke, Field Marshal." After reading what Moltke had to say Bismarck took the pen and added the following: "I know very well that truth will prevail in the next world, but in the meantime a field marshal himself would be powerless against falsehood in this world.—Von Bismarck, Chancellor of the Empire."

Some Bird.

The roc, a fabulous bird often referred to in the "Arabian Nights," was believed to be of such enormous size and strength as to be able to carry even elephants in its talons.

Teaches a Lesson.

Money is never spent to so much advantage as when you have been cheated out of it, for at one stroke you have purchased prudence.—Schopenhauer.

Those who mistake evil for good or good for evil will never attain to bliss.

GENERAL RODRIGUEZ & GENERAL PANCHO VILLA

MEXICAN LEADERS ACCUSED OF LATEST AMERICAN MASSACRE

Top: Gen. Rodriguez. Bottom: Gen. Villa.

The torture and murder of seventeen Americans near Chihuahua by Mexican rebel troopers supposedly under the command of General Villa and General Rodriguez has stirred official Washington. H C Myles, the British vice-counsul at El Paso, Tex., has been notified that a representative of the English governmenthas secured a sworn statement that Gen. Villa personally led the soldiers who killed the Americans.

The Deceit of Man.

She was buying some birthday cigars for her husband, and the dealer sold her a box for 40 cents.

"Her husband will give you fits when he gets those," said a bystander to the cigar man

"Oh, no, he won't," said the dealer placidly. "He told me to sell her those. His wife would divorce him if she knew he paid $5 a box for his cigars."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Pyramids.

The stones of the great pyramids are not laid with mortar. The great pieces of stone were evidently rubbed backward and forward upon each other until the surfaces were assimilated to each other, and so perfectly assimilated that to this day the breaks between them can hardly be discerned.—New York American.

Calculated.

Daughter—Do you think that painting looks like me, mother? Mother—The face does, but no one would ever guess that your gown cost your father a cold $1 000.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Quakers.

The term Quaker was first applied to the sect because of the founder's frequent use of the word "tremble" in his exhortations.—London Telegraph.

THE GREAT STOCK UNLOADING SALE!

AT THE J. DAVIS MANUFACTURING CO.'S

ALL VALUE-GIVING EVENTS SURPASSED! COME!

It would be a difficult matter for any one---for any writer---no matter how skilled that writer may be---to do justice in cold type to the sensational economy advantages which this drastic Stock Unloading Sale presents. Since the beginning of the event last Saturday, our main floor has been a veritable beehive of buying activity, and for this most generous response we are grateful to all our old as well as new friends.

We wish to impress every woman in Kingston with the importance of being here Saturday, for our end-of-sale offerings will overtop any seen in Kingston for many a year. Remember, please, that we manufacture the Women's Coats, Suits, etc., that are sold here, and everything "cheap" or "loud" is carefully avoided. The garments involved in this movement are sample lots of this season's aristocratic fashions---some are advance Spring 1916 styles.

PainlessExtractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anaesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous-oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

HEPWORTH TAKES MORE APPLE PRIZES

J. A. Hepworth & Son of Milton are still at it, grabbing off first prizes for apples shown in competition with the best that other sections of the country can furnish. After polishing off competition at the state fair and the Poughkeepsie exhibition, they took a long jump to San Francisco, in the state where deluded easterners believe the finest fruit is grown, and came away with a collection of gold and silver medals. Now they have been exhibiting in Rochester, N. Y., and the result is given in the following letter from Mr. Hepworth, Sr., who may be a little old but is still very much in the ring when it comes to putting Ulster county and its products on the map.

Milton, N. Y., Jan. 14th, 1916.
Kingston Freeman.—

You are doing a great work for the Farm Bureau of Ulster county and if that does not take up the farmers of [illegible] will be a great loss to be derived from the Farm Bureau work [illegible] be dead ones.

Ulster county has the goods, of all kinds, only it must let it be known. We had an exhibit of apples at the New York State Fruit Growers Association at Rochester, N. Y. January 11th to 14th. Received first prize on best Box Baldwins, first prize on box Greenings, first prize on best Plate Newtown Pippins, and several second prizes. Ulster still keeps it place on the map.

J. A. HEPWORTH.

DRY CLEANING AT HOME.

A Mixture That Is Said to Do the Work Easily and Harmlessly.

Make a stock solution of eight ounces strong ammonia half an ounce of chloroform and half an ounce of ether. Cork tightly and keep away from the face, says the Scientific American. Dissolve a bar of naphtha soap in three gallons of hot water, add half a teaspoonful each of baking soda, salt and alum and three tablespoonfuls of the ammonia chloroform ether mixture.

To clean oriental or other rugs to their original brightness make a lather and dip a scrub brush in it, shaking out superfluous water. Go over the rug with this brush, and the lather dries out almost immediately. No harm whatever is done to the best oriental rug.

To sponge spots from clothing, even delicate silk and upholstery, dip a soft sponge in the lather, wring as dry as possible and sponge off the spot.

To wash sweaters, blankets or other flannels let the mixture become nearly cold, soak the garments in it half an hour or less, squeeze dry, rinse in clear water, squeeze dry again and hang up.

The various ingredients used not only remove grease and dirt, but set and brighten colors.

No Eye for Color.

Apropos of the amusing comments on academic costume that so often reveal popular ignorance of the symbolism of hoods and gowns is the following story, told by a contributor to the Liverpool Post:

A friend of mine, says he, is a curate in a local suburban parish. Some little time back he went up to Oxford to take his master of arts degree and the following Sunday appeared in the pulpit resplendent in his new master of arts hood. A few nights later he was dining in the house of a prominent parishioner and was amazed to hear his hostess pleasantly remark:

"Mr. X., that new hood of yours doesn't suit you at all. I can't imagine why you, with your complexion, chose red of all colors in the world. A myrtle green or an old gold would have suited you much better and would have been far more effective. You men never know how to dress yourselves!"

When the Plague Raged.

Sir Walter Besant in one of his books says of the author of "Robinson Crusoe" and "Journal of the Plague," "De Foe was born in the year 1661. His father lived in Cripplegate, where, as we know, he had a shop. The child, therefore, was four years of age in the plague year. A child of four observes a great deal and may remember a great deal. De Foe says: 'When any one bought a joint of meat he would not take it out of the butcher's hand, but took it off the hooks himself. On the other hand, the butcher would not touch the money, but put it into a pot full of vinegar which he kept for the purpose.' This must surely have been seen by the child and remembered. It happened in his father's shop before his eyes."

Henry VIII. and Puddings.

Bluff King Hal, otherwise Henry VIII of England, was exceedingly fond of puddings. At one time he gave a certain Mrs. Cranwa is a house in Aldgate for herself and her heirs forever "in reward of fine puddings." In King Henry VIII's private accounts occur again and again entries of his rewards to different housewives for bringing him puddings. A typical instance runs thus: "Item. The same day paid to the wife that made the king puddings at Hampton Corte, xls. viijd." This would be about $1.75 but its value was much greater when the entry was made.

A Thornless Rose.

The followers of Zoroaster have a theory that prior to the existence of sin in the world the rose was a thornless flower. In the east it is a tradition to this day that the burning bush in which the angel of the Lord appeared to Moses was a rosebush.

REDUCED MEAT PRICES AT
Lay's Saturday Sale

The inexperienced cannot appreciate the thrill in the tramp of many feet at a sale like our saturday events. There's a tense interest on the part of shoppers. Last week's sale surpassed even our most enthusiastic expectations. Many of our patrons have concluded that there is no comparison with our underpricing and sterling qualities. Our prices have always been low, and when we say "reduced" prices we mean prices that are already famously moderate. Our confidence in the invincibility of our sales very naturally carries conviction to the customer, and the result is an extremely heavy volume of business every Saturday.

The Inside of the Hotel

Is the part that counts with the guest. The architect doesn't make a hotel, he only designs it. The builder doesn't make a hotel, he only builds it.

Don't select your stopping place from the outside. Look behind the front wall and see what is back of it.

The success of the Hotel Martinique is the personality back of it, which shows in the lobby, at the desk, in the restaurants and in the rooms.

The telephone attendants, the mail clerks, the room maids, even the bellboys reflect the personality back of the "House of Taylor." We don't preach prices only. We have pleasant, homelike rooms from $1.50 up.

In one and all you will find reflected the careful and insistent idea of guest-service that dominates every moment of your stay.

Located in the Heart of Things, only a golf stroke from the Pennsylvania Depot. On Broadway's throbbing centre. The Martinique is the logical New York home for those on business or pleasure bent.

A Story of Revolution in Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

The republic of Mexico had been tranquil under the presidency of Ippolito Quintares, and it was supposed by that people of many governments that they would be permitted to continue at peace and to recover from the effects of anarchy.

But no one can tell what is about to happen in Mexico. In that country a revolution is liable at any time to flash like lightning from a clear sky.

One afternoon Manuel Coral, a nephew and the secretary of the president, rode into the country a distance of a dozen miles to the residence of General Munez, whose title had come from his once having commanded a band of revolutionists. But Coral was not going to see the general. Inez Garcia, the daughter of a former president of Mexico who had been deposed and garroted, being without means of support had been taken into the Munez family and made governess to the general's children. Manuel Coral had met her and fallen in love with her.

The young man reached the Munez hacienda as the sun was setting and rode up between an avenue of trees to the house. The general was sitting on his veranda. Coral threw himself from his horse, turned the beast over to a dusky stableman and advanced to meet the general. To his surprise the visitor saw under an assumed cordiality a partially concealed antagonism. The general seemed to be displeased at his coming. His previous visits had been welcomed by the host, and the visitor had every reason to presume that his attentions to Senorita Inez were approved by the general and his family. Their approval was a matter of importance, for the young lady owed them much and was treated more like one of them than a hireling. Manuel's first thought was that for some reason unknown to him they had withdrawn their consent for a match between him and their protegee.

"You will find Inez within," said the general after placing his hand coldly in that of Manuel. "She is arranging flowers for the table. Of course you will sup with us."

Manuel went into the house, meeting Senora Munez in the hall. She started on seeing him and knit her brows; then resuming her usual cordial manner she welcomed him, called Inez from the dining room, and the visitor and the senorita passed into the drawing room.

Inez, if she did not appear discomposed at his coming, seemed troubled.

"Something is wrong, sweetheart," said Manuel. "The general received me coldly, to say the least, embarrassment. Senora Munez was startled at seeing me, and you do not greet me as usual. Tell me what it all means."

Inez was silent for a moment, then made a reply that Coral knew was a prevarication.

"Don't you think you are exaggerating the want of cordiality of your reception? The general and Senora Munez may have something annoying on their minds that renders the presence of a visitor in the house just at present inconvenient to them."

Manuel studied her face, which was half averted, for a few moments and made up his mind that something was on hand which might be important, something that he should know. He resolved to conceal his suspicion.

"I can very well understand such a situation," he said. "Unlucky the hosts as well as the visitor who comes at an inopportune time. But, now I am here, we must all make the best of it. My ride from the city has given me an appetite, and the general has invited me to supper. If I find later in the evening that my presence is annoying I will go back to the city. It is a two hour ride and there are cutthroats on the way, but I will not force myself upon those who do not wish my company."

At the mention of his riding over a road that was infested by robbers Inez clung to him, appearing much disturbed. But she said nothing, and in another moment supper was announced.

After the meal Coral and his sweetheart were again permitted to occupy the parlor together. Manuel did not refer again to the want of cordiality with which he had been received. At 9 o'clock he arose to go. Inez seemed disturbed, but did not invite him to remain. Passing into the hall, the general came out of a room opposite to meet him.

"You are not going to the city tonight?" said Munez.

"Certainly. Why not?"

"Better remain here. I insist upon it. I should not forgive myself if you should meet with trouble on the way."

"What trouble?"

"Never mind that. We have a room for you, and I shall expect you to occupy it."

This was spoken not in a tone of invitation, but of command. Coral was more surprised than ever. Something was surely in the wind.

"Very well, general. Since you insist upon my remaining I will do so. But the president will be in his office early in the morning. That means that his secretary must be there early also."

"In that case you had better go to bed early. I will show you to your room. If I permit you to rejoin Inez, there is no telling when you will tear yourself away from her."

"May I ask, general, if there is any change in you and Senora Munez as to my union with Inez?"

"There is not."

"Very well. I will retire to my room now."

The general led the way to the second floor, all the rooms of which opened on a court. Throwing open the door to one of these rooms, the general set the candle he held on the bureau and, bidding his guest good night, left him.

Coral was puzzled. The general had assured him that his devotion to Inez had nothing to do with the manner of his reception. What, then, could it mean? He was at a loss to form any theory. He went to bed, but could not sleep for thinking of a solution. He expected to arise at 5 o'clock and ride to the city before 8. At 10 o'clock he heard the sound of a horse's hoofs on the road. They grew more distinct, approaching the house, and stopped before it. Coral heard what sounded like the clank of a saber.

In ten minutes the comer rode away, but within half an hour another horseman came and went as the other had done. Up to midnight five or six persons visited the house. Coral heard them come and go, but nothing more. Something surely was brewing. He began to get sleepy, but preferred not to go to sleep. To prevent his doing so he left his bed and sat by a window. The room was chilly, and he put on some of his clothing.

On a rise in the ground several miles distant he saw a light. It was a bonfire. On another summit was another. He counted five of these fires within view. What did they mean?

A faint light appeared in the east. A few minutes later Coral saw a flash through the keyhole of his door. Going to the door, he opened it just far enough to look out. He saw Inez with a candle in her hand at the foot of a staircase leading up to a square tower built at the corner of the house. He had often been up there and knew that there was a ladder in it giving access to the roof.

Inez ascended the stairs. Coral emerged from his room, ran around the court and followed her, overtaking her in the room that constituted the tower. So stealthily did he move that she did not know of his presence till she stood at the foot of the ladder leading to the roof, when she felt herself clasped by a pair of arms. Turning her head, she saw her lover.

"What are you going to do?" he asked in a whisper.

He partly unloosed her, and her head sank upon his breast.

"How unfortunate!"

"What is unfortunate?"

"Your coming at this time."

"Inez," he said sternly, "something is wrong. You are doing the work of General Munez. Choose now between him and me, once and forever."

"I am obliged to choose you. I cannot do what he requires of me without your permission, and when you know my intention you will prevent me."

Then followed a confession which amazed Coral more than his frigid reception, but explained it. General Munez was at the head of troops who were to begin their march to the capital at dawn to assassinate the president and seize the government. The insurgents were scattered. Each group had kindled a fire as a signal that it was ready and waiting. General Munez had gone to a point of rendezvous to take command. He had exacted a promise from Inez that she would at dawn show a light on the tower of his residence as a signal for the different bodies to converge at the point where they would find him.

Having received the confession, Coral bethought himself what to do.

"Inez," he said presently, "you have kept your word with your benefactor against your lover, so far as you are able. I will not permit you to give the signal. Promise me that you will go to your room and remain there, taking no further part in this matter. I will set out at once for the capital and warn the president. Do as I say, and I promise you that no action shall be taken against General Munez. Without the signal the revolution will collapse. The president will ignore it."

This proposition accorded with Inez's desires. She had been bitterly opposed to a movement which, having been concocted in the house where she lived, she was necessarily cognizant of. If successful it would make a breach between her and her lover; if it failed General Munez would suffer death. She made the promise.

"But you will not get through," she added. "All the roads leading to the capital are picketed, the guards being instructed to pass no one without the countersign."

"What is the countersign?"

She hesitated for a moment, then said, "Since the revolution cannot be carried out perhaps it is better that you should hear it." Then she whispered it in his ear.

"Goodby, sweetheart," he said. "You have acted for the best. The attempt would have failed, and General Munez would have suffered death."

Descending to the yard, he went to the stable, saddled his horse and was soon flying over the road to the city. He was often stopped; but, having the countersign, he was not long delayed. He now understood why the general had kept him overnight. He knew that Coral would not get through.

The signal not having been given, the troops dispersed at sunrise and the general returned to his home, wondering why his plan had gone awry, for he trusted Inez implicitly. She told him her story, and he admitted that she had acted for the best.

Instead of being shot as a traitor, General Munez was given a fat office, and he and the president shook hands at the wedding of Manuel Coral and Inez Garcia.

BIG DEMAND FOR MINSTREL TICKETS

The popularity of the Colonial Glee Club Minstrels, which will be given at the Kingston opera house next Monday and Tuesday nights for the benefit of the Elks' Club, was illustrated to good advantage this morning by the size of the crowd which gathered to exchange tickets for seat checks at the opera house box office.

The crowd which had gathered before nine o'clock—the opening hour of the box office—was somewhat larger than in former years, and the line stretched from the box office window nearly to the corner of John street. The early patrons did not attempt a monopoly of seats, however, although a number of those in line exchanged seats for members of their family as well as for themselves, and a number of choice seats for both nights remained on sale after the waiting crowd had been served. Good seats, therefore, may still be obtained, but it is advisable that anyone who has not yet bought tickets should secure seats at once, because the demand for the tickets has been larger than was anticipated.

High School Boys Won.

The High School Juniors showed what secondary school training will do in basketball when they ran away from the No 7 school five at the high school gym Thursday afternoon, the score being 42 to 23. The one big feature of the game was the remarkable passwork of the high school lads, they simply bewildering the grammar school kids by their clean and swift passes. In the junior team is the embryo of future high school basketball five and pretty good stuff at that. Smith McAndrew and Kirchner were the best shining lights of the high school, while No 7 pinned all their hopes on Martin and Schoonmaker, who carried most of the brunt of the battle. The score:

Funeral of Gen. Huerta.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 14.—Arrangements for the funeral of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, former Mexican dictator, will be made today. The former provisional president of the southern republic died in his home here of sclerosis of the liver last night. He had been unconscious most of the time for the last three days. He died without knowledge of the latest happenings in war-torn Mexico.

INVESTING MONEY.

Choose Between Speculative Risks and Safe Securities.

A famous capitalist, writing to Ida M. Tarbell in the American Magazine, says:

"There is no man in the world who can honestly say that he can invest money and be certain of permanent large returns. The big dividends come from speculative ventures and nobody should make them unless he is willing and able to lose all he puts in.

"I had a thousand dollars sent me today from a woman who wants 20 per cent. I cannot place it so that I can be sure she will permanently get 6 per cent. It is all she has in the world. I have no right to lose it, and I shall not do it. I shall return the money. If she could afford to lose it, that would be another thing.

"There is only one safe way for people to invest, and that is to choose sound, conservative bonds or stocks, and that after consultation with trustworthy brokers or bankers. In the long run it will be worth much more to them than the uncertain large dividend, but nobody believes me. They all think that if I would I could make a fortune for them. When I send this thousand dollars back the last thing this woman will do will be to thank me."

Locked That Way.

"I want a man who doesn't smoke or drink."

"What are the wages?"

"Six dollars a week."

"Guess you want a man who doesn't eat either."—Boston Transcript.

Nailed by the Ears.

KING OF URBAN TREES.

Qualities That Adopt the Elm to Architectural Surroundings.

The elm is essentially a self sufficient tree. It does not thrive in groves. It has a standard type of its own, and it either attains this type or is lost to view. The elm which comes to maturity is usually the one which has lodged in a favored spot where there is no competition such as a river meadow, where the spring freshets have dropped the seed on fertile soil and the roots can get down to water.

We all know the type, the noble trunk of massive girth tapering very gradually upward to the first spring of branches and then dissolving into those branches as a water jet might dissolve in many upward and out curving streams till the whole is lost in the spray of the foliage. Like many other trees that grow alone, it develops an exquisite symmetry. But with the elm this symmetry is not only one of general contour, but of individual limbs. Not only is the silhouette symmetrical, but the skeleton also, branch balancing branch.

That is what gives it its remarkable fitness to combine with architectural lines with geometrically designed vistas. It has a formal structure and a consequent dignity which make it the logical shade for a village street, a chapel, a library, the scholarly procession in cap and gown. Add to that dignity its arched or lacy lightness and its splendid size and you have the king of urban trees.—Walter Prichard Eaton in Century.

THE WOODEN WIFE. ©INT. FILM SERVICE.

GREEK SCULPTOR CARVES WOODEN WIFE FOR POET FRIEND.

George D. Pappasgeorge, His Bust, George Orphanus, Sculptor, and the "Wooden-Wife" Carved From Maple.

George D. Pappasgeorge a Greek poet who lives with his friend, George Orphanus, a Greek sculptor, in a little hut in the heart of the red-wood country in Marin county, Cal., has a wife who never scolds and who never answers back. She is carved of wood.

Orphanus heard his friend say that all that was needed to make life happy was a wife, so he set about and carved the large figure of a woman from maple-wood. He also carved a bust of Pappasgeorge. There will be a "wooden-wedding" soon.

LURE OF CHECKERS

A Game That Has Been Played For Twenty Centuries.

LONG KNOWN AS "DRAUGHTS."

Plato and Homer Mentioned the Game in Their Writings, and Many Relics of It Have Been Unearthed From the Tombs of Ancient Egypt.

In the messengers' room of a big industrial plant two boys hovered medi-tatively over a checkerboard of red and black squares and moved their "men" from square to square with much premeditation. An old man chanced that way and, lured by the contest, stopped and looked on. Taking the liberties or the rights that his years warranted, he suggested a move and was soon absorbed in the game. Another man came by and stopped, and soon there was a group around the silent and intent contestants. The lure of checkers was upon them.

This game in slightly modified forms has exercised its fascination upon the human race for centuries that cannot be counted. "Checkers" is a new name for an ancient game. To English speaking people it was long known as "draughts," and in all the languages of civilized men it has a name. There are variations in the way of playing it, but it is the familiar checkers of our time just the same.

So many things come to light out of the ancient tombs of Egypt that it strikes the modern man as remarkable how many articles they buried with men in those dim, long gone ages, but out of tombs at least twenty centuries old explorers, excavators and tomb breakers have brought forth pieces of checkerboards and the disks which for some reason are called "men." And as such things have been found in tombs that were sealed twenty centuries ago it is possible that some time in very much older tombs explorers may find relics of checkers.

In the British museum one of the exhibits in the Egyptian collection is a board and men of the ancient game which came out of one of those ancient tombs. Some of the oldest of the mural decorations of ancient Egypt depict players engaged at draughts, or whatever the ancient Egyptians may have called the game.

Classic references may be found to draughts. Plato mentioned it and writes that it was the invention of an Egyptian whom he called Hermes Trismegistus, but where and how Plato got the information are not clear. It is very easy to say that such and such a man invented such and such a game, but close investigation usually proves that he hit on some adaptation or variation of a very much older game.

Tracing the genesis of a game of skill or chance usually leads the investigator too far back in the mists of the past to be sure that he has found the correct answer.

This game is also mentioned by Homer and he records the observation that it was played during the period with which the "Odyssey" deals. There is little doubt that the Greeks played the game and that at a later period the Romans played a variant of it, which they called "latrunculi."

It was early played through northern Europe and was played there at such a remote period that it was said to have been one of the few things which were not introduced in that region by the Romans.

It was one of the most popular games in Europe during the sixteenth century. In the Library of Congress are several old books treating of the game. Samuel Johnson once wrote a preface to a book on the game of draughts which one William Payne had composed at the expense of much time and effort.

Students of checkers and very old players of the game recall the names of Anderson, an Englishman, and Wyllie, "the herd laddie," who were famous checker players about half a century ago. Wyllie traveled all over the world playing contests with local checker experts and enthusiasts. Martens, an English player, and two Americans, Yates and Barker, succeeded to the fame of Anderson and Wyllie.—Washington Star.

Richard Cromwell.

Oliver Cromwell tried to train his son to be a worthy successor as protector, but the attempt was a failure. Richard was easy going and amiable and more addicted to sports than to statecraft. He was the acknowledged lord protector from Sept. 3, 1658, to May 25, 1659 but cut little figure as such. He did not relish official duties and much preferred having a good time. The cavaliers called him "Queen Dick," and others still less respectfully spoke of him as "Tumbledown Dick." He was glad to quit when parliament told him to get out. After his abdication, however, he conducted himself with credit and even with dignity. He lived in quiet retirement for fifty-three years and died July 12, 1712, at the ripe old age of ninety.—Argonaut.

The Shrew.

The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defense, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

Be silent or say something better than silence.—Pythagoras.

POULTRY and EGGS

Quacks Are Easy to Raise and Thrive on Cheapest Feed.

Without doubt the duck is one of the most abused of all the domestic birds, writes a correspondent of the Iowa Homestead. Yet, in spite of its unpopularity among the masses, it may be made the most profitable of all in this country in the hands of one who likes ducks and appreciates their good points.

The duck is pre-eminently a meat bird, although with proper handling the feathers can be made to pay for almost all the ducks eat, which is a very important item in handling any kind of animals or birds.

The Buff Orpington duck is a rather new breed in this country, having been originated in England less than twenty years ago. It has the blood of the Indian Runner, Aylesbury, Rouen and Cayuga in its makeup and is the largest of the prolific egg laying ducks, equaling the Peking in size. This breed is easy to raise, matures quickly and is ready for market at ten weeks of age. The bird pictured is a Buff Orpington drake.

As a rule, it is better not to sell the birds when young, but grow them to maturity and market them in early winter, when prices are always good.

Because of fatal diseases, which are widespread and seem to be under no control, turkeys become scarcer every year, and the goose is not so easily raised, so, without doubt, the duck will in the future be one of the leading table fowls. It is a large bird, and with a good market it has considerable value as a table fowl.

For those engaged in duck culture for profit it will pay to keep only the heavier breeds. There is also a great profit in these when grown and sold for breeding purposes.

Many fail with geese, turkeys and chickens, but almost any one who likes domestic animals and has had some experience with them can succeed with ducks. Duck handling is of the easiest kind, as food, shelter and general care of the birds is very simple. The birds are hardy, free from disease and produce profitably for many years. In a large flock the finding of a dead duck is rare. They can stand much cold and dampness, and a common shed is all the shelter necessary.

A great factor with ducks is that they can be kept on the cheapest kind of food. While pastures are green about all they need is green grass or green forage, bugs, etc. Corn is their main food.

Some do not like ducks around the farm because they claim that they destroy so much. However, this objection may be raised with any class of poultry. If birds of any kind are a bother they should be confined to yards or a range for themselves, and ducks are very easy to confine, as they only need a grassy pasture inclosed with common woven wire. A general hog fence is sufficient to confine them. After corn is two feet high they may be pastured in the cornfield to advantage, as they will eat grass between the rows without disturbing the corn.

As ducks begin to lay early in the spring when the weather is yet cold, it is well to know the nesting places and gather the eggs soon after laid to prevent chilling.

The first eggs of the season should be set under hens, while the duck may be allowed to hatch the later ones. It is always much better to use hens as mothers of the ducklings, as they will care for them much better than the old ducks themselves.

Keep Hens Free From Insects.

To kill off the lice provide a dust bath for the hen, and she generally will keep herself free from lice. If she does not dust her with insect powder. You can buy this at drug stores or you can make it yourself. A very effective and cheap insect powder is made by taking three parts of gasoline and one part strong carbolic acid. Mix these together and add enough plaster of paris to take up all the moisture. This makes a dry, pinkish powder. Dust this on the hen, especially in the feathers under the wings and in the fluff below the vent.

Patch Up the Henhouse.

If a draft is permitted to blow through the openings of the poultry house your birds will probably become sick through having colds. Here is where prevention is better than cure. Shut up the openings so that the drafts will be kept out. A draft is bad in the summer, but when the cold winds commence to blow it is positively dangerous.

The Little Stone Toad

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Amid the yelling of a Chinese mob outside the gate of the compound Davies calmly packed his valuables into a couple of traveling bags, together with some necessary clothing. Through the open window of the bungalow he could hear the weak voice of Mr. Potter expostulating with the frenzied leaders of the mob.

All at once the yelling died down into shrill murmurs of discontent, and Potter strode across the verandah and into the room where Davies was methodically preparing for flight.

"I'm afraid we can't do anything with them," wheezed Leonard Potter breathlessly.

"Told you so," grunted Bob Davies as he yanked a strap into place. "Better get your stuff ready. They'll be firing the place in a jiffy."

The little man dragged out his own bags and ran frantically to and fro gathering up his belongings.

"Where shall we go?" he asked hopelessly.

"Van Ping will get us out of the neighborhood," returned Bob tersely. He was vexed with the utter want of tact on Potter's part. He had told the little missionary that it was folly to try to argue the inhabitants of Penfoo out of the belief that the great stone toad in the temple garden had anything to do with the weather of central China.

"My dear Davies," Mr. Potter had insisted, "leave them to me. It is my calling, the carrying of truth into the dark places of the earth. I cannot let these poor heathen continue to make offerings to the stone toad. It is my duty to convince them that they are entirely wrong."

Davies, who represented a big tea house in Shanghai, was angry because he was included in the neighboring hostility aroused by Potter's ill judged efforts. This affair would mean the loss of several business deals that he would have had difficulty in handling under the best of circumstances. He was sorry that he had invited Potter to share his quarters during his stay in Penfoo.

"Well, did you convince the heathen that the stone toad was not a weather maker?" He could not resist throwing over his shoulder.

Mr. Potter blinked.

"Not exactly," admitted the missionary. "They are very ignorant and very bigoted."

Bob Davies straightened up.

"Confound you and that Chinese belief that a stone toad is responsible for the weather conditions here is an indication of bigotry any more than the American confidence in the reports of the weather bureau."

"Well—well—ah, indeed. I presume not!" gasped Leonard Potter, as be-

"FOREIGN DEVIL," HE WHISPERED, "TAKE THIS IN EXCHANGE FOR MONEY!"

struggled with the straps of his suit case.

A long wailing yell arose from outside.

"When is Van Ping coming?" chattered Potter. "I didn't tell you that they threatened to boil me in oil."

"That all? What was the final straw, Potter?"

"I merely went to the temple garden and pounded the head of the stone toad with a sledge hammer, just to demonstrate to them that it was stone, an inanimate object that could not possibly have anything to do with the making of conditions."

"It seems to have created a very unpleasant situation for us," retorted Davies disagreeably.

Leonard Potter sighed. He wished that young Mr. Davies was not such a sarcastic individual.

The door opened, and Van Ping, Davies' model Chinese servant, appeared.

"Velly little time; bring fire soon," he said briefly.

"All ready, Van; lead the way. Help Mr. Potter with his bags. I can manage alone."

Without an unnecessary word Van Ping picked up a couple of bags and led the way to the back of the house. Here the kitchen offices extended in a series of small buildings to the rear wall of the compound.

Beyond the wall were the sluggish waters of a creek, and choking the creek for a mile above the river where it emptied was a long straggling line of sampans or house boats, occupied by the poorest class of Chinese. The sampans were connected with the bank on either side by narrow planks that served as gangways, and so closely were the sampans packed that one could travel from one end of the line to the other under the cover of their matted roofs.

Van Ping led the Americans through a narrow gate in the wall and out into the coarse sedge that bordered the creek.

"It is the only way," he remarked after he had explained his plan to Davies.

"And after we reach the river?" asked Davies.

"There are foreign ships of war there. Sabe?"

"Sabe," replied the American.

There would be risk in escaping through the long tunnel of sampans. Some of the boat dwellers might object, although Davies was well supplied with coin to buy their safe passage if necessary.

Leonard Potter, innocent cause of all the trouble, meekly followed after Van Ping, leaving Davies to bring up the rear.

It was an exciting experience. Danger lurked in the hidden gloom of each ill smelling sampan that they entered. Hostility was in their rear. Even Davies' money almost failed to gain their way in some places.

Slant eyed men threatened them from dark corners, angry women shrilled at them, and impudent children spat defiance at the hated foreigners. Many of the men were paid assassins, and Davies was ready at every turn to defend himself.

Once there was a little scuffle when two men darted out with naked knives, but Van Ping's angry voice sent them cowering back into the dim obscurity of their hiding place.

When they had nearly completed the journey through the line of sampans a remarkable incident occurred.

Bob Davies, who was bringing up the rear, felt a touch on his sleeve, and he looked down into the wizened face of an aged Chinaman. The man looked up at him from dimmed eyes.

"Foreign devil," he whispered, "take this in exchange for money. I would throw it into the mud only my wicked daughter-in-law would find it. I shall soon die, and this must not reach her hands."

He pressed a little box into Davies' unwilling palm.

"Money, how much or how little, as you wish," whined the man.

From ahead Van Ping was calling impatiently. Davies looked down into a handful of money, he poured it into the trembling palms of the old man.

Stuffing the unopened box into his pocket, Davies ran at top speed through the noisome deck houses until he reached his companions. From that moment he forgot all about the mysterious little box.

He felt the fresher air of the river blowing in his face, and he was relieved when at last they emerged upon the bow of the last sampan, whose prow projected into the mouth of the creek.

Here a small sampan was in waiting, and Van Ping hustled his passengers into the craft and took up the pole in his strong arms.

The river stretched a turbulent yellow stream east and west. The town of Penfoo straggles along its northern bank. Twenty miles below Penfoo is a large treaty port, and Davies knew that they would find protection on any one of the foreign warships lying in the roadstead.

Van Ping vigorously poled the sampan down the river, the swift current speeding them on the way to safety.

Two days later the tea merchant and the missionary, whose business in Penfoo had ended so abruptly, were on board a river steamer bound for Shanghai.

Bob Davies sulked alone most of the time, while Leonard Potter associated with the native crew and made two converts among them. Joyfully triumphant, he sought Davies in his retreat.

"I'm sorry I didn't stick to my post in Penfoo," said the missionary regretfully when he had described his recent experiences among the Chinese crew. "I am sure that my persuasions would have touched their simple hearts at last."

"You are 200 miles from Penfoo and a Chinese mob," remarked Bob.

Mr. Potter closed his pale eyes and folded his hands over his black waistcoat. He wished he had not met Davies and offered to share the expenses of his bungalow. The tea merchant appeared offended, as if their flight from Penfoo was to be laid at Potter's door.

"I am sure I didn't invent the stone toad," thought the missionary with some resentment.

Bob Davies was wondering what explanation he would give to his employers. He had already sent in signed contracts for a large quantity of the best Penfoo tea, and he had made payments on each contract, but now who could tell whether anything would come of the contracts?

"Oh, for a ranch in southern California and never another glimpse of China!" he groaned.

"I shall never forget that awful experience—coming through the house-boats," sighed Potter.

Davies started with a sudden recollection. He felt in his pockets for the little box which the ancient Chinaman did not want his wicked daughter-in-law to know about.

It was a small ebony box about two inches square and very heavy. Davies fumbled until he found a small spring in the bottom of the box, which upon pressure caused the cover to fly open.

"Great George, what a find!" Davies laughed aloud at the coincidence.

It was the stone toad in the temple garden that was responsible for their hasty departure from the Chinese town, and upon the stone toad Davies had mentally heaped all sorts of reproach.

Before him in a little paper lined box was a small stone toad. This toad was fashioned from gray-green soapstone, but its marvelous eyes caught and held Davies' fascinated gaze.

Such glorious green, winking, emerald eyes—yes, eyes formed of magnificent emeralds. And he had purchased them from the ancient man for a handful of money, perhaps $5 in all. Five dollars for a fortune!

Leonard Potter was looking over Davies' shoulder.

"Mr. Davies, is it possible that you, too, are a toad worshiper?" he demanded hoarsely.

To his surprise, Davies' answer was a laugh—such a laugh of mingled relief and joy that the little missionary could not understand. He only guessed that the heathenish stone toad had brought happiness to the dejected tea ingly.

Davies sought out Van Ping, who was accompanying him to Shanghai, and he told him about the old man and the box he had purchased from him. Van Ping smiled in a knowing manner when Davies had concluded:

"Him San Bong—velly bad man always. Him soon die and no can take all things with him. San Bong sell for velly little. Where got? No can tell—no sabe. Him forgot himself."

Van Ping shook his head when Davies suggested that they return to Penfoo and try to find San Bong, who had undoubtedly unloaded some of his stolen treasures upon Davies.

"You keep—you velly rich—no sell more tea," grinned the faithful Chinaman.

On his arrival in Shanghai Bob Davies consulted his lawyer, and when he had been convinced of the futility of endeavoring to restore the stone toad to San Bong he took the emeralds to a jeweler to have them appraised.

When he discovered that they were worth a modest fortune Davies resigned his position with the tea importers and made preparations to return to America and to realize his rosy dream of a ranch in southern California. Van Ping was to accompany him.

"Now, I must do something for little Potter," thought Davies. "If it hadn't been for Potter and the big stone toad I would never have been chased out of Penfoo, and consequently I would never have gone through the creek sampans and would never have met up with that fairy godfather, San Bong, and the little stone toad. That being the case, Potter is responsible for my good fortunes, so I will send him a substantial check to help his good work along."

And the grateful letter he received from Leonard Potter ended thus:

"You will be interested to learn, dear Mr. Davies, that I am using this money to return to Penfoo, so that I may convince those benighted people that the stone toad in the temple garden has nothing whatever to do with the weather."

So Leonard Potter was swung once more into the circle of destiny that landed him in Penfoo, but what happened to him there history does not relate.

A Lame Excuse.

"I'll never trade with that druggist again," snapped Mrs. Twobble.

"How now, my dear?" said Mrs. Gaddlers.

"After I bought a stamp from him I asked him if he wouldn't lick it for me, and he said I would have to excuse him, as he had a pimple on his tongue."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A WORD ABOUT ENSILAGE.

All kinds of ensilage will be utilized in feeding operations this year. There will be thousands of cases where corn was put in the silo before the grain had reached the milk stage and some instances even where the crop was put in before it had eared. Some disappointment will be experienced unless considerable dry feed in the form of fodder or hay is used in conjunction with this succulent ensilage. Under no circumstances should young cattle or even fattening cattle be fed this green, washy ensilage alone. Then there are those who have put corn in the silo anywhere from a week to two weeks after it was frosted. Unless abundance of water was used at the time of filling a supply of moldy ensilage will be available. This is a matter that must be watched most carefully, because mold is dangerous and not infrequently animals are poisoned as the result of eating it. If our experiment stations could compile a bulletin next spring giving the results of feeding the various kinds of ensilage that will be used this winter it would make exceedingly interesting reading.—Iowa Homestead.

STORING SWEET POTATOES.

Cold Weather Is Hard In Its Effects on These Tubers.

[Prepared by Kansas station.]

Cold weather is hard on the sweet potatoes, says Professor D. E. Lewis of the Kansas State Agricultural college, and they should not be left in the ground much after the first frost. If the vines were cut before the frost, however, many of the underground roots may yet be saved. They should immediately be dug and placed in some kind of suitable storage unless intended for direct consumption. Two things must be kept in mind—a temperature of about 85 degrees and ample ventilation are necessary.

During this time the potato is sweating. Unless the superfluous moisture is carried off, the potato will not keep. A high temperature carries it through its sweating process more quickly than a low one. The sweet potatoes are placed either in bins or in crates. The latter method demands more room than the former, but is more satisfactory because of its superior ventilation.

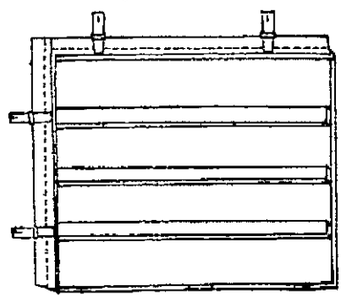

A sweet potato bin should be raised six or eight inches from the ground. The bottom, and often the sides, should be of slats. Some growers prefer solid sides, claiming they produce a better draft. Potatoes never should be piled high in a bin because of danger of bruising the lower roots with the excessive weight.

After the sweating period has passed, the temperature should be allowed to drop to 60 degrees—never below 55 winter by means of fires. A lower temperature brings about rotting and a higher one starts growth.

Care should be taken to select only sound potatoes for storage, and from the time that they are put in until they are taken out they should not be handled, especially during the sweat.

A Durable Stack Cover.

A very durable stack cover can be made of boards in sections about four feet wide by six feet long. Place four boards one inch by four feet by six inches side by side and fasten together by braces. Paint joints on upper side and paint bats before covering the joints. Do not run bats way to the top, but run one bat along the top, extending over about two inches on half of them and put no bats on the other half, so that the bat will cover them both. Put bats on right side of each section so that it will cover the edge of next section. Place barn hasps on the bats so that they will fit staples on the companion section. Care should be taken to get these hasps and staples rightly located. These covers will be found to be very convenient to use as stack covers, covers for machinery, chick coops, pig shade, cattle shade, etc. Being light and movable, they can be put to a great number of uses and, being rigid, are not easily blown away, nor will they sag.—Farm Progress.

Rutabagas For Garden.

The rutabaga is an excellent winter and spring vegetable for the table as well as a good stock food. It has also been demonstrated that they find a ready sale on the southern markets during the winter and early spring. For rutabagas the soil should be finely prepared and the seed sown in drills about three feet apart. As soon as a stand is secured the plants are thinned to about ten inches in the drill and given light cultivations at frequent intervals until frost comes. This plant will stand any degree of cold that we are likely to have in the extreme south. Well rotted lot manure is the best fertilizer to use, but if it is not available cottonseed meal will answer the purpose.—E. J. Watson, Louisiana Station.

A Member of Fire Engine Company No. 6

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

There was a fire engine house near Mr. Singleton's city residence, and it so happened that the place was an object of curiosity to his little daughter Bess. The moment she heard the sharp ring of the gong announcing a fire she would run to the engine house to see the horses hurried to their places beside the tongue of the machines, prancing impatiently till they were hooked, then dash out of the house, followed by the ragtag and bobtail of the town—and Bess.

She was six years old when this admiration for fire apparatus, horses and men first developed itself, and very soon she was noticed by the firemen sitting at the doors of the engine house in armchairs waiting for an alarm. One day one of them offered to show her the premises. She accepted the invitation and inspected everything with eyes as big as saucers. When she departed she was told to make herself at home there.

And she did. She went in and out at her own sweet will, climbed up on the hook and ladder truck, the hose carts and occasionally would ask to be put on the back of one of the horses. One day when she was ten years old a roll of parchment was left at her home on which was written, "This is to certify that Elizabeth Singleton has been duly elected a member of fire engine company No. 6." The words were surrounded by pictures of engines dashing to fires, burning buildings and firemen carrying women and children down ladders from the upper story.

This was the proudest day of Bess' life.

She was on the ladder truck one day when an alarm came. No one noticed her till the men jumped on to the footboard putting on their jackets; then one of them saw her hanging for dear life to the rung of a ladder. It was too late to put her down. At any rate, no one made a move to do so, and she was carried to the fire. There was little to do in quenching the flames, and since the ladders were not needed she was permitted to remain perched high, an object of interest to a gaping crowd. On the return she was put down at her home and lectured by her mother.

But from playing in an engine house she had got a taste for going to a fire, and from that time forward all efforts to keep her away from the former failed. One day when the department paraphernalia was about to respond to an alarm one of the men beside the truck turned and nearly fell over her. She put up her arms, and before he realized what he was doing he had swung her up on to the ladders.

Bess grew up the pet of the fire company and was considered a part of it, a part of which the men were very proud. When she was sixteen all the younger members were in love with her, and the older ones considered her something to adore. They raised a fund among them to procure a marble bust of her that was put up in the engine house.

Mr. and Mrs. Singleton did not quite know what to think of all this—whether to be proud of it or ashamed of it. Bessie's associates envied her, having her bust set up in the engine house and the friendship of the firemen, but they had no desire to cling to the round of a ladder on the way to a fire. However, her parents could not separate her from the fire company and gave up their efforts to do so. But about this time she came of an age to see that going to fires was not becoming to a young woman and of her own accord ceased all visits to the engine house except on state occasions.

When Bess was sixteen her father was elected sheriff of the county. One day a murder was committed that excited the indignation of the populace to such an extent that, assuming a man who had been arrested for the murder was guilty, they proposed to lynch him. Marching to the jail, they demanded the accused. There was no adequate defense, and the sheriff took the man out through a back door into an alley and thence to his own home. Unfortunately the two were seen by one of the mob, and before long they appeared and demanded the prisoner.

When Bess saw the crowd before her father's door and the trouble he was in an idea occurred to her. Slipping away, she ran to the engine house and, with flushed cheeks and out of breath, told the firemen of the situation.

"What can we do, boys?" asked the chief.

"Play on them!" said Bess.

"Good!" cried a dozen voices, and in a jiffy horses were placed before the engine. It was hauled to the sheriff's house, and suddenly the mob, who were howling for the prisoner, found themselves before a stream that knocked them down as fast as it was turned from those who had fallen to those still on their feet. Within five minutes the street was cleared.

The proudest men in the town were the firemen, who had found an opportunity to do a service for their idol. And as for the Singletons, no objection was after that ever raised to her going to fires and climbing the walls of burning buildings if she chose to do so.

When Bess was married a silver tea service was given her by her fellow members of the fire company. They were all invited to the wedding, and when later a little girl was born to the bride she was made a member by inheritance of fire engine company No. 6.

STONE PLEADS FOR TIME FOR CARRANZA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 14.—"For God's sake, give Carranza a chance!"

With his voice trembling with emotion, and with pleading gestures, Senator Stone of Missouri this afternoon thus set forth the administration's Mexican policy amid a storm of fierce demands for immediate intervention in the senate. The veteran Democrat leader had returned from a long conference with the president to find a senate in a state of excitement. A resolution authorizing and directing immediate intervention introduced by Senator Works (Cal.) had aroused a storm of debate. The administration was under heavy fire from Republican senators demanding satisfaction for Americans murdered in Mexico. Republican Leader Gallinger demanded in the name of the people of the United States to know what the administration intended to do.

FORD OF HIGHLAND SUED FOUR TIMES

Harold Ford's activity in causing the arrest of four Italians of Highland for the theft of a half ton of grapes from his fruit farm at Highland on October 1, 1914, led to four suits against him by the Italians for false arrest, a test case of which occurred today in county court. Frank Briganti was the plaintiff in today's case and he wants $1,000 for the loss of time and labor incurred in the arrest. Frank W. Brooks appeared for him and A. W. Lent for the defendant.

Mr. Ford noticed the robbery of the grapes from his vines on the morning after it occurred and he saw two tracks leading from the vineyard, one of a man's shoe and the other that of a woman's. He followed them and noticed that they led to the home of Briganti, who, as all the other Italians involved in the cases, was employed by the O'Brien Construction Company in building a track at Highland. Then he notified Justice of the Peace T. Edward DuBois, who upon Ford's request, issued a warrant for the arrest of the four Italians. The evidence which Ford gave in support of his desire for the arrest of the men was the presence of about two hundred pounds of grapes in a shed on Briganti's property. These grapes were of the same kind that had been stolen from the farm, and seemed to be fresh. Briganti stated that they were bought from a nearby farmer named Whittley a few days previous and were to be used in making wine. Briganti was not home at the time when the search was made but the family did not object to Ford's investigating the house and shed.

The case was continued at the afternoon session.

EDDYVILLE.

Eddyville, Jan. 14.—Miss Sadie Sweeney of New York city, who has been visiting her parents at that place, has returned to Eddyville where all of her friends were glad to see her again.

William Snyder of New Salem is spending some time in New York city, where he is to attend the automobile show.

Mrs. Henry Raymer spent Thursday in Kingston.

A party of twenty-five of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church attended a revival meeting in the Port Ewen M. E. Church. The trip to and from, as well as the services, were enjoyed by all and another trip is looked for Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bank are ill with the grip.

Mrs. Richard Mooney gave a party on Tuesday evening to some of the young people in honor of Miss Sadie Sweeney.

Francis McCarthy has moved from the house by the Kennedy store to the house formerly occupied by William O'Reilly.

Our streets are very slippery and walking is hard, as one of our young ladies found on Thursday morning when coming to the post office. But luckily for her, assistance was close at hand.

ACCORD.

Accord, Jan. 14.—A. Cornell and family of Alligerville have moved into E. H. Gordon's house.

Mrs. David Depuy has returned home after spending several days at Cottekill.

It is reported that the creamery at this place will soon be reopened. The ice house will be partially filled with ice that will be shipped in from a lake along the O. & W.

Mrs. Bert Lester is visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Schoonmaker went to Walden Thursday.

Miss Bessie Warhaftig has returned home from her visit to New York city and vicinity.

Filling ice houses is the business of the day.

Brown Auto Supply to Move.

The Brown Auto Supply Company, which has occupied a store in the Stuyvesant Garage, will move to the store formerly occupied by the Clinton Rest and expects to be ready for business in their new quarters on on about January 22. The Browns expect to have one of the best auto supply stores in the Hudson valley when they will have moved to their new store.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Dress Mfg. Co. will be held at the office of the company at No. 36 East Strand on Saturday Jan. 29, 1916 at 2 o'clock for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of any other business that may come before it.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 14.—The tone of the stock market at the opening was strong, stocks being in brisk demand with vigorous advances in many issues during the first fifteen minutes. War order stocks were again prominent, as the result of reports of additional orders and definite statements in regard to current earnings. Crucible Steel continued its upward movement, advancing 3 points to 63. American coal products rose 5½ to 166, Baldwin Locomotive 1⅝ to 108¾ and New York Air Brake 1½ to 147½. Industrial Alcohol rose 5½ points to a new high record of 138. International Nickel also was established at a new high record, advancing 4½ points to 209. The advances in these issues were supplemented by substantial gain in the standard stocks. United States Steel common rose ⅝ to 85¾, American Smelting 1⅜ to 105⅝ and Anaconda Copper ⅝ to 109⅛. New York Central was the strongest of the railroad list, moving up ⅝ to 110⅝. Rock Island gained ½ to 19⅛ and Chesapeake & Ohio rose ⅝ to 65⅜. Mexican Petroleum advanced two points to 114.

Trading continued active in the late forenoon with many issues showing pronounced strength. Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel each held steady around their early high levels. Marine preferred made a new high record of 80⅝, a gain of 2¼ points in all. The war order issues were prominent, Bethlehem Steel advancing to 449⅞, a gain in all of 19⅞ points. Crucible Steel continued to advance, selling at 64½, a gain in all of 4½ points. Studebaker rose 2 points to 154 and Tennessee Copper advanced to 59 against 57¾ at the close yesterday. The standard issues were also active and strong. Money loaning at 1¾ per cent.

The war order stocks continued the most prominent during the late afternoon. Baldwin Locomotive sold up to 110 against 106¾ at the close yesterday. General Electric advanced 1¼ to 172, Maxwell Motors 2½ to 68, and Pressed Steel Car 3 points to 61, and Studebaker rose to 156, a gain of four points so far for the day. Corn Products sold at an advance of a point to 21½. Steel common held steady, selling around 85¾. Tennessee Copper advanced ⅛ further to 59⅛.

The stock market closed active and strong. The war order stocks were the features, many of these stocks showing advances of 5 to over 8 points. Bethlehem Steel sold at 455, a jump of 25 points for the day. Crucible Steel crossed 68, a rise of over eight points. Studebaker touched 159, an improvement of seven points. There was a special movement in Corn Products which moved up 2 points to above 23. Steel common sold at 86⅜, a gain of about a point. Many of the minor industrials including Pressed Steel Car, rose 1 to 3 points to 61. Westinghouse showed pronounced strength. The railroad group was neglected. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds strong.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

R. J. Gardner, a former Middletown liveryman and a native of Sullivan county, is dead in Fort Smith, Ohio. He was 54 years old.

Miss Mary Sinnott died Thursday at her home, East Bridge street, Saugerties, after a long illness, in her 54th year. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

The funeral of Agnes, the six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold, was held this morning at 11 o'clock from the family residence, No. 13 Abeel street, with interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Helen J. Post was held on Thursday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Boyd, No. 195 Ten Broeck avenue. The Rev. George M. Cranston officiated and the interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

William H. Hafer died early this morning at his home, No. 98 Murray street. Besides his parents with whom he lived, he is survived by five brothers, Frederick, Frank, Clarence, Walter and George Hafer, and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Rice and Mrs. Peter Halloran. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence. The Rev. H. E. Snyder of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer officiating. The interment will be in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Bessie Hunt was held Thursday morning from St. Mary's Church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Hickey, who also spoke and paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The large number who viewed the remains gave evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. The bearers were Francis Cashin, Eugene Carey, Edward Perry, Leo Kegler, Arthur Maines and Clarence Colligan. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, where Father Hickey performed the last rites for the dead.

James K. Monigan, a well known Pine Bush merchant, died Saturday morning from pneumonia, contracted after an operation performed in Thrall Hospital in Middletown six weeks ago. He was aged 62 years. Deceased was the senior member of the firm of James K. Monigan & Co., general merchants, and had been a resident of Pine Bush for about eight months. He was married at Monticello to Mary Beebe, who survives. Also surviving are two children, Frank B. and Violet, and one sister.

THE AMERICAN RAVEN.

Found Now Only In Safe Retreats in the Rocky Mountains.

The raven has gained little in the affections of the people from his kindly act of supplying Elijah, the prophet, with food when hunger pressed him. The raven is thought of as a bird of ill omen wherever his black shadow appears. He is the sinister bird, and he cannot shake from his feathers his evil name, though it be only in part deserved.

How can any one be supposed to cultivate affection for a bird of which a great poet could write lines like these:

The sad presaging raven tolls
The sick man's passport in her hollow beak
And in the shadow of the silent night
Doth shake contagion from her sable wing.

The raven is passing. Already it has almost entirely disappeared from the British islands. Formerly the American raven was fairly common in our middle western country, in New England and in the lower ranges of the Allegheny mountains. Today it is only occasionally to be seen in its ancient haunts.

In the Rocky mountains, however, where men are scarce, the raven is holding its own. It builds its nest on the edge of the ledges of the inaccessible cliffs, and, sighting its foe from afar, it keeps the distance in which lies safety.

The raven is ugly in shape, as it is in voice. Its sole beauty lies in the luster of its feathers when the sun strikes them full and fair. It is a bearded bird, with high shoulders and certain bumps and humps here and there to make its form seem utterly lost to symmetry.

The bird is not altogether bad. It robs the nests of other birds, and it is this trait of character which has lost it caste and life in England. The gamekeeper shoots it on sight, and in recent years, because of the growing scarcity, the museum collectors have been hunting the raven in all places where it is reported to have dared to show its head.

The raven is the bird of books. It has a larger place in literature perhaps than all other birds combined if we except the eagle. Shakespeare mentions it no less than fifty times. Milton did not neglect it, and all the poets—ancient, medieval and modern—have considered the raven.

The American raven probably will be safe in his Rocky mountain haunts for years to come, but he is so far removed from man's habitations that his picturesqueness, his oddities, his gravities and his croakings virtually are lost to the world.—Chicago Post.

Scratch!

Tommy and Freddie were arguing hotly. "I tell you," vociferated Tommy, "he is my pa, he is!"

Freddie laughed scornfully. "He ain't either your paw."

"He is—he is! My ma says he is too."

"And my ma says he's a catspaw!"—Judge.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

The day is cold, old winter's here,
Oh, see the snowflakes fall.
The diamond's buried neath the ice,
And yet the boys play ball.
They slam 'em out from round the stove,
They grab 'em on a line,
It's the game they play in winter,
As in the summer time.

One of the most recent nominees for the office of "Luckiest Man in Baseball" is "Lefty" Baumgartner, of the Phillies, who worked in 16 games in 1915, failed to win the verdict in any of them, and yet grabbed down a slice of world series as big as that awarded to Grover Alexander.

Those who have seen May Sutton Bundy since her "come-back" in tennis, says that added years and inactivity in the tennis way during the past two or three seasons, have robbed her of nothing but a trifle of the old stroke force.

"Mrs. Bundy" writes an expert, "is the same wonderful court placer as during the hey dey of her career. She covers as much ground and with as much rapidity, but her stroke is not quite as strong. This probably is due to the fact that her muscles have softened through inactivity. Constant playing may restore her powerful driving."

Glen Warner, the coach of the University of Pittsburgh footballers, ranks as one of the greatest strategists in sporting history. Warner has a nimble brain and one that adjusts itself to meet every complex situation.

Some years ago when he was coaching a Cornell team some of the best men on his team were inclined to loaf. Warner berated them time and again, but the loafing continued. The boys had grown a bit chesty over the fact that one of the Ithaca papers was boosting them day after day. They figured they were stars and they didn't need to work.

Well, all of a sudden, the papers that had been boosting them, began to print articles criticising them. It charged them with loafing—with having "swelled heads." And right away those fellows took a "tumble" to themselves; they began to throw their hearts and souls into the work.

Yes, Oscar, you've guessed it. Warner went to the editor, explained the situation to him, and then got permission to write the articles which "panned" the players.

Charles Murphy's Story.

Charles Waistcoat Murphy, who made a million dollars in baseball through his part ownership of the Chicago Cubs, was "fired" into making a fortune.

"I started life as a drug clerk" said Murphy. "I had hopes of someday becoming owner of a drugstore. That was my life's ambition at that time. I was working for a German druggist at the time one of the opening ball games were staged in Cincinnati. I wanted to see that game, but I knew it wouldn't do any good to ask to get away. My boss thought baseball was foolishness.

"So I framed up a story. I told him that I was going to one of the Cincinnati suburbs where I hoped to sell a druggist a nice bill of our goods. The German was pleased—and he let me away for the afternoon. I went to the ball game and when I got back to the store in the evening I explained to my boss that I wasn't able to sell the country druggist any goods.

"'Id iss hadle vonder!' sneered my boss. 'Yoost a few minids ago vun of my frients was here. He sait you vas so bisy yelling at der ball game you couldn't half sold anything but peanuts. You iss fired. Ged oudt of my store—ged oudt!'

"I got out. There was nothing else for me to do, but get out. I hunted around for a job, and finally landed with Charles P. Taft's newspaper. While I was working on that sheet a chance came to buy the Cubs. I enlisted the financial aid of Mr. Taft—and we became owner of the club."

Corn muffins with a "way-down-South" taste!

Here's how: One egg—well beaten, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup corn meal, 1 cup "Presto" Self-Raising Flour, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 tablespoonfuls butter.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Pal More beat Zulu Kid in eight rounds here last night.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 14.—Frank Gotch and Mrs. Gotch are on their way to California, where the wrestling champion will spend two months getting into better physical condition. Gotch has signed a contract to give physical culture exhibitions and participate in mat bouts before circus crowds next summer. His contract calls for $1,200 a week.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—Alfredo de Oro is in no danger of losing his title as champion three-cushion billiardist. In the second block of his match with Lloyd Jevne the Cuban increased his lead, the score now being 100 to 61. The final block of 50 points will be played tonight.

New York, Jan. 14.—Peter Zalesnow, of Russia, the "Human Spring," is smarting under his first defeat in the international wrestling tournament. Peter was pinned to the mat by the "Masked Marvel" last night after one hour and four minutes of catch-as-catch-can grappling.

New York, Jan. 14.—Jess Willard does not want to box in March. Efforts to get the champion to meet Frank Moran in March probably will come to naught. The champion is willing to box in May. If the match is staged then, it will undoubtedly be held in the open air—probably at Brighton or Ebbetts Field.

PINE GROVE.

Pine Grove, Jan. 13.—Chester Snyder and sister, Miss Julia, are ill with the grip. Dr. Luther Emerick is the attending physician.

Miss Elizabeth Snyder of Catskill spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Snyder.

A party was given by Miss Mabel Myer at her home on Saturday evening. Some of the young people of Pine Grove and Woodstock were present and spent the evening.

Mrs. Fred Chapman of Daisy spent Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward Bishop.

Mrs. W. S. Mygrant, Percy Mygrant and wife, Mrs. Louise Minnerly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, Charles Snyder and wife, Franklyn Snyder and wife and William Snyder, wife and daughter, Grace, were callers at the home of D. Myer Snyder on Sunday.

Harry Mower and wife and the Misses Hazel and Vina Spielman attended the dance at Zeigler's Hall, Quarryville, on Saturday evening. While there they called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Cooke.

Charles Farrell is working for William Spring.

Ethan Yager of West Saugerties called at the home of Charles Bishop on Sunday afternoon.

The statement made in Pine Grove items that the large tree in front of Werner's Hotel was blown down by the heavy wind storm, was a mistake. Some large limbs were blown off but the tree still stands.

Mrs. Edward Bishop has just completed a quilt top which contains 2,464 pieces. The quilt is called "The Hail Storm," and is pieced with many colors.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, Jan. 14.—Miss Rachel Osterhoudt is visiting friends in Katrine.

The little son of Matthew France, who has been very ill, is improving under the care of Dr. Diedling of Saugerties.

Mrs. Henry Swart is ill.

Mrs. Whitehead of Kingston, who was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Swart for a few days, has returned to her home.

The ice house that caved in, under the weight of the snow, a few weeks ago, is being rebuilt.

Chester Swart, who has been visiting friends at Brown's Station, has returned home.

The T. X. T. Club gave a dance at their club house on Thursday night of this week. Their masquerade dance of last week was a success in every way. The costumes were pretty and varied.

Dr. Wyckoff will take his vacation, commencing with Sunday, January 16, until the first of March. There will be preaching services the same as usual. Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Hoag of Saugerties will preach here.

Mrs. Benjamin Osterhoudt has been quite ill this past week.

Kingston Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Three fast games of basketball will be staged at the Popular Saturday Night at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening and the public is invited. The first game will be played between the Employed Boys' five and the Young Colonials. In the second game the Albany Avenue Baptist Church will clash with the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, and in the third game the Rondout Presbyterian Church will play Trinity M. E. Church.

This evening another game will be rolled in the Y. M. C. A. Church Bowling League when the Rondout Presbyterian Church team will clash with the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church team.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Janary 14, 1896:—Chief Engineer Kolts of the fire department preferred charges against members of Weiner Hose Company for refusing to obey orders at a fire.

January 14, 1906:—Mrs. Lena Blackwell and Edward Steenburn of Hoboken married in the German Lutheran Church.

COMPANY M HAS BASKETBALL TEAM

Kingston fans will have another chance to demonstrate whether they want basketball at the armory. In the face of the league team going to Elizabeth, the local management made up their minds that Company M should be represented by local boys, and basketball be resumed, notwithstanding the many stories that have emanated from other sources that amateur basketball would not interest the fans.

Tonight at the armory the Company M team will have as their opponents a team representing Company E of Catskill. The latter have always had a team of good calibre, and the local guardsmen will have to do some mighty clever playing to come out on the large end of the score. The game will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock, to allow plenty of time for dancing, music to be furnished by Martin.

Two Sentiments.

A young lady one day requested Moltke and Bismarck to write a few lines in her album. The marshal took up the pen first and wrote: "Falsehood passes away; truth remains.—Von Moltke, Field Marshal." After reading what Moltke had to say Bismarck took the pen and added the following: "I know very well that truth will prevail in the next world, but in the meantime a field marshal himself would be powerless against falsehood in this world.—Von Bismarck, Chancellor of the Empire."

Some Bird.

The roc, a fabulous bird often referred to in the "Arabian Nights," was believed to be of such enormous size and strength as to be able to carry even elephants in its talons.

Teaches a Lesson.

Money is never spent to so much advantage as when you have been cheated out of it, for at one stroke you have purchased prudence.—Schopenhauer.

Those who mistake evil for good or good for evil will never attain to bliss.
